Ghosts of New Street.
Russia Tries Farming.
100-Story Building.
And They Did Drink.
—By ARTHUR BRISBANE

FOR the first time in 10 years the stock exchange was open on Sunday, brokers winding up transactions of a desperately busy week, preparing for the grand reopening this morning.

Gigantic orders for today have been pouring in since the close on Thursday, some to buy, some to sell. Buyers and sellers will take turns rejoicing and regretting. The country's business will go on as usual

WALL STREET is quoting Henry Clews' advice to young speculators, "Watch the old speculators." Clews ran a carefully managed brokerage office and got rich, because he knew enough to let gambling alone.

YOUNG speculators should visit the back door of the stock exchange in New street, at midnight, and talk to the ghosts of old dead speculators that whisper how they once were rich and lost everything.

They might learn a good deal there, but they won't. Knowledge comes from experience.

WHILE we talk about farm relief in Washington and supply genuine relief in Wall Street, Soviet Russia makes real experiments.

Russia developing gigantic national farms, with modern machinery, plans a complete revolution in farming methods.

Twenty-five million small farms that feed Russia's population, and cover one-sixth of the earth's surface, will be changed to big scale farming on a basis that would double the crops, using half the land.

OUR farmers would not care for that, too much danger of being wiped out. Farmers like their own cows, barns, fields, ploughs, agricultural machinery, idle and rusting 11 months in the year.

They would not become salaried government agrarian officials, even if they made more. Russia at least is trying to do something. We are trying to walk on eggs, doing nothing, without driving farmers from the Republican party.

THE one hundred-story building has arrived. F. H. Ecker will build it, for the Metropolitan Life Company, on the block adjoining the Metropolitan's fifty-story tower in Madison Square, New York.

THAT is progress since the period of the Philadelphia centennial when Whitelaw Reid celebrated his acquisition of the Tribune and startled New York with a nine-story tower.

The 100-story tower to be used for Metropolitan Life employes only will house 30,000 of them, carrying them up the first 13 floors on moving stairways.

WASHINGTON awaits Senator Brookhart's promised revelations concerning a senatorial dinner, not dry.

A New York broker named Fahey is supposed to have tempted the senators at a private party and, according to Senator Brookhart, they did drink. Everybody knows that Congressmen drink and that prohibition is for the little man. But, it is unpleasant to talk about it.

WALL STREET'S earthquake week proved that New York's billionaire banks can be useful, in emergencies.

Brokers' loans have been reduced by two billions, four hundred million dollars. While "out-of-town banks," as Wall Street calls the rest of the country, were calling loans, New York banks were lending a billion and a quarter.

Without that lending, on securities, which acted as a cushion, you might have seen a real panic.

ALEXANDER SZTARON, a young Communist, dies in a Hungarian prison, on a hunger strike, being the second to die in that fashion.

The strike ending in death is a protest against Hungary's present government. If the dead man now looks down, surveying this world that has lasted more than a thousand million years, and has another billion years to go, he probably feels that it was a mistake to take one little political situation so seriously.

However, it takes many deaths to create liberty, as it takes many chewing earthworms to create fertile soil.

IN OKLAHOMA, Jeff D. Harris, 65 years old, ardent dry, thought it his duty to enforce prohibition. He had no official position, no warrant. But he suspected Farmer Oscar Lowery of bootlegging, raided his farm and killed Lowery.

A jury convicts Harris of manslaughter, leaving the sentence "from four years to life" to the judge.

THE prosecuting attorney threatens if the sentence is light, to put Harris on trial for another killing, that of James Harris, Lowery's brother-in-law, killed in the same raid.

The convicted man's problem is complicated by evidence of witnesses that no liquor was found on the farm and both men were killed as they held their hands in the air, begging for mercy.

Prohibition hatreds are almost as intense as religious hatreds.

CONDEMNED, BINGHAM WILTS

Senator Near Collapse After Futile Attempt to Avert Censure for Lobby Link

BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Senator Bingham, when asked today immediately after the Senate vote of censure, if he proposed to resign, replied "certainly not."

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—For the first time in 19 years, the Senate today censured one of its own members when it condemned as "unethical and immoral" the action of Senator Hiram Bingham (Rep.), of Connecticut, in putting a paid lobbyist on the Senate payroll during the tariff hearings.

A resolution, sponsored by Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, and approved by an overwhelming vote, placed the Senate on record as officially condemning Bingham's conduct in using the services of Charles L. Eyanson, Connecticut manufacturers' agent.

The vote was 54 to 22 for adoption of the resolution.

AMATO CHARGES SLANDER, SUES

Pasquale Amato, former baritone of the Metropolitan Opera, today filed notice of a suit against May Beegle, Pittsburgh promoter, charging slander.

It is understood the suit is based on Miss Beegle's reputed statement that Amato is "a has-been."

Amato was in Pittsburgh today to sing as guest star at the Pittsburgh Opera Company's performance. The opera company had charged that Miss Beegle, sponsoring the later appearances here of the French-Italian Opuera Company, had advertised Amato as one of the singers.

Miss Beegle agreed that a circular advertising the company's appearance bore Amato's picture but she denied any intention of giving the impression that he was to be part of the cast.

Today, Amato filed notice of the FIGHT TEXAN'S DEFENSE PLEA

WEATHERFORD, Tex., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Combatting the self-defense plea of R. H. Hamilton, Amarillo attorney, who shot and killed his son-in-law, Tom Walton, Jr., 21, the state in rebuttal today presented testimony that the youth had telephoned Hamilton at his office a few minutes before the fatal encounter occurred.

Walton, who had secretly wed the attorney's 17-year-old daughter, Theresa Hamilton, while the two were attending the University of Texas, was slain when he called at Hamilton's office last May 4, presumably to reveal the marriage to his father-in-law.

Russians, Chinese In Fierce Battles

Congressmen Often Drunk, Gillett Tells Senate

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—Members of the House of Representatives have transacted business on the floor while drunk, Senator Frederick H. Gillett (Rep.), of Massachusetts, ex-speaker of the House, declared during a speech in the Senate today.

His remarks brought a gasp from the Senate for their frankness, but evoked no protests. He made them during a defense of Senator Bingham (Rep.), of Connecticut, in debate on the Norris resolution of censure.

"When I was in the other branch (the House) I frequently saw members transacting business under the influence of liquor," said Gillett. "But I did not think it was necessary to adopt a resolution of condemnation."

"But that was no secret," interposed Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska.

"It was not secret to those there but it was to the great American people," said Gillett.

"It was not a secret to those in the capitol?" replied Norris.

"No."

The Senate also received news that prohibition would break out in debate again, Senator Brookhart (Rep.), of Iowa, saying that he would discuss it tomorrow.

"I will talk upon the prohibition situation in general and Wall Street booze parties in particular," said Brookhart.

The Iowa senator is under subpena to appear before a grand jury here to tell of a dinner given by a New York financier to new senators at which, he claimed, liquor was served.

PITTSBURGH STUDENT IN RUM NET

Sold Contraband to Pay Way Through, Police Charge; Two Others Sought in Plot

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—The charge that three students were selling liquor to other students to work their way through the University of Michigan was made by police today after a raid Saturday night in which, they asserted, a case of wine and a case of whiskey were confiscated in a men's dormitory.

Harold McKee, 24, of Pittsburgh, is being held in the county jail and two others whose names were withheld are being sought.

The liquor, police said, was brought from Canada and smuggled into the dormitory under buttoned overcoats. Sergt. Louis Fohey and Detective Clifford West declared a number of telephone calls ordering liquor were received while they were raiding the room in the dormitory.

The officers answered the calls.

The raid was part of a drive begun by local officers after five fraternities had been placed on probation by the university for tolerating intoxication at dances.

Harold McKee, whose mother lives at 567 Ardmore boulevard, is a freshman at the University of Michigan.

He went to Michigan at the beginning of the present school term to accept a "job" which would enable him to work his way through school, according to his mother. She said she never had received details concerning the position, although she had written him asking about it.

45 Dead, $2,000,000 Loss in Eruption

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—Forty-five persons were known to be dead, hundreds were rendered homeless, and property damage estimated at $2,000,000 was left today in the wake of the violent eruption of Santa Maria volcano.

Streams of molten lava spread over rich coffee plantations at the foot of the mountain, especially in the vicinity of the village of Elpalmar, wiping them out.

The first eruptions occurred Saturday night. Residents for miles around the base of the mountain fled their homes in panic.

7 Missing Arctic Prospectors Found

OTTAWA, Ontario, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—The Department of Marines and Fisheries received a bulletin by radio today from its Churchill station saying Col. BANQUETS LAY MACK LOW

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—Literally overcome by the honors and banquets accorded him as the manager of the world's baseball champions, Connie Mack, the Athletics' veteran leader, lies ill abed today. His illness is not serious, physicians say, and came about through "dining not wisely but too well."

"Too many banquets," was the pronouncement of the physicians as they ordered cancellation of all scheduled dinners and prescribed rest and quiet for their patient. Up to the time the 67-year-old baseball manager's stomach rebelled, he had been at the beck and call of endless numbers of civic and fraternal organizations who requested him to appear and give his account of how he won the highest honors in baseball.

SUNDAY'S WIFE BLAMES MODEL

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—The district attorney's office has under advisement charges of misconduct lodged against George H. Sunday, eldest son of Billy Sunday, famous evangelist, and Myrna La Salle, beautiful 24-year-old model and divorcee.

The charges were lodged by Mrs. Harriet Sunday, wife of Sunday.

Appearing at the district attorney's office Miss La Salle categorically denied Mrs. Sunday's accusations of improper conduct.

Mrs. Sunday asserted her husband and the model had been discovered together in his apartment at midnight by herself and a private detective.

Miss La Salle admitted this, according to the district attorney, but said she and Sunday were sitting up reading at the time.

Mrs. Sunday, according to Deputy District Attorney George Stahlman, said she intends to file suit for divorce on grounds of infidelity and non-support.

Stahlman said his investigators had been unable to locate Sunday, who is in the real estate business here.

Miss La Salle said she was divorced from George Reichard on January 16 last.

"I love George," she declared. "He is a marvelous man. As soon as he gets a divorce we are going to be married."

EXCHANGES SET 3-HR. SESSIONS

Close Tomorrow, Saturday; Big Operators' Selling Offsets Public Buying

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Trading on the New York securities exchanges returned to a normal basis today after a wild outburst of selling at the opening. Early this afternoon the ticker tape caught up with the market for the first time since the disastrous break of Thursday, October 24, delays since that time averaging between one and two hours.

Prices dropped $1 to $12 a share at the opening, recovered probably a third of their losses in the brisk rally which followed and then sold off again as a renewal of selling pressure against the high-priced specialties carried many of those issues down $10 to nearly $20 a share below last week's final quotations. Prices were holding fairly steady in the mid-afternoon around the day's low levels.

HALF-DAY SESSIONS

Total sales from 10 to 1:30 p. m. were 4,803,000 sales.

Before the opening, governors of the New York Stock Exchange voted that the exchange shall be open for business between 10 a. m. and 1 p. m. on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week, and shall be closed all day Saturday. The exchange will also be closed tomorrow, owing to the election.

Although buying orders had poured into commission houses during the three-day recess, they were largely for small lots and were quickly overbalanced by the rush of selling by large operators who bought at last week's low levels.

MORE MARGINS GO

In addition, further scrutiny of brokers' ledgers over the week-end revealed a few more weak spots in impaired margins, calling for prompt selling of such stocks "at the market."

General business and financial conditions were practically un-

Hoover Asks Senate O. K. on Youngquist

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—President Hoover this afternoon sent to the Senate for confirmation the nomination of G. Aaron Youngquist, attorney general of Minnesota, to be assistant United States Attorney General in charge of prohibition and tax law enforcement.

The office was formerly held by Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, resigned.

Rosenwald Loses Income Tax Appeal

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—Julius Rosenwald, Chicago millionaire, today lost an appeal to the Supreme Court for review of lower court decisions holding him liable to $165,000 federal income tax upon property, the income of which he had transferred to the Julius Rosenwald fund, a charitable organization.

BINGHAM BREAKS DOWN AFTER SENATE CONDEMNATION

Connecticut Member Nearly Collapses After Futile Defense of Lobby Link

off tears. He stumbled toward a nearby cloakroom. Several of his senatorial friends dashed through the doorway after him.

In approving the resolution ,the Senate decided:

"That the action of the Senator from Connecticut, Mr. Bingham, in placing Mr. Charles L. Eyanson upon the official rolls of the Senate at the time and in the manner set forth in the report of the sub-committee of the committee on the judiciary, while not the result of corrupt motives on the part of the Senator from Connecticut, is contrary to good morals and senatorial ethics and tends to bring the Senate into dishonor and disrepute and such conduct is hereby condemned."

SUBSTITUTES DEFEATED

Paving the way for the adoption of the censure, the Senate voted down two substitut amendments, one sponsored by Smoot (Rep.), of Utah, and one by Edge (Rep.), of New Jersey. Both were designed to soften the blow to the Connecticut Senator, but Smoot's resolution was defeated, 32 to 44, and Edge's 34 to 42.

Just before censuring Bingham, an amendment was added to the resolution absolving Bingham of any "corrupt motives." This was done at the urgent solicitation of Senator Glenn (Rep.), of Illinois, who had voted against the substitute. Glenn said the Senate should disavow any attack on Bingham's honor or integrity "because we all know of his career of valor and honor during the war."

Senator Norris accepted Glenn's amendment, saying it added nothing to the resolution.

STANDS BY EYANSON

At the instance of Senator Bratton (Dem.), of New Mexico, Norris accepted another amendment limiting the disavowal of corruption only to Senator Bingham. When Bratton proposed it, Bingham protested against its adoption.

"I hope if this amendment would lead to the implication that Mr. Eyanson was dishonorable, it will be rejected," said Bingham. "I can assure the Senator that Mr. Eyanson acted in good faith and with honorable intentions."

"I wish only to acquit the Senator from Connecticut of corrupt motives," Bratton replied. "I am perfectly willing to make a distinction in his favor because I know him and I place my confidence in him. I do not know Mr. Eyanson."

Both Glenn and Norris then accepted the modification.

MOTIVES NOT IMPUGNED

A number of Democratic senators next asserted they did not wish to impugn Bingham's motives. Senators Simmons (Dem.), of North Carolina, McKellar (Dem.), of Tennessee, Dill (Dem.), of Washington, and Stephens (Dem.), of Mississippi, while announcing disapproval of Bingham's conduct, said they attributed no corrupt motives to him.

This led Norris to declare the Senate had shown it was "above partisanship" in its handling of the Bingham case. He pointed out that the defense of Bingham's honor had come chiefly from the Democratic side of the Senate.

After Senator Norris had called for a vote, Bingham made an impassioned defense on the floor of the Senate of his employment of a paid lobbyist to aid in writing the new tariff bill.

He admitted he might have made an error in judgment, but he pleaded he had done nothing immoral, unethical or dishonorable.

PLEADS "NOT GUILTY"

He pleaded "not guilty" to all three charges carried in the resolution.

"In the first place, it is claimed that the employment of Mr. Eyanson was contrary to good morals," said Bingham. "It is difficult to know exactly what is meant by this expression 'contrary to good morals,' but if it means anything at all it must mean that there was something in this employment which was immoral in the sense of being dishonorable or corrupt. To this charge, Mr. President, I plead not guilty.

"There was nothing in his employment which was dishonorable or corrupt. Not one dollar of the public money was wasted. Not a single taxpayer's dollar was employed for any sinister purpose. I did not profit to the extent of one dollar invested in any of the Connecticut companies seeking an increase in tariff rates which might be presumed to be represented by an official of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association.

NO FINANCIAL GAIN

"Not a penny of the public money stuck to my fingers or to the fingers of Mr. Eyanson. On the contrary, whatever he received while on the government payroll was turned over to the clerk who continued to perform the same functions in my office as he had done previously and as he has continued to do since.

"There was nothing about the transaction that was dishonorable or corrupt. The Connecticut Manufacturers' Association did not seek any unfair advantage. In loaning me one of their highly paid officials they did so at my request in order that I might secure that person in Connecticut who was best posted on all sides of the tariff problem.

"Mr. Eyanson behaved throughout in an exemplary manner, endeavoring his best to present to me the facts as to why certain increases or certain decreases in the tariff schedules were necessary. In no case did he attempt to deceive me. In all cases did he make an effort to bring the facts to my attention. He is a highly-trained business executive. He had a splendid war record and has a splendid record in business. Of all my constituents I believed him to be the best posted on the bill passed by the House of Representatives. In all his relations with me there was nothing dishonorable or corrupt in the slightest degree. There was nothing contrary to good morals."

HITS AT OTHERS

Bingham pointed out that some Senators carried their relatives, including sons and daughters, on the Senate payrolls. He spoke, too, of the custom of paying salaries to the wives of clerks, who do no work. In such cases, he added, the Senate gives the Senator involved the right to use these clerks as he sees fit. In the Eyanson case, Bingham continued, he did only what he thought was right.

"Whatever mistakes of judgment I have made, however indiscreet or over-zealous I may have been," he continued, "the fact remains that I did what I did so that I might the better serve my constituents and uphold the high protective tariff for the benefit of American manufacturers and American workmen.

"My sole purpose, my sole object was to be the better able to present the case of my constituents, my employers and employes, producers and consumers and the better to meet arguments of those opposed to the high protective tariff. This was my motive."

Senator Dill (Dem.), of Washington, asked him why he hadn't informed other Senators that Eyanson was on the payroll of the Connecticut association.

GILLETT OPPOSES MOVE

"My action in not telling everything probably was wrong," Bingham replied. "It simply did not occur to me."

Senator Gillett (Rep.), of Massachusetts, opposed the resolution, saying he did not believe it was the "duty of the Senate to pass upon the propriety or impropriety, the discretion or indiscretion of a Senator."

Gillett was extremely critical of Bingham's action in placing Eyanson on the rolls as a clerk and getting him in the finance committee secret sessions.

"The Senator's action seems so indiscreet and shows such an ingenuousness as to results that I am surprised, but still I do not think that it calls for Senate action," said Gillett.

He said Bingham should have known he would be charged with seeking to represent only part of his constituents—the manufacturers—but he thought Bingham employed Eyanson only to help get facts.

"POLITICALLY UNWISE"

He declared a Democratic Senator recently asked a lobbyist, who had convinced him on a tariff rate, to come to him just before the Senate met so that he could have arguments fresh in his mind.

He referred to Bingham's action in putting Eyanson on the rolls as a clerk "as still another example of the political unwisdom of the Senator."

"Of course it was utterly improper for him to appoint him as a pretended clerk," said Gillett.

"It is indefensible but the question is—is it so indefensible when, as I believe, it was done with the best motives—to warrant the passage of a resolution.

"If we should attempt to pass upon all the indiscretions of senators we would have little time for anything else."

NORRIS' IRE AROUSED

Gillett aroused Norris' ire by declaring that he was unjudicial in appointing only one "Regular Republican" on the lobby investigating committee of five.

"I appointed a committee that I thought could carry out the resolution of the Senate and make an honest investigation and I think the committee has done this," said Norris.

"I think the senator from Connecticut was guilty of extraordinary ignorance, extraordinary blindness to the possible effects of his act in the employment of Mr. Eyanson," Gillett said.

Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, also condemned Bingham's action, but announced he would not impugn any dishonorable motive to the Connecticut senator.

"I think his actions were a mistake," said Borah. "All of us agree it was a mistake. I think down deep in his heart, he, too, believes he made a mistake."

"Don't you think he ought to say so?" asked Dill.

BORAH DENIES UNFAIRNESS

"Well, I venture to say the senator from Connecticut will never do it again," replied Borah.

"I thoroughly agree that the acts of the Senator from Connecticut are contrary to good morals and tend to bring the Senate into disrepute," Borah added. "I do not see how the Senate can avoid taking action on this matter if it wishes to preserve its reputation and dignity."

Borah denied the investigation committee had been "unfair" to Bingham. He said the committee had merely brought out facts. He praised the impartiality of Senator Walsh (Dem.), of Montana, as an investigator.

"Senator Walsh is a ruthless investigator," said Borah, "and that's what we need here."

Senator David A. Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, one of the "old guard" leaders, openly disapproved Bingham's conduct.

"I think the employment of Eyanson was regrettable, unwise and very much to be deplored," said Reed. "At the same time, knowing Senator Bingham as I do, I don't see how anyone can believe it was dishonorable, dishonest or corrupt. I believe it was indiscreet and unwise and from the bottom of my heart I am sorry for him."

He pleaded with the Senate not to "put him under a cloud of shame," pointing out Bingham had served his country well during the World War.

"I cannot put this stigma on a man, branding him as dishonorable when he picked out the most dangerous branch of the service during the war," Reed added. "I cannot believe the Senate will censure him like that when it knows he served in aviation because he so loved his country."

ing plow-points; 14-inch furrows, seven inches deep, to be required. Evenness of furrows and squareness of corners will count.

ALL interesting and archaic, but, in real farming, there will be no man trudging four and a half hours behind a pair of horses, scratching up a small piece of ground in a day's hard work.

One man, with a machine, will rip up 100 acres or more in a day and sit at his ease as he does it.

Bigger fields, big machinery, farm co-operation, or farming corporations, using modern industrial methods, will solve the farm problem.

FOR the first time our experts are dominated by finished goods, those in which values are created by American labor, automobiles, plows, manufactured foodstuffs, etc.

American labor is interested in protection against cheap labor abroad, but interested, also, in a tariff that will not make it impossible for foreign countries to buy from us and sell to us. Manufactured exports of $1,967,000,000 are not to be ignored. The close balance in imports and exports is shown in figures for the year.

We sold to other countries $3,849,000,000 and bought from them $3,361,000,000 worth of goods. If our tariff makes it impossible for foreign countries to sell to us, it will make it impossible for them to buy from us.

We need a tariff to protect labor and industry without making a tariff to ruin our foreign customers.

'Double Crossing' and 'Plot' Charges Fly; Tammany Sees Big Walker Plurality

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—With the booming of heavy political guns and last minute warnings of "double crossing" and "diabolical plots," the mayoralty campaign in New York City drew to a discordant close today.

Tomorrow the voters go to the polls and settle the question: "Will Mayor James J. Walker be re-elected?" Tammany, which is backing the debonair "Jimmy," says "yes, by 550,000 plurality."

Opposed to Walker in the mayoralty battle are:

Fiorello H. La Guardia, Republican-Fusion.

Richard E. Enright, Square Deal party candidate.

Norman Thomas, Socialist.

LA GUARDIA CLAIMS VICTORY

The Republican-Fusion managers claim victory for La Guardia by 200,000 votes. Enright, former police commissioner, has made no predictions as to the outcome. Thomas' manager declares the Socialist candidate will receive at least 20 per cent of the total vote, or between 200,000 and 250,000 votes. He said Thomas would run ahead of La Guardia by 50,000 or 100,000 votes.

Betting odds on Walker lengthened from 10 to 1 to 15 to 1 in the last two days. New York City is normally Democratic. "Jimmy" is personally popular, has the support of the powerful Tammany organization and has been helped from the political platform by personal appearance of former Gov. Al Smith.

WALKER HINTS AT PLOT

The campaign is closing with a bang, after a dull interlude. The Republicans today let it known they are preparing for a Tammany "reign of terror" at the polls tomorrow. They profess to anticipate "strong-arm" tactics to prevent "bolters" from voting for La Guardia. On the other hand, Walker hints at a "diabolical plot he fears the Republicans are going to "spring" at the last minute—"too late to answer."

La Guardia and Enright have been lambasting the mayor for weeks, particularly for failure of the Walker administration to solve the murder of Arnold Rothstein, the gambler, who was mysteriously shot in a hotel here a year ago tonight. Many sinister charges were made in this connection.

VIRGINIA VOTE WATCHED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Overshadowing all other elections Tuesday from a national viewpoint is the gubernatorial race in Virginia, where the political power of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., is at stake.

Attention of national politicians is directed mainly to the result in the Old Dominion for its possible bearing upon the presidential election in 1932.

Should John G. Pollard, nominee of the regular Democrats for governor of Virginia, win by a substantial majority over William Moseley Brown, candidate of a coalition of Republicans and anti-Tammany Democrats, it will be taken as an indication that the state is swinging back to the Democratic fold.

Virginia was one of the four states of the "Solid South" which broke from the Democratic moorings in 1928 and supported Herbert Hoover in his race for the presidency.

POLLARD VICTORY LIKELY

A survey of the trend in Virginia indicates Pollard will be elected. The only question seems to be the majority. The larger the majority, the severer the blow for the forces of Bishop Cannon.

Some interest nationally also is being taken in the Republican drive in Kentucky to obtain complete control of the state government by obtaining a majority in the State Legislature.

Mayoralty elections also will be held in Boston, Detroit, California, Indiana, Kansas, Arizona, Pennsylvania and Ohio.

R. C. M'CULLOCH SLATED TO GET BURTON POST

Governor Expected to Name Canton's Ex-Congressman To Fill Senate Vacancy

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 4.—(AP.) — Barring last-minute complications, announcement of the selection of former Congressman Roscoe C. McCulloch, of Canto, as Ohio's junior United States Senator to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Theodore E. Burton, is expected to be made by Gov. Cooper tomorrow. The Governor said he hoped to be able to announce the late Senator Burton's successor at 10 o'clock on election day.

While Gov. Cooper would only say that he was making progress in the task of selecting the new senator, sources considered reliable indicated that McCulloch will be the ultimate choice unless some last minute complications arise.

In such event, the selection, it has been intimated, probably would go to Charles R. Frederickson, of Coshocton, former Republican state chairman.

7 E. E. CHILDREN BITTEN BY DOGS

Seven children of the East End district, bitten by stray dogs, were under care of physicians today while police engaged in a determined hunt for the animals.

Three children were bitten by a large collie which terrorized the Larimer avenue neighborhood.

Barthol De Luca, 3, of 46 Carver street, may lose the sight of his right eye as a result of being attacked by the dog while playing in front of his home with his sisters, Carmel, 8, and Gloria, 6, it was said. He was taken to Pittsburgh Hospital.

Two other victims, Robert Amen, 7, of 114 Mayflower street, and, Evangeline Tomemarello, 4, of 1520 Oakdeane street, were taken to the same hospital. Both were bitten on the face.

A call to East End police resulted in the animal's capture by Patrolmen Charles J. Nixon and James Enright.

Police were searching for another dog which bit Viola Williams, 6, a Negro, of 7228 Susquehanna street, as she was returning home from Sunday school. She was bitten on the right cheek and was treated at Pittsburgh hospital.

Other victims reported were John Doyle, 10, of 6215 Hoeveler street; Elaine Naumaff, 4, of 5506 Baywood street and Loretta Hauck, 8, of 404 North Sheridan avenue. All were bitten on the cheek while walking or playing on the street near their homes.

Execution of Afghan Usurper Confirmed

DELHI, India, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Dispatches received here confirmed the report that Bacha Sakao, deposed usurper of the Afghan throne, and a number of his followers had been executed.

Nadir Khan, newly elected king, who had pardoned the prisoners, was described as having yielded to demands of Afghan tribesmen from the south and west. The usurper's two brothers, Muhammad Sadiq and Saived Hussein, were named as among those shot.

Soviet Gunboats, Planes Captured

TOKIO, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Chinese sources in Harbin, Manchuria, today said two Soviet gunboats and two Soviet airplanes had been captured in fighting between Chinese and Russians at Fuchinhsien.

An earlier telegram from Harbin said severe fighting had taken place there and that Chinese troops had retired 60 miles in the direction of Huachuan.

changed. Prominent business and administration leaders hastened to assure the country that fundamental conditions were sound and the bankers' consortium announced that no meeting would be held today.

On the New York Curb prices were mixed at the opening. Standard Oil of Indiana was one of the features, opening on a block of 10,000 shares at 55⅛, up a point, followed by a block of 70,000 shares at the same price.

Cities Service opened on the Curb with a block of 225,000 shares, the largest opening transaction on record, at $41.87, a gain of $4.37 from Thursday's close. The transaction represented the matching up of an enormous number of small buying and selling orders, and it was after 11 a. m. when an opening price was finally decided upon.

END OF WILD PERIOD

Wall street accepted the gradual tapering off of the volume of trading as an evidence of the beginning of the end of the wild period of trading that has kept the whole country is an uproar for the last two weeks.

Those who looked for a skyrocketing opening of the market today, with the leaders jumping from 5 to 20 points, received a rude shock when the first prices of the day appeared on the tape. The trouble was that thousands of traders, in anticipation of such an opening, chose this as the ideal time to take profits on stocks purchased the low prices of last week.

Near the close of the market today the ticker was only a few minutes late. The tape had kept within 28 minutes of the market all day.

Realty Dealer, Freed In Killing, Ends Life

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—Stanley Hoffman, wealthy real estate broker, despondent for the past two years because of the shooting of a customer in his office, according to police, took poison here today and died a few hours later. The customer attacked Hoffman with a revolver during a quarrel. Hoffman shot him, police said, and was later vindicated by a coroner's jury.

MISSING U. S. NAVY MAN GIVES UP

Found After Disappearance, When Believed Slain, With Fund; Blame Woman

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—The mysterious disappearance of Lieut. Harold W. Northcutt from his station at Portsmouth, Va., since October 22, was partially cleared today when he was located at the Bremerton (Wash.) Navy Yard.

He was first believed to have been kidnaped or slain for $250, which he had collected for the University of Virginia.

According to advices received by the Navy Department, he surrendered to the authorities at Vancouver, B. C., and was then brought to the Bremerton yard, where he is being detained pending investigation.

Investigation by Department of Justice agents revealed Northcutt disappeared with a woman from Canada or had gone there to meet her. Letters showed that the young naval officer had been urged by the woman to leave his wife and marry her.

The lieutenant's wife and child are with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. C. Bryant, here. Bryant, a Washington newspaperman, said he knew of no reason for Northcutt's action.

TECHNICAL CHARGE

The only charge against Northcutt, according to the Navy, is a technical charge of desertion, due to the fact he disappeared from his post at Norfolk without leave.

Navy authorities are somewhat puzzled over the case. The young officer was one of the highest ranking members of his Annapolis class in 1923, and was sent to Massachusetts Tech for a post-graduate course. His active service record until the time of his disappearance was without a flaw and he was highly regarded by his superiors.

Investigation by Department of Justice agents has disclosed that while on duty at the Brooklyn Navy Yard 18 months ago Northcutt met a young Canadian woman and afterward corresponded with her. It was to meet the woman, apparently, that the young officer left his post.

LINK LOBBYIST, UTAH SENATOR

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—The Senate lobby investigating committee has decided to probe charges that a lobbyist for chemical and dye importers has been using a senator's office in the Capitol for a headquarters during the present tariff fight, it has been learned.

The lobbyist is Dr. Edward R. Pickrell, of 230 Fifth avenue, New York.

The office he is alleged to have used for a base of operations is that of Senator William H. King (Dem.), of Utah.

Dr. Pickrell has been mainly representing the General Dyestuff Corporation and other units in the chemical and dye industries associated with the German Dye Cartel A. I. G.

Senators Walsh (Dem.), of Montana, and Robinson (Rep.), of Indiana, have already made known that Dr. Pickrell will be called to testify. Senator Walsh, it is understood, has discussed the matter with Senator King.

Dr. Pickrell is a chemical expert. He was once in the government employ and has been particularly active in tariff matters for several years.

Senator King, Ill, May Enter Hospital

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Senator King, of Utah, who has been ill for the last three days from a stomach disorder, may enter Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore, it was said today at his office.

Doctors had advised the Senator to enter the hospital, but his friends said such a decision hinged on his condition during the day.

Chicago's New $20,000,000 Opera House Open Tonight

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Grand Opera, with the adjective in its fullest meaning, bows tonight from the stage of the world's newest home of music drama—the Chicago Civic Opera House.

Even the glitter and glamor of the opening opera, "Aida," is not calculated to outsparkle the genius behind the $20,000,000 structure which Samuel Insull, president of the Opera Company, has called "the splendid gift of Chicagoans to Chicago and the world."

Vying with the Verdi score will be the sparkle of a new "diamond horse shoe."

From New York, Pittsburgh and the Middle West, many were traveling here for tonight's opening.

Chicago society boxholders included Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, Samuel Insull, Edward Hines, Albert B. Dick, Cyrus H. McCormick, Edward F. and Gustavus F. Swift and Mrs. Jacob Baur among others. There are 31 mezzanine boxes.

Singing in "Aida" tonight will be Rosa Raisa in the name part, Charles Marshall, Cyrena Van Gordon, Caesar Formichi, Virgilio Lazzari, Chase Baromeo and Hilda Burke, under the baton of Georgio Polacco, musical director of the company.

A portion of "Aida" is to be broadcast over a nation-wide network, starting at 10 o'clock, Central time.

SON ACQUITTED IN 'MERCY KILLING'

Man's Right to End Mother's Suffering With Death Is Upheld by French Court

DRAGUIGNAN, Var, France, Nov. 4.—Once again the courts of France have replied in the affirmative on the question whether a man has the right to kill a fellow human to end the sufferings of illness.

Richard Corbett, 30-year-old Englishman, was acquitted of a charge of first-degree murder growing out of his slaying his mother last May. Corbett testified she was incurably afflicted with cancer, and that her suffering was unbearable.

So moving was Corbett's declaration, in which he said he was willing to pay any penalty the jury thought just, that one of the jurors broke down and it was necessary for the judge to suspend the trial while medical attention was given.

NO REGRET

Corbett, who is of French-English extraction, killed his mother on May 9 and then shot himself, but later recovered.

"I admit I killed my mother," said Corbett, calmly telling the judge and jury that he accepted full responsibility. "I knew what I was doing and do not regret the act."

Corbett, addressing the jury, said: "Gentlemen, my mother was suffering tortures. The doctors agreed she could not recover. I feel that though I broke the law I did right. I'm willing to pay any penalty you think just. My action would not have been necessary if the state would pass a law enabling doctors to end the suffering of incurables."

THREE BEAT GUARD, TAKE HIS GUN

Ohio Prisoners Saw Bars Of Penitentiary; Wounded Runaway Only One Caught

International News Service.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 4.—Two prisoners who were serving terms for robberies, sawed, slugged and shot their way to freedom from the Ohio State Penitentiary here this morning.

A third convict, Arthur Brooker, who is under sentence for murder, fled a short distance outside the prison, where he was captured, so seriously wounded that he may die. A 38-caliber dum-dum bullet went through his body.

Guard J. R. Montgomery was beated into unconsciousness after the three men had sawed through a new cell block considered "escape-proof."

Guy Tennant, 32, of Cuyahoga County, and Will Miller, 20, of Lawrence County, the convicts who escaped, were at large today.

The convicts had smuggled tools from the machine shop. They drilled through the top of a cellblock. There they threw a stone at a street light and broke it.

Guard Montgomery rushed from his position at a corner tower and was slugged. In the gun fight which followed Brooker was wounded.

The convicts had grabbed the shotgun of Guard Montgomery and they exchanged shots with two guards, whose posts were on the ground inside the walls.

A rope, which apparently had been made from bed clothing, was dropped to the outside and the men slipped down this to freedom.

KING IN LONDON; 'DEATH' HOAX

LONDON, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Vastly improved in health, King George arrived here at 12:30 p. m. today from Sandringham Castle, Norfolkshire, where he had spent the last few weeks shooting and hunting.

The King was accompanied by Queen Mary and little Princess Elizabeth, daughter of the Duke and Duchess of York.

The royal party proceeded immediately to Buckingham Palace, where yesterday prompt denial was made of wild and baseless rumors circulated in Paris that King George was dead.

His Majesty's restoration to health has been so marked in the past few weeks, it has now been decided he will spend as much time as possible at Sandringham. He will be in London the next few weeks transacting state business, according to present plans, returning to his palace here for the Christmas holidays. January, February and March will probably be spent in the southwest of England, where the climate is mild.

The improvement in the King's health since he came here last August has surprised even his attending physicians. To all outward appearances he is his old self again. He walks with a much firmer step than he did when he left London and his interest in all that is going on around him is as keen as ever.

Father Kills Son Protecting Mother

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—Dominick Alloca, a barrel maker, was being held by police today charged with the fatal stabbing yesterday of his 20-year-old son, Phillip, when the boy sought to save his mother a beating for withholding 7 cents of her wages.

Phillip, eldest of four children, aroused from sleep by his mother's screams, rushed to her aid. Enraged at the boy's interference, the father whipped out a pocketknife and stabbed him in the abdomen.

Saves 63 Years To Buy Stone For Mother

TWYFORD, England, Nov. 4.—George Enderby at the age of 70 has achieved his life's ambition. Recently he utilized his savings of 63 years for the erection of a tombstone to the memory of his mother, buried in the little churchyard here.

Enderby's mother died when he was 7. He decided then that he would regularly bank all his savings until he had sufficient to erect the memorial.

MOORE DIVORCE HEARING ON

Testimony was heard in Common Pleas Court today by Judge James H. Gray in the divorce action brought by William Moore, 733 North Highland avenue, who is seeking a divorce from his wife, Alice, on a charge of desertion.

Moore, son of the late John H. Moore of the stock brokerage firm of Moore, Leonard & Lynch, said his wife left him in 1925, after telling him she no longer cared for him. They were married in 1917.

Moore's attorney, Leonard A. Mazer, told the court efforts to effect a reconciliation have been futile. Judge Gray reserved his decision.

Graham in Capital For Conference

Louis E. Graham, whose nomination to be United States attorney for this district was confirmed last week by the Senate, was in Washington today, presumably to confer with Senator David A. Reed. He was expected to bring back with him his commission bearing the signature of President Hoover, and to be sworn in, as successor to John D. Meyer, soon afterward.

SHOWMAN SLAIN BY FAKE DRYS

EL PASO, Tex., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Glen Jones, 44, a concession owner with the Wortham Carnival Shows, was slain here tonight by two men, representing themselves as prohibition officers.

Police were working on two motives—revenge and robbery, although the several thousand dollars worth of diamonds that Jones wore, were not taken.

Jones and his wife were driving to the carnival lot when the two assailants drove up in another car and told Jones to drive to the curb, saying they were officers. When he stepped from the car they riddled his body with bullets.

Jones had been with the Wortham shows for 12 years.

THRICE DODGES ALTAR; HELD

Her first sweetheart paid her transportation from Jugo-Slavia to Clairton. They were to be married.

She met another man. They decided to be married, and applied for a marriage license. He repaid the transportation charges—$292—to Sweetheart No. 1.

And then she met the third sweetheart. They went to Wellsburg, W. Va., obtained a marriage license—and she changed her mind!

The second suitor hurried to Squire Samuels in Clairton and filed charges against her to recover the money.

"Im satisfied," announced the first.

"We'll still be married," predicted the third, "during Christmas season."

But the 'squire has held her for court, charged with obtaining money under false pretense.

All this happened within seven days, according to testimony.

The girl: Anna Runac, 18.

COURT HEARS 57 PADLOCK CASES

Final hearings on 57 padlock injunction suits against saloonkeepers, storekeepers and others were being held today before Judge F. P. Schoonmaker, in Federal Court. The liquor violations were committed in Pittsburgh and nearby towns as well as Somerset and Cambria counties.

George Schweiger, of Erie, pleaded guilty to liquor law violations here today and was sentenced to 45 days in the Erie County jail. Large quantities of home brew, wine and moonshine was seized in his store September 21.

Fireman Injured In Train Wreck

SIOUX LOOKOUT, Ont., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—A fireman was badly scalded and an engineer escaped injury by jumping as Canadian National Railways passenger train No. 1 struck a large boulder, which derailed the engine and tender at Kenyon, Ont.

Reports of the accident were meager and it was not known whether any others besides the fireman, J. Kibbie, were injured. A wrecking train carrying doctors and nurses were dispatched from here to make the 90-mile run to Kenyon.

Here's Real Test For Would-Be Policemen

BELFAST, Ireland, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—Police officers seeking promotion in Ulster were compelled recently to pass a "How-much-do-you-know?" test, to which Grover Whelan, police commissioner of New York City, might well cock an ear.

Among the questions asked were:

"Who was the tinker who wrote a famous book?"

"What book did he write?"

"What is the theme of it?"

"Who was the emperor who fiddled while Rome burned?"

"Where did he live?"

"Can you name any great religious leader who lived at the the same time?"

"Write a short essay on Amanullah, his troubles and their cause."

"Explain the presence of rust on nails, soot in chimneys, sand on the seashore, and deltas at the mouth of rivers."

Only 25 per cent of the men taking the test passed.

WOMEN OPPOSE KAROLYI'S VISIT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Fight to prevent the Count and Countess Karolyi from entering the United States was reopened by the Woman Patriot Association in a letter to Secretary of State Stimson.

Count and Countess Karolyi after four previous attempts during the terms of office of Secretaries Hughes and Kellogg were finally granted passport visas by Secretary Stimson, October 28.

The "undisclosed new facts, if any" that prompted revision of the State Department's previous rulings on the famous Karolyi case are requested in the letter which was signed by Mary G. Kilbreth, president of the association.

The letter indicated that the organization contemplates an appeal to the Labor Department which now has the Karolyi case under consideration, in an effort to block the entrance of the Count and Countess to this country.

REPORTERS GO BACK TO JAIL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—Three Washington Times reporters, sentenced to 45 days in jail for refusing to divulge to a grand jury the sources of their information in a current bootlegging expose, returned to jail today after having been at liberty since last Thursday on writs of habeas corpus.

Counsel for the reporters withdrew the writs before Justice Siddons in District Supreme Court today and prepared to go before the Court of Appeals with a petition to allow the reporters liberty on bond pending appeal of the contempt citation to higher courts.

'TIGER' PICKS BOOK TITLE

PARIS, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—The title of the forthcoming book of Georges Clemenceau, former French premier, on which he has worked so assiduously during his recent illness, is "Grandeur and Misery of a Victory."

The author today informed a friend, Marcel Hutin, of the Echoe De Paris, that he had finished the last chapter, but he admitted that in correcting proofs of other chapters he had modified them considerably and consequently did not know when it would be ready for the printers.

suit in Common Pleas Court. His attorney, Frank J. Zappala, announced that in the statement of claims which he promised to file in a few days Amato would ask $100,000 for injuries to his reputation.

Amato signalized his arrival by inviting Miss Beegie to the Mosque tonight to hear him in "Il Trovatore."

"UNETHICAL," HE SAYS

"And then she will see if Amato is a 'has-been,'" stormed the star. "And then she will hear dozens of young Pittsburgh and American women sing, and she will know what a municipal opera company can do."

That was the reply majestic from the former Metropolitan baritone who, last appearing here with Caruso, returns for tonight's presentation "not for the money—that means little to me now, but for the aid I can give the struggling young singers who have no chance to become opera singers, unless their cities furnish them the opportunity."

"I am not temperamental," Amato said. "I have a faculty of holding my temper. But I think the statement attributed to that woman is both irritating and unethical. I have an international reputation. I am somebody.

"Had a critic said as much, I might have felt the comment. It would have been his privilege. That woman is not only unethical, but unbusinesslike. If she believes I am a 'has-been' she should read the notices in the press in cities where I sing. She should read in Boston, where I am assisting in a venture similar to that in Pittsburgh. I came to Pittsburgh to assist a new municipal opera. I am sincerely interested in such ventures.

"If necessary to prove myself, I shall go into court and sing for the judge, who can easily decide whether I'm a 'has-been.' Such a remark is ridiculous and vicious."

CHEERS GREET MACDONALD

LONDON, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Taking his place on the front bench of the House of Commons for the first time since his return from his notable visit to America, Prime Minister MacDonald was greeted with loud cheers from the members today. Many of them rose to their feet and waved their order papers in salute.

Mr. MacDonald, resuming the leadership of the government in the Commons, found a packed house awaiting what promises to be a highly important utterance on unemployment from J. H. Thomas, lord privy seal and minister of employment.

This is an issue that friends and foes of labor are watching with the keenest attention, and the government's handling of it has a vital bearing on its fate.

Former Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin added to the warmth of his successor's reception by extending him "a warm welcome on behalf of everyone on the opposition side of the house.

Mr. Baldwin asked for an opportunity to discuss Indian affairs, in which he has been closely involved recently, and was assured by Mr. MacDonald that the question would be taken up Thursday.

Butcher Boy May Be Freed in Murder

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Fifteen persons were summoned for questioning today by District Attorney Burton Fitts in a new investigation of evidence involving the alleged innocence of Leo Pat Kelley, butcher boy, convicted of killing Mrs. Myrtle Mellus, his wealthy sweetheart.

Kelley was recently reprieved from the death sentence when the Supreme Court reduced the charge from murder to manslaughter.

Mrs. Josephine Kelley, mother of the convicted man, and Clark B. Lewis, brother of the slain woman, said the new evidence they will place before the district attorney contains possibility of an exoneration for Kelley and the indictment of another for the slaying of Mrs. Mellus.

Funeral Plans Made For Lee, Union Chief

CLEVELAND, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Plans for funeral services for William G. Lee, 70, former president and general secretary-treasurer of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, who died here Saturday, were completed. Burial will be tomorrow afternoon in Lakeview Cemetery, here. Services will be held in the Lee home where death occurred.

Death marked the end of a losing battle with cancer with which he became afflicted in 1917. Since then he had been under the care of physicians for a greater part of the time.

Woman's Hat, Veil In Hollow, No Body

A woman's hat and veil, taken to Oakland Police Station early today by a man who said he found them in the middle of the Panther Hollow Bridge, Schenley Park, sent police into the hollow under the span in search of the owner's body. Search of the vicinity and of Panther Lake at one end of the structure failed to bear out their fears of a suicide. It was believed that the hat was lost by an occupant of an automobile.

Patrolman Henry Buckholt, of 1922 Carson street, today was formally charged with beating up a brother-in-law, Louis Sauers, of 91 South Twenty-fourth street, and shooting the brother-in-law's son, William Sauers, of 2320 Sidney street.

Father and son filed information against Buckholt, who has been suspended, before Justice of the Peace E. B. Bishop, of Mt. Lebanon. Shot in the shoulder, the son is recovering.

The attack followed a quarrel started by Buckholt, who was intoxicated, police reported.

NEW AIR LINE'S PLANE BACK

Ted Taney, pilot, and Mrs. F. LeMoyne Page, co-pilot of one of the two planes of the Pittsburgh-New York air route of the Pittsburgh Airways, Inc., forced down in Harrisburg Saturday, on the first westbound trip of the new line, arrived at Bettis Field at 5 p. m. yesterday. The plane carried no passengers.

Robert Dake, pilot, and Mrs. Louise McPhetridge Thaden, co-pilot of the second ship, remained in Harrisburg last night. Officials of Bettis Field said that they did not think they would take off from that city until sometime today.

Trucks Gathering 'Bundle Week' Gifts

Trucks today were gathering cast-off clothing from Pittsburgh homes as the second day of the annual "Bundle Week" of the Pittsburgh Association for the Improvement of the Poor got under way. All clothing taken in is renovated and distributed to needy persons.

Wednesday has been set aside as "Gift Day," when school children will join in the drive.

Dog Takes His Nap On 'L' Tracks, 8 Injured

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—A police dog that used the tracks of the Bay Ridge elevated line in Brooklyn as a place for a nap today caused a collision of two elevated cars and slight injury to eight persons.

As one of the cars rounded a curve, Motorman Manson Hume saw a figure on the tracks. He stopped the car to make sure it was not the figure of a man. Ten minutes were consumed in capturing the dog.

Just as the car was about to start off again, another car rounded the curve and crashed into the first. Eight persons were injured, none seriously. Motorman Hume suffered a sprained shoulder.

While an ambulance physician attended the injured, the dog ran away.

Pilot Seeks Reward For Finding Plane

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Steps toward collection of reward of $10,000 by George Rice, Western Air Express pilot, for discovery of the wreckage of the Transcontinental Air Transport liner City of San Francisco were taken by Kent Allen, attorney here.

Allen announced that releases from crew and passengers as requested by the TAT have been signed and are being forwarded by him to the legal department of the TAT at Washington, D. C. He expressed belief that upon receipt of these in Washington the $5,000 checks now being held there will be forwarded to Pilot Rice.

Hit-and-Run Driver Injures Aged Man

Suffering from a skull fracture, Thomas Foley, 60, address unknown, was in a serious condition in Mercy Hospital, a victim of a hit-and-run driver. Police were informed that an automobile containing four Negroes struck the aged man at Forbes and Magee streets, late last night and failed to stop.

CARR IN U. S. CUSTODY

Regis Carr, Twenty-second Ward political worker, was turned over by police to federal authorities today to face a charge of possessing goods stolen from an interstate shipment.

Two radios valued at $120 each, stolen from a Baltimore and Ohio railroad freight car at Ninth street and Duquesne way October 21, are alleged to have been found in Carr's home, 509 West General Robinson street.

Carr originally was docketed as "Ronald Carer" by city detectives who explained they wanted to "cover up" search for the person who stole 14 radio sets from the car.

Another Street Car Dynamited in Strike

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—A new bomb explosion today increased the vigil of police who have been given the alternative of keeping down flares of violence in the long New Orleans strike or losing their jobs.

A car on Desire street was dynamited this morning. No one was hurt, although the vehicle was damaged to the extent of $500. The explosion followed a rather quiet week-end.

RAIL CROSSING, CRAFTON ISSUE

Crafton has a spirited race for Council in the First Ward. The candidates are W. Harry Newell and T. J. Fitzpatrick, the incumbent. T. J. Craig's name will appear on the ballot as the Democratic nominee, but he urges his supporters to vote for Newell.

The principal issue is on the question of grade crossing elimination. Newell favors an overhead viaduct, while Fitzpatrick is said to prefer a passage under the railroad.

Fitzpatrick's supporters urge in his behalf that he saved the borough $20,000 through an agreement with the Pittsburgh Railways Company for the re-paving of Noble avenue. Newell's friends rejoin that under the railways company's franchise it should have paid 77 per cent of the paving costs, whereas under the Fitzpatrick agreement the company paid only 60 per cent. Fitzpatrick declined today to answer this contention.

ATWATER KENT RADIO

Prices Reduced $27

WE are happy to announce today a reduction of $27 in the price of Atwater Kent Screen-Grid Radio.

This is Atwater Kent's way of joining with the leaders of other great industries to stabilize the public's dollar for the prosperity of the country.

Hundreds of thousands of people want Atwater Kent Screen-Grid Radio right now. By these price reductions we are putting the finest radio set within the reach of everyone—just when most purchasers of radio are ready to do their buying.

This company owns outright its business and its manufacturing plant. It has done business on its own capital for twenty-seven increasingly profitable years and has never borrowed a dollar. Today it is in the strongest position it has ever held.

For the past seven months we have been making Screen-Grid Radio in the largest and most efficient radio factory in the world.

Concentrating on one job—the production of the finest radio that can be built—enables the Atwater Kent Manufacturing Company again to share with the public the savings of our large-scale operation.

These price reductions mean the greatest value ever offered in Atwater Kent Radio.

TUNNEY'S SUIT STARTS NOV. 14

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Nov. 4.—(INS.)—Depositions to be used in the $500,000 alienation suit brought by John S. Fogarty, former Fort Worth (Tex.) plumbing contractor, against James J. (Gene) Tunney, retired world heavyweight champion, will be taken here November 14, R. Bruce Cotham, appointed to take the depositions, said.

Fogarty in his suit charges that Tunney alienated the affections of his wife, Katherine Fogarty, of Fort Worth and New York. Mrs. Fogarty also brought a $500,000 suit against the retired champion, charging breach of promise.

Fogarty's lawyers hope to find evidence here of Tunney's association with Mrs. Fogarty, it is said. Several prominent persons have been subpenaed to appear in the law offices of Fogarty's counsel here November 14, it was learned.

The depositions will be sent to Bridgeport when they are completed.

Aliquippa Man Held On Mann Act Charge

David Bianchi, 30, of Aliquippa, Pa., was arrested today by Deputy United States Marshal J. H. Irons on a warrant charging violation of the Mann act. He is alleged to have transported Philomena Paolina from Pittsburgh to Detroit in an automobile November 6, 1926. He was held pending a hearing for removal to Detroit before a United States commissioner.

AIR-MARKING HIGH SCHOOL'S ROOF

STUDENTS PAINTING SIGN FOR AVIATORS' GUIDANCE OVER PITTSBURGH

Pupils at Perry High School, North Side, making the air sign which they painted on the school roof to guide aviators to the nearest field, the Pittsburgh-Butler airport.

PERRY PUPILS PAINT AIR SIGN

Under the leadership of John H. Adams, principal of the Perry High School, North Side, students there have painted a large sign on the roof of the schoolhouse for the guidance of aviators.

The work was done jointly by the Lettering Club and the Aero Club. James J. McKeon is sponsor for the Lettering Club and Edward A. Carlin sponsor for the Aero Club, and the members declare much of the credit for the enterprise belongs to them.

"PITTSBURGH" has been painted on the school roof in letters 20 feet high. In addition, the sign has an arrow pointing in the direction of the Pittsburgh-Butler airport.

Three Men Set Record Making Street Blocks

DUNBAR, Pa., Nov. 4.—With a record production of 145,000 paving blocks during October, the New Castle Lime and Stone Company has given special recognition to the work of three employes believed to have established a world record.

Arthur Peterson, 38, a Norwegian, who began his trade at the age of 8 in his native land, produced 606 blocks in a single eight-hour shift, and two brothers, James and William Henderson, 26 and 22, respectively, turned out 1,030 in the same time. Average output for eight hours is 200 to 250 blocks per man. The Henderson brothers are natives of Scotland, coming here a year ago.

Twenty-eight men established the Dunbar quarry record. All blocks are produced by hand, sledges and chipping hammers being used. The entire output this year is for use in Pittsburgh.

Scottish Students Honor Churchill

EDINBURGH, Scotland, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Winston Churchill, former Chancellor of the Exchequer, has been elected Lord Rector of Edinburgh University. He received 864 votes. G. K. Chesterton, the author, received 593 and Mrs. Sidney Webb, wife of Lord Passfield, 332.

The lord rector of the university is elected every three years by the students.

ATWATER-KENT CUTS PRICES

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4.—Public participation in the savings made possible by large scale-operations and modern manufacturing efficiency is emphasized in the announcement by A. Atwater Kent, the world's largest manufacturer of radio receiving equipment, of a $27 reduction in the price of Atwater Kent screen grid radio sets.

"Stabilizing the public dollar for the prosperity of the country," is the way Mr. Kent describes his action in sharing the savings of his increased facilities with the buying public. The Atwater Kent factory here was approximately doubled in size last spring by the completion of a new 16½-acre addition.

New Type House Bans Cold, Noise

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—A new type of house has walls and floors made of double layers of a substance like synthetic leather with the air exhausted from between the layers so that the vacuum will insulate against sound and cold. The plan of R. Buckminster Fuller, of New York, is praised by Prof. Shirley Warner Morgan, of Princeton University, as a step toward the necessary revolution in housebuilding which he foresees.

GIANT AIRSHIP UP 14 HOURS

CARDINGHAM, England, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—The dirigible R-101 was hitched to her mooring mast yesterday after her first all-night flight which lasted 14 hours.

The huge airship, carrying a full crew and in command of Maj. Scott, carried out speed and altitude tests on the southern coast in the vicinity of the Isle of Wight.

During the final operations for hooking the dirigible to the mast, the air ship bumped her nose and tore the envelope, but the structural damage was slight. It was reported that during the flight three engines gave some trouble because of bends in the pipe of the cooling apparatus splitting. These were repaired with rubber hose.

The operation in each case took about an hour. Officials said the experience proved the vibration in the engines too violent for duralumin pipes. They will be replaced by larger copper pipes. The airship will be ready for flight Tuesday.

Fall from Chair Fatal to Woman

Mrs. Katherine Heiser, 85, of 930 Broadway, McKees Rocks, died yesterday in St. Francis Hospital, following injuries she received more than a week ago when she fell from a chair.

Mrs. Heiser was rocking, according to morgue reports, when she fell, sustaining a fractured left leg and a fractured left hip. She was taken to the hospital October 26.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

Babcock Answered By the Consolidated Ice Company

To the Citizens of Pittsburgh:

E. V. Babcock, as the mouthpiece of the political machine, adhering to his and its established practice of maliciously and falsely attacking every business enterprise that refuses to surrender to its political will and domination, made a slurring attack upon this company and its 500 stockholders—all Pittsburghers—to the effect that this company "tried to cheat the City of Pittsburgh out of a water bill amounting to $90,000." Babcock's excuse for this attack was the fact that Thomas A. Dunn, an official of this company, happens at this time to be a candidate for Mayor.

The statement of Babcock is absolutely false. The water system of Pittsburgh is a public utility service. Were it privately owned, the Public Service Commission would have supervision over the rate, in the same manner as it controls all other utility rates — railroads, street railways, telephone, gas, electricity, etc. The rates of the city water system are municipally controlled; when their rates are unjust, relief must be sought from the city or through the Courts. Our litigation, to which Babcock refers, grew out of the fact that the Pittsburgh water rate for manufacturing purposes was unjust, unreasonable and confiscatory; it handicaps and cripples existing industries and prevents new industries from coming to Pittsburgh. Pittsburgh water rate for manufacturing purposes, as compared with other cities, is as follows:

Pittsburgh	12c	per 1000 gallons
Philadelphia	5.34c	per 1000 gallons
Buffalo	5.34c	per 1000 gallons
Detroit	5.64c	per 1000 gallons
St. Louis	6.68c	per 1000 gallons
Cleveland	8c	per 1000 gallons

This company sought to compel Pittsburgh to establish a fair rate that would conform to rates in the other cities, which are Pittsburgh's competitors. This company spent two (2) years in an effort to secure equitable rates from the Babcock administration. In this effort, it had the support of Councilman Garland and several other members of the Pittsburgh Council. The prohibitory water rates of the City of Pittsburgh, to manufacturers, and the inequitable tax burdens that have been placed upon industry in Pittsburgh, in recent years, are the contributory causes for new industries refusing to locate in Pittsburgh.

$6,500,000 TO REORGANIZE PRISONS

New Penitentiary Planned In North Atlantic Area; Riots Laid to Poor Food

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Citing recent riots in prisons as due to inadequate housing conditions and poor food, Attorney General Mitchell has revealed a comprehensive reorganization plan for Federal prisons, including a $6,500,000 five-year building program.

This program has been approved by President Hoover's budget bureau and awaits only the action of Congress. It provides:

Construction of a new federal penitentiary with capacity of 1,200 somewhere in the North Atlantic states.

A new industrial reformatory similar to the one at Chillicothe, O., to serve territory west of the Mississippi River, with a capacity of 1,200.

Three new jails or houses of detention—one in the North Central states, one on the Pacific coast and one in the Central South.

JAILS ARE INNOVATION

Heretofore the federal government has not provided jails of its own for jail prisoners, but has rented accommodations in state and county jails, a practice which was severely censured by a congressional investigation committee.

In outlining his reorganization plan to remedy the present deplorable prison conditions over a widespread radio network address, Mitchell said:

"The immediate and direct cause of the recent disorder among the prisoners at Leavenworth penitentiary was dissatisfaction with the food.

OVERCROWDING BLAMED

"The underlying causes were overcrowding and lack of work to keep the prisoners occupied. Overcrowding means overtaxing of the housing and feeding facilities, with poorly prepared and served food, and that, coupled with idleness, frays the nerves of the prisoners and results in the flareup of nervous excitement and consequent disorders.

"The second essential improvement is to provide employment for the prisoners. This has heretofore met opposition from industry, both capital and labor, on the ground that products of convict labor compete with outside business.

"This is a very selfish opposition. Products of federal prisons are to be used only by the federal government, and the quantity is too small to be an important factor in competition with private enterprise."

Pedestrians Avoid Darkened Tunnel

Pedestrians avoided the Washington street tunnel under Bigelow boulevard for several hours last night because of darkness. Residents of the Hill district seeking a short cut turned back when they observed there was no light in the tunnel. Fearing footpads, they walked almost two squares to Seventh avenue. City employes said the bulbs burned out.

Alcohol Found Cause Of Film Man's Death

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(A.P.)—After a chemical analysis at Bellevue Hospital, officials reported alcoholism as the cause of death of Leo D. Maloney, motion picture producer, director and actor, who died Saturday at the Hotel Astor.

The finding corroborated that of an assistant medical examiner.

Wilkinsburg A. A. A. To Elect Officers

The annual meeting for the election of officers will be held tomorrow night by the A. A. A. of Wilkinsburg in the Penn-Lincoln Hotel. Reports will be given, club room pictures shown and lunch served in addition to a program of entertainment.

BOB ARMSTRONG HAS A 'PAST' THAT INVOLVES WHITE VEST AND SCHOOL ORATION

By DOROTHY HERZOG
(Copyright, 1929, by Premier Syndicate)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 4.—

IN A recent laboratory film fire, 30,000 feet of "Hell's Angels" was destroyed. "My, my," sighed a wit. "There went all the credit titles!"

Lila Lee

Lila Lee has been a-yachting with the Roland Wests. Lila, by the by, may be signing a long term Fox contract when she gets around to it. They're ker-razee for her in a big celluloid way on that lot.

Robert Ames, a Broadway-ite gone talky—at present, "They Knew What They Wanted," with Vilma Banky and Edward Robinson—has been married five times. That's appropos of absolutely nothing.

Bob Armstrong's past comes back to haunt him. When Bob graduated from eighth grade grammar school in Bay City, Mich., he delivered an oration on "A Plea for the Immigrant." As though that were not enough, he insisted that his mother buy him a white vest for the occasion. Which she did. But Bob lost courage at the crucial moment and buttoned the beautiful representative of haberdashery out of sight.

June Collyer

everybody came kiddishly garbed. Present were: Elsie Janis and her mother; the John Pattersons; the Robert Ames; the James Gleasons, Hedda Hopper, Julanne Johnstone, Margaret Livingstone, Bee Palmer, John Murray Anderson, Howard Greer, William Haines, Jimmy Shields, Roger Davis, the Duncan Sisters—without Nils Asther; Harry Richman—without Clara Bow; the Joseph Schildkrauts, and umpty ump others. Whiteman's orchestra played several numbers, including the "Rhapsody in Blue." One of his musicians solo-ed "Yankee Doodle" on an automobile pump, believe it or not, and a good time had by all.

June Collyer is en route to New York for a vacation. Certainly "Buddy" Rogers put her aboard the train. This still threatens to be serious.

Jack Kirkland Is Coming Home

MR. A. W. STOCKMAN, secretary of the Motion Picture Relief Fund, writes to correct a slightly erroneous statement made in this colyum a few days ago . . . "Miss Mary Pickford," writes Mr. Stockman, "is president of the Motion Picture Relief Fund, and it is for this organization that she intends to sponsor a charity ball probably early this winter. It will be held in Los Angeles." This bureau in its clumsy fashion, stated it would be held in New York.

Nancy Carroll

George Kotsonaros is a W. K. character ektor in the outlouds. He recently finished a role in Billy Wellman's production of Joseph Conrad's "Victory." Kotsonaros is also a wrestler. He is rated one of the wealthy citizens in the colony. He bought Bank of Italy stock in its infancy and is still collecting golden nuggets. Um, when this genial but treacherous looking mortal works, he clunks in five hundred berries a week.

In case any one is interested, Nancy Carroll is buying herself a new wardrobe. Jack Kirkland, her husband, is coming home. Love's like-a-thata. Incidentally, Miss Carroll has moved from a house to an apartment. Her four-year-old youngster, Patricia, is also under the new roof.

Shalom Sisterhood Arranges Dance

Arrangements have been completed for the annual fall dance to be held by Beth Shalom Sisterhood in Webster Hall, November 13. The cabaret style, successfully used at previous functions will again be in vogue. A program of entertainment has been arranged as a feature. Mrs. Joseph Rosenberg is chairman of the general committee.

Student Members Arrange Musical

Student members of the Y. M. & W. H. A. are arranging for a musical to be held at the "Y" Thursday, November 14. Following the dance to be held tomorrow night, the council will renew activities to make the later event a success.

MIRTH, SONG IN BILLS OF WEEK

"Little Accident," a laugh hit of the last season in New York, in which Thomas Mitchell plays the leading part, comes to the Shubert Alvin for an engagement of one week, opening this evening, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

Tonight in the Nixon there will be presented "The Silver Swan," an operetta employing more than 100 players, singers and dancers.

"Why Girls Leave Home" is this week's offering of the George Sharp Players in the Shubert Pitt.

The Gayetay opens its doors this afternoon for Dr. M. Sayle Taylor's stage presentation, "Married Love." The entire week is set aside for women only. There will be four shows daily, 1, 3, 7 and 9 p. m.

"Animal Crackers," the latest tomfoolery of the four Marx Brothers, comes to the Shubert Alvin for an engagement opening next Monday night. Matinees will be given Wednesday and Saturday.

Opening Monday evening, November 11, the attraction in the Nixon will be a return engagement of the Theater Guild production, "Porgy." This play is not included in the regular plays of the second subscription season of the Theater Guild. The same cast will appear that was here last season.

Next week's offering in the Shubert Pitt by the George Sharp Players will be "The Rose of Picardy," by DeWitt Newing.

Rosa Raisa to Broadcast From Chicago Theater

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Sun-Telegraph Radio Editor.

FROM the stage of the new $20,000,000 Chicago Civic Theater, radio fans tonight will hear two scenes of Verdi's opera, "Aida."

A part of act three which contains several of the most noted arias of the work will be picked up direct from the stage with Rosa Raisa in the title role and Charles Marshall supporting her as Rhadames, the victorious commander. WCAE will have this outstanding broadcast at 11 o'clock.

Other good things include an old-fashioned barn dance from KQV at 8:15; Sousa's Band over WCAE at 9:30; a talk by "Biff" Jones, West Point football coach, from WJAS at 10 p. m. and the appearance of Bob MacGimsey, harmony whistler, with the Empire Builders through KDKA at 10:30 o'clock.

Margery Lieberman Silkovitz.

Margery Lieberman Selkovitz, pianist, who has been heard over local stations on several occasions, will offer concert arabesques on the "Blue Danube Waltz" in the WJAS studio at 7.

Favorites of Chief Justice William Howard Taft will be played by the Edison Recorders during the 9 o'clock concert over KDKA.

The ever lovely "My Beautiful Lady" will be included in the Gypsies' concert, WCAE at 8:30.

Really getting funnier each week the Real Folks tonight will let us in on election day activities at Thompkins Corner. Tony, Mrs. Templeton Jones' Italian gardener, will apply for his second citizenship papers when the feature goes on KDKA at 9:30.

We Now Present

Otto Gray and his Cowpunchers, furnishing an original entertainment with banjos, violins and harmonicas, were to strut their stuff in the KDKA studios this afternoon. The boys wade right into the studio in sombreros, high boots 'n everything. They're good.

The KDKA boys put on a wonderful show to celebrate the beginning of their tenth year of broadcasting. Everybody was happy, especially Lou Kaufman. Lou, the second oldest announcer in the business, got a great "kick" out of the event.

We remember when KDKA's studio staff could be counted on one hand. Let's see, there were G. Dare Fleck, P. A. Boyd, Victor Saudek, Louis Kaufman and Alyce Wheeler. Later Frederick G. Rodgers, R. P. Griffith, Alice King Roop, Walter G. Myers, Stephen Leyshon, Marquis Chisholm, Glenn Riggs, Alex Sherwood, and lots of others . . . so numerous we might use this whole column naming them.

Just goes to show how the pioneer has grown. There was a day when we could walk into the lone studio on Liberty avenue without being observed but now to gain entrance at the William Penn quarters we must first present a card.

Went to a Halloween party at the home of Frances Doherr, manager of WCAE and everybody had a good time. Learned that the Doherrs have a radio in every room—six of them. Also learned that one should not bid 10 No Trump without the joker.

The Doherrs have a do-funny alarm clock that starts the radio going at 7:30 in the morning. This contraption is in Eddie's room. Eddie is Mrs. Doherr's husband and manager of Gimbel's Radio Department.

TODAY'S TID BIT:

Bob MacGimsey, who whistles for us tonight on the Empire Builders program over KDKA at 10:30, was admitted to the bar in 1923, but has been so lionized by the public that he has never had time to plead a case.

Love in Spanish Legend
An old Spanish legend concerning the bells of San Gabriel Mission in Southern California with the love story of an early pioneer will be dramatized.
Priests sent from the City of Mexico founded the Mission in 1771. They were accompanied by an armed guard led by a young man who had left his sweetheart behind. In a fight with Indians the commander was injured and rescued by a young Indian girl. She took him into the forest and nursed him back to health.
When the soldier's sweetheart learned of his disappearance, she mourned him as dead. In his memory she cast her jewels into the molten metal from which the bells of the Mission were being made. To further show her love for him she accompanied the bells to their dedication at the Mission. There she found the young commander who had returned.
Bob MacGimsey, noted whistler, will be featured on this program. He is said to be the only person able to whistle two notes at the same time.

STOMACH TROUBLE ?

"DIASTATIC DEFICIENCY" (failure to digest starches), causes more than one-half the cases of stomach trouble. Because of this deficiency, starchy foods remain in a semi-solid condition and refuse to move on as they should. This stoppage causes INDIGESTION, GAS, FERMENTATION, SOURNESS, SICK HEADACHE and other common troubles.
"TOO MUCH ACID" is the cause of almost all the remaining half of our stomach troubles.
ACIDINE is the FIRST COMPLETE REMEDY for STOMACH TROUBLE—an ANTI-ACID, STARCH DIGESTANT, MEAT DIGESTANT.
Sold by your druggist under a money-back guarantee to help in YOUR case.

JEFFERY NOT TO SERVE

R. C. Jeffery, auditor of Mt. Lebanon Township, judge of election in the Second District of the First Ward, and a candidate for re-election to both offices, will not sit on the election board tomorrow, and had no intention of sitting, he said Saturday. This was in answer to citizens who went into court and asked that he be restrained from officiating as judge of election, on the ground that he ought not to be the judge of his own election.

Out of Employment, Man Kills Himself

Despondency over his failure to obtain employment prompted Charles Dittrich, 63, of 1159 Voskamp street, to kill himself in his home last night, police said. Dittrich, said to have been out of work for three years, was found hanging from a rafter in the basement.

Safe Fails to Open, Cracksmen Balked

Safecrackers who operated in the G. A. Schnelbach grain and feed store, at 344 Sheridan avenue, East End, early today were rewarded with nothing. After they had knocked the combination dial off the safe, it still failed to open.

KONJOLA PROVED DEADLY FOE TO DREAD NEURITIS

Pittsburgh Man Relates Fine Experience With New and Different Medicine.

Here is abundant cheer and hope for all who suffer from neuritis and who may fear there is no relief for them from the pangs of this dread disease. Konjola, the new and different medicine, is daily winning victory after victory over this ailment.

MR. GEORGE MILLER

At the same time this super-remedy has proved supreme in the obstinate and stubborn cases of stomach, liver, kidney and bowel troubles and rheumatism and nervousness. You can get all the facts about this medicine, you can learn what it means to you in your search for health and you can learn what it has done for countless local men and women from the two Konjola Men in Pittsburgh. One is at the Dow Drug Store (formerly McCulloch's), Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, and the other is at the Dow Drug Store (formerly McCulloch's), Diamond and Smithfield Streets, Pittsburgh. Do not expect promises, claims or theories, for they will tell you only the true, verified facts about this medicine. Hear what Konjola has done and then profit from the experience of others. Take for a typical example of Konjola at work the case of Mr. George Miller, 237 Paul Street, Mt. Washington, Pittsburgh, who said to a Konjola Man a few days ago:

"Let me tell you of my amazing experience with Konjola and then you judge for yourself as to its merits. If Konjola were tried in the first place there surely would be much suffering escaped.

"Neuritis and rheumatism had been the bane of my life for many, many years. The pains were so severe that often I thought I would be unable to bear them any longer. My muscles and joints became so sore and stiff that it was practically impossible for me to move. I could not raise my arms above my head. My kidneys were also in a weakened condition and during the night my sleep was disturbed four or five times. Nervousness was the natural result and as the days passed my condition rapidly became worse.

"Desperately I sought the right medicine for my case. All I tried failed me. I was ready to give up hope when I read how Konjola had benefited a man with ailments similar to mine. Wisely I reasoned that what Konjola had done for others it would do for me. I secured several bottles and started the treatment. That was the turning point. Daily the pains became less severe and then like magic they vanished. Then Konjola strengthened my kidneys and made it possible for me to sleep soundly through the night; every night. Today I feel like a different person and I owe all my glorious health to Konjola. No wonder it is known as the world's finest medicine."

It is said that no sufferer can afford not to give Konjola a trial. It is a medicine for all the people, young and old. And what it has done for others it will do for you.

There is a Konjola Man at the Dow Drug Store (formerly McCulloch's), Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, and one at the Dow Drug Store (formerly McCulloch's), Diamond and Smithfield Streets, Pittsburgh, where they are meeting the public, introducing and explaining the merits of this master medicine.

Funny Kind of Shoe Soles Spread On With Knife

Free Sample Can of New Leather Paste Given Away.

A new leather paste has just been perfected which actually spreads soles on shoes like butter. Occasional applications of this amazing discovery prevent the original shoe sole from ever wearing out. It even builds up worn soles and keeps your shoes in shape to fit your feet. Leather paste dries in a few hours and both wears and looks like leather. It is flexible, waterproof, strong and restful to the feet.

The price of this leather paste is so ridiculously low that it will be demanded by 120,000,000 people. The inventor wants everybody to write in for information on this amazing product, and is giving a free can to agents who want to make from $15 to $40 per day, acting as distributor in their locality. Write or wire today to Universal Laboratories, Inc., Dept. 412-LD, Garver Bldg., Des Moines, Ia.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Three Make Bows This Week

THE first week of November will bring no less than three debut parties, one tomorrow, another one Wednesday, and still another one Thursday. And then there'll be weddings galore on Saturday, entertainments for brides-to-be, and benefit affairs, including the supper dance for everyone in the urban room of the William Penn Hotel this evening, sponsored by the Pittsburgh Free Dispensary Aid Society.

Before I tell you about plans for the first debut, I want to name the three buds of the week. They are Martha Edmondson, daughter of the Frederick W. Edmondsons; Ruth Drake, daughter of the J. Frank Drakes, and Mollie Cullum, daughter of the J. Barlow Cullums.

Martha will make her bow at a tea her mother will give in the University Club tomorrow afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock.

Aiding Mrs. Edmondson will be Mrs. Benjamin Page and her daughter, Mrs. Samuel Ringsdorf; Mrs. Frederick T. Billings, Mrs. James H. Reed, Jr., Mrs. John G. Frazer, Mrs. George C. Wilson, Jr., Mrs. C. M. Harnies, Mrs. Roger Knox, Mrs. George B. Raser, Mrs. T. Raymond Evans, Mrs. S. Murray Rust, Mrs. Thomas B. Hudson, Mrs. Norman McClintock, Mrs. Thomas Ewing, Mrs. Wilson Ferguson and Mrs. Vernon Taylor, of Indiana, Pa., a cousin of Mrs. Edmondson.

Mrs. Edmonson's mother, Mrs. Samuel Henderson, and her sister, Mrs. Lawrene Deemer, of Brookville, also will be at the tea.

And perhaps you'd like to know Martha's aids. Debs who'll assist her will be Frances Reed, Helen Pendleton, Ruth Drake, Caroline Crittenden, Mary Franklin Robinson, Anne Douglas Stewart, Mary Elizabeth Floyd, Marie Louise Bickford, Nancy Aliderdice, Laura Evans, Harriet Fickes, Margaret Rolfe Berger, Frances Johnston, Margaret Thompson, Jane Miller. And two girls who are not on the bud list also will be aids. Neil Stewart Zang and Betty McCance.

WORD has reached me that Mr. and Mrs. Howard Salisbury Evans have changed their plans for the debut of their daughter Laura. Instead of presenting her on December 17, they will have her meet their friends at a dinner dance they'll give on December 21 in the Pittsburgh Club.

I KNOW of still another event planned for December. Mrs. Oliver Ledlie Smith and Mrs. Wallace Wendell Smith, of St. James street, will give a luncheon in the University Club on Wednesday, December 4. And the guests of honor will be Peggy Stevenson and Mary Moody Stevenson, their nieces, who are daughters of the Alan Cooper Stevensons, of St. James street. And Mary Stevenson, need I mention, is a debutante this season.

IN honor of her daughter, Mrs. John Marion Baker, III, formerly Marion Hartwell Munroe, Mrs. Robert Munroe, Jr., of The Frontenac, will give a tea in the Pittsburgh Athletic Club Wednesday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock. And her aids will be Mrs. Clarence Burleigh, Jr., Mrs. James D. Munroe, Mrs. J. Willis Dalzell, Mrs. J. Loughney Roberts, Mrs. Edward Thompson, Frances Trimble, Ida Jeanette Burleigh, Marie Chalfant and Mrs. Robert C. Todd.

* * *

MRS. WALTER S. MELSER, of Crafton, announces the marriage of her niece, Miss Jean E. Trimble, to Cook C. Hadley, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Hadley, of Crafton. The ceremony took place in the First Presbyterian Church, of Pittsburgh, on Wednesday. The Rev. Dr. C. E. Macartney officiated.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE A. SMITH, of Beechwood boulevard, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Margaret Smith, to Malcolm R. Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph J. Taylor, of Baltimore, Md. Miss Smith is a graduate of Wellesley College, and her fiance was graduated from Cornell University. No date has been named for the wedding, which will take place in the early spring.

PITTSBRGH chapter of Trinity College Alumnae met yesterday at the home of Miss Rosemary Hanlon, Thomas boulevard. Mrs. M. J. Shortley, president of the local chapter, appointed these committees: Reception, Mrs. Herbert Mansmann, Miss Mary McKenna and Miss Dorothy May; publicity, Miss Rosemary Hanlon, Miss Kitty McSwigan, Miss Agnes Hartman, Miss Inez O'Donnell; entertainment, Miss Dorothy Walsh, Miss Mildred Kaveny and Miss Anna Marie Ryan; arrangements, Mrs. Paul Eichenlaub, Miss Margaret McQuade, Miss Dorothy Hamilton; welfare, Mrs. William H. Connell, Jr., Miss Florence Feeney and Miss Lucille Behan; nominating, Miss Loretta Lawlor and the officers.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. ALFRED D. NUTTER, of Ben Avon, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Grace Ida Nutter, to David Schreiber Cunningham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Cunningham, of Ben Avon. No wedding date has been named.

TRIO OF HATS EXPRESSES LATEST MILLINERY MODE

Sketched in Paris

Two Models Drawn By Suzy In Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Nov. 4.—Right about face! That is the order of the day for our hats. It is now all important that a hat should be right to the face, that is to say, it must be becoming, even flattering rather than just merely smart. For the past few seasons, many of us have chosen hats that were of an undeniable chic, but were often far from becoming to our type.

It is obvious that the evolution in the world of dress has spread to the realm of millinery, for the new hats seem all concerned with the mission of creating a delightful frame for the face, and completing the tout ensemble of the very feminine picture that is offered by the new clothes. The little fur caps, such as those of galyak and breitschwantz are very delightful and youthful, and many models have been purchased for export, by buyers representing exclusive shops.

SHOWN today, is a trio of delightful little hats, that we had sketched because they each were so expressive of the present mood of the millinery mode. The first is a lovable little toque from Jane Blanchot. It is of black felt turning back from the face with a row of spotted partridge breasts, with their soft and prettily marked plumage, across the forehead. A bit of the plumage is placed at one side on a loose tab of felt.

BOTH of the other hats are from Suzy, who is just now showing a number of draped velvet hats with brims. The model sketched is in navy blue milliner's velvet with a supple double-back brim laid in cartridge pleats. Shirring across the front of the crown creates a cluster of folds at each side, which still further carries on the good work of softening the silhouette.

THE other Suzy model is a jaunty little sport hat all of tweed in black and yellow, and bound with yellow grosgrain ribbon along the edge of the brim, with a small bow of the ribbon at the back. Now don't you agree that it is better to choose a hat which is becoming, rather than to sacrifice beauty at the expense of smartness? For there is not a face in the world that is not enhanced by the right frame.

Nature's Adoration ..... Beethoven

The Musical Society of the Young Men and Women's Hebrew Association gave its opening entertainment in the Memorial Auditorium last night before a large audience of muscal lovers. Sophie Braslau, a favorite contralto in Pittsburgh, was soloist in a program that ranged from a brilliant Italian air to the most dignified song of Beethoven. Between those extremes came every range of song, the playsong of French school children, "Sur le Pont d'Avignon," given as encore, the finest songs of Franz Schubert, and some excellent modern Italian melodies.

Miss Braslau's is a very deeply musical nature. Her understanding of the composer's intentions seems complete, and being an actress of no mean ability, she is able to interpret without resorting to violent methods in diction or stage deportment. Last night there was more variety than ever in her superb voice, less tendency to overwork the bigness of her voice than formerly. It would be a pity to do damage to that fine organ.

The Aria was sung with real fervor. There was anti-climax in "Doppeganger," but the favorite serenade was freshened with real charm, and the "Erlking," for a change, was not overdramatized, and actually sung as Schubert expected. The group of spirituals revealed the first "white" voice with a quality equal to these Negro hymns. In these songs Miss Braslau was at her best vocally, too, and fortunately kept them on a religiously emotional plane. Of the other songs, outstanding was Sadero's "Amuri-Amuri," a Sicilain carter's song, in which a most delicate use of parlando intermingled beautifully with tender pianissimo in a most musical way.

Louise Lindner played most of the accompaniments from memory and was an excellent second to the singer. The stage with its dull gold back-drop is always finely planned for such recitals.

Bazar Arranged By Luther League

The Luther League of St. John's Lutheran Church, McKees Rocks, has completed plans for its annual bazar to be held in the church auditorium Thursday, November 14. The event will open with a cafeteria lunch which will continue throughout the evening. Booths will be erected and an unusual program has been arranged.

WOMEN FAVOR CUT IN TAXES

The movement urging Congress to act on a downward revision of the Federal tax on earned incomes, has been indosed by the Mt. Lebanon women, many of whom have become signers and undertaken the circulating of petitions in their home communities.

The Mt. Lebanon campaign is in charge of Mrs. Agnes R. Joyce. The initial meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Carl Cappel, Jr., Inglewood drive, Beverly Heights. Mrs. Joyce explains that women have a particular interest in the movement to reduce taxes. Extraordinary expenditures in the home are not deductible she declares. The breadwinners health may become impaired, nevertheless, he must pay the same ratio of tax as when he was in his prime.

Bodies of British, Killed in 1759 Believed Found

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Discovery was announced here of two bodies, believed to be those of Gen. Trideaux and Col. Johnstone, British officers killed in 1759 during an attack on old Fort Niagara, then held by the French.

Workmen restoring the old fort, making excavations to locate the foundations of the French chapel known to have been there, came upon the bones yesterday.

Gen. Trideaux was in charge of the British troops which attacked the French fort and he and Col. Johnstone were killed two days before the fort was surrendered to British commanded by Sir William Johnson.

Monogrammed Gifts Are the Truly Personalized Gifts

Thoughtful gifts don't "grow" on the tree Christmas morning. They are the result of divining preparation months in advance—and no matter how perfect the gift, the added consideration of a personal note will make it doubly appreciated.

Whether it be a hand embroidered handkerchief, stamped aviator luggage, or a piece of lovely engraved silver, there is a pleasing sentiment behind it, for the presence of a monogram implies that there has been a measure of thoughtfulness given early in the season and not a haphazard, last-minute recollection.

Emphasizing that you place your orders for monogramming service immediately that you may have them promptly for Christmas, we suggest that personalized gifts may be made of the following:

Engraved Stationery
Monogrammed Luggage
Monogrammed Leathers
Monogrammed Stationery
Monogrammed Umbrellas
Hand Embroidered Linens
Men's Monogrammed Shirts
Hand Embroidered Handkerchiefs

FIVE-DOLLAR GOLD PIECES at 12 cents each

A very wise man once stood on London Bridge and tried to sell guineas at sixpence.

He didn't get ONE customer.

The proposition was out of the ordinary, and, coming from a stranger, nobody was willing to risk even 12 cents on the genuineness of the coin.

But if he'd agreed to remain in the custody of a policeman until the piece was tested, the first passer-by would have bought his goods.

His guarantee didn't count—because he couldn't guarantee his OWN reliability.

You don't TRUST folks you don't KNOW—no matter HOW alluring their propositions.

Bitterly bought experience teaches that those who promise the most, deliver the least.

Exaggeration and phrase-extravagance are the hall-marks of fraud.

Responsibility counts its words—it must pay so heavily for them.

Folks aren't accustomed to five-dollar gold pieces for silver sixpences—the SIXPENCE isn't WORTH that much.

There's always something wrong with the goods when the price is suspiciously low.

Faith does not follow until credulity leads the way

Confidence demands evidence.

Governments can borrow at low interest rates.

They represent stability and permanence.

This store has the most customers, not because it had made the greatest effort to attract patronage—but to HOLD it.

It deals in certainties.

You know where to find your money when you don't find satisfaction.

You've traded here without a risk for more than two score years. We have lived up to every pledge on every sale.

Our warranty is as sound as legal tender.

We never offer "guineas for sixpence." We neither make nor meet prices below the value line.

We sell many sorts of merchandise which must give service over a long range of years—goods which call for the investment of considerable sums. Time alone can test their merit.

We bring the world's advance creations to this community—we inaugurate new modes and introduce exclusive ideas, for which reasonable prices must be charged.

But whether we offer a pair of gloves, a delicate fabric, a fragile bit of art, a piano, a Turkish carpet or a silver service, you may be assured that it will serve its mission to the last penny and the last day.

We deal in a thousand kinds of commodities, but our principal stock in trade is RELIABILITY.

We sell CONFIDENCE.

TRAFFIC JAM DUE TO POLICE DEBATE

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE

NEVILLE ISLAND is the local magic island. The Dravos were the pioneers in developing the island, if memory serves, and now the place is dotted with industry. And in this spot where barges are made, steel is made and assembled, A. J. Yost went out the other morning and shot two rabbits and a ring neck pheasant and the exact time of his hunting expedition was from 8 a. m. to 9:30 a. m.

Penelope Redd reports the fellow who bought a pair of spats at a rummage sale for five cents.

And in connection with spats Paul (Beano) Bower is the only fellow wearing spats who doesn't say he wears them to keep his ankles warm.

He wears them because he thinks they make him look classy, he says.

Mayor Kline heads the list of the city's spat-wearers. And there are ever so many who would wear them if they had the nerve.

SPEAKING of make-ups, some of the prohibition boys were accused of dirty pool Halloween. Some of them "dressed up" in novel rigs, joined the throngs of merry-makers, eased their way into several joints, and with their false whiskers and dark glasses made a few very damaging buys. One man in the trade for seven years, escaping a knock-off all the while, fell for a jovial male in women's attire on Halloween and now his perfect score is broken. One agent, burlesqueing with a badge on his lapel and a detective air, made such a hit with a laughing bartender that he gave the agent a drink and a day later a warrant came. A few of the wise boys closed their places, missing the receipts, but missing also the much-dreaded bump.

TOM FITZGERALD and Joe Donley of the local railways company never tire telling of the numerous articles left on the street cars by passengers and in line with this we are glad to report that in our own lost and found department there is a package of railway transfers for route 39-313 bearing numbers 364163 and on up to 364174. If properly identified, the railways company may call at our office and get these transfers. If they are not called for in 30 days we are going to turn them over to anyone of the thousands of boys who like to play street car conductor at home.

Open air parking in Oakland in the football season brings 50 cents. The price is not only high, but in most of the places the cars are packed in with no eye for ever getting out. One man reports he could not get out of his high priced parking lot until seven o'clock, although the football game was ended three hours before that time. It is a sample of "gypping" that does not become the town. It is particularly bad because a lot of visitors come here, get nicked in this way, and go away telling how they had it handed to them in our fair city. The sad part of this affair is that our traffic regulations must perforce play into the hands of the parking boys who are out to get the dough while the getting is good.

It may be good business, but it certainly is not cricket.

KLINE AND DUNN FORECAST VICTORY

Large Majority for Voting Machines Expected; Public Interest Low for Election

"I am confident of victory for myself and our entire ticket," Mayor Charles H. Kline, Republican mayoralty nominee, predicted today on the eve of the election.

"If more than 160,000 voters go to the polls, I will be elected mayor in spite of the fact that approximately 20,000 illegal votes are likely to be cast for my opponent" declared Thomas A. Dunn, Democratic nominee.

These statements were made to the Sun-Telegraph as both candidates were concluding campaigns which have created little public interest as compared with the bitter Republican factional contest which preceded the September primaries.

VOTE MACHINE FAVORED

Voting places will be open from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. tomorrow.

Approval of the voting machine by a general vote throughout the county as well as in various municipalities is predicted by leaders of both major parties.

There was no indication of a close fight for any of the other 16 offices to be filled by the voters. These are: Two judgeships in each of Superior Court, Common Pleas Court and Orphans Court, and one in County Court; five city councilmen, a sheriff, coroner, jury commissioner and city controller.

Mayor Kline's pre-election statement:

KLINE'S STATEMENT

"I have conducted a clean fight and a clean campaign since I declared my candidacy for re-election. I have offered the people constructive policies and have discussed every question in a spirit of frankness. I have refrained from criticizing and abusing my opponent.

"I believe that Pittsburgh today is the cleanest and most progressive city of its size in the nation. This has been made possible by the Republicans of this community. The Democrats and their candidate have offered nothing but negative policies based upon unfounded statements.

"I am the Republican nominee. On the fairness of the voters I rely without fear. I am confident for myself and our entire ticket."

DUNN CONFIDENT

Dunn's statement:

"Not since the election of the late George W. Guthrie has there been as deep and sincere an interest in a mayoralty contest as in this election. I have never known the women and the business men to be so aroused.

"Quiet determination is far more effective than superficial enthusiasm. A vast majority of the registered voters are opposed to a perpetuation of the present unwholesome municipal conditions and want a change. I believe they will turn out on Tuesday and vote.

"The total registration is over 180,000. If more than 160,000 of these voters go to the polls I will be elected mayor in spite of the fact that approximately 20,000 illegal votes are likely to be cast for my opponent. The total voting strength of the machine is absolutely fixed. They rely upon the indifference of the honest, independent people and a large stay-at-home vote.

"I am convinced that people who seek a change are going to vote this year. If they do, my election is assured and election corruption, politically protected vice and gambling, and municipal wastefulness and extravagance are doomed for the next four years."

WARNS AGAINST FRAUD

To his statement Dunn added a last-minute warning against fraudulent practices at the election and an attack of County Commissioner E. V. Babcock, who had charged that Dunn's Consolidated Ice Company refused to pay the city a water bill until ordered by the courts.

Dunn charged that Babcock is "unprincipled and untruthful." His dispute with the city, Dunn explained, was made to compel establishment of a manufacturers' wholesale water rate which would aid Pittsburgh in obtaining new industries. The candidate asserted that other cities enjoy this wholesale rate.

CLARK CALLS EXPERIMENT UNOFFICIAL

Argument on Man vs. Auto System 'Settled' Between Marsh and Ben Marshall

It seems that Burton W. Marsh, city traffic engineer, and Traffic Inspector Ben Marshall disagreed.

Burton believes the automatic electric light traffic signals are the better.

Ben argues that the "corner cop" is the solution to traffic problems.

And that's why we had all those traffic jams Saturday. Public Safety Director James M. Clark explained it all today.

TEST IN HEAVY TRAFFIC

Burton and Marshall agreed that Saturday was an excellent day on which to settle their argument. There was not only the usually heavy traffic, but there were some 3,000 extra cars bearing visitors to the Pitt-Ohio State game. As things turned out, rain slowed down traffic another 25 per cent.

At an appropriate time Burton turned out the lights and allowed Marshall and his human traffic signals to take charge. You know what happened!

CLARK O. K.'S LIGHTS

Councilman W. Y. English, who got caught in a jam, complained immediately to Director Clark, who didn't know anything about this experiment.

Clark ordered the lights turned on immediately.

"If," said Director Clark today, "I had known anything about this experiment, it would never have occurred. I think the light system is better than the traffic officer."

BRAVIN HEADS HEBREW MEET

D. B. Bravin, of 6554½ Darlington road, editor of "The Dawn," Hebrew publication, will be chairman of a meeting tonight at 8 o'clock in Carnegie Lecture Hall, during which Herman B. Centz, of Boston, Mass., will speak. The subject of Mr. Centz' address will be "Jesus and the Survival of Judaism."

D. B. Bravin

The meeting will be open to the public, and a large attendance is expected. An added attraction will be a number of selections by an orchestra under the direction of Consuelo Metzger. Mr. Centz' talk will touch on pertinent aspects of Judaism throughout the United States and the rest of the world.

Advance Church Service to Aid Radio Fans

An innovation was begun at the Bellevue Methodist Episcopal Church last night by holding the evening services at 7:30 o'clock and closing promptly at 8:30. The Rev. Dr. John B. Magee, pastor, announced that advancing the time of the service was to give adults as well as younger people an opportunity to enjoy radio programs.

GUTHRIE GROUP QUITS RECOUNT

Francis S. Guthrie announced last night that the Allegheny County Election Association was withdrawing its representative from the special recount board investigating alleged irregularities in the recent primary election.

It was charged that the board is not serving any good purpose "other than extravagant waste of taxpayers' money."

Decision to withdraw the representative was taken, it was said, after it was revealed that the board was costing the county $362 for every ballot box counted during the first four weeks and that each ballot which the board has passed on in the recount of boxes in the city of Pittsburgh cost on an average of 60.7 cents.

CHURCHGOERS SEE FIRE

Several thousand persons, including early arrivals for evening services at the Point Breeze Presbyterian Church, last night watched firemen from three companies battle flames in a warehouse of the Pennsylvania Railroad, Fifth and Penn avenues, which resulted in the injury to one fireman and loss amounting to $2,500.

The injured fireman was Hoseman Michael T. McCarthy, 43, of 109 East Agnew street, Carrick, attached to Engine Company No. 34. He was jostled from the rear of his truck as it rounded a corner. One of the rear wheels passed over his body. At Pittsburgh Hospital it was said his condition was serious.

The burned building was occupied by M. J. McMahon, engineer-contractor.

The fire had gained such headway upon the arrival of Engine Companies Nos. 34 and 35, that Battalion Chief John Frazier sent in a call for additional apparatus, which brought out Company No. 16.

Traffic in the vicinity was at a standstill for more than an hour.

T. W. Lakin, fire marshal for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, estimated the damage at $2,500.

Fire which started in the basement of the home of Hyman J. Kaufman, 1419 Beechview avenue, yesterday, resulted in $2,000 damage to the house.

Shifting Film Geometrics Accent Paintings Merits

By PENELOPE REDD.

THE fabulous, changing geometric forms visualized in "The Hollywood Revue" by marching choruses against a towering background of black and silver cylinders, leaves one overwhelmed at the thought of interesting any living creature in the motionless painted canvases at the Carnegie International Art Exhibition. Yet the motion picture by its very celerity passes quickly, not only from the eye, but also from the memory.

Penelope Redd.

The painted canvas, however, by its very limitations, stands apart from all the motion of modern life and becomes an uncommon memory to cherish. This is proven by the number of casual visitors to the Carnegie exhibitions who recall favorite paintings back through the years.

The English section at the Carnegie Internationals has ever been the one which consistently stimulates impressions to be long stored. If we select a group of Englishmen, Glyn Philpot, C. R. W. Nevinson, William Roberts and Paul Nash, all ranging in age between 35 and 45 years, we may examine the effect of modernism on four typical English painters. The paintings these men produce are as varied as the words in a game of anagrams.

GLYN PHILPOT, the oldest, represents the English art tradition of the last 150 years. This proficient prizeman won the first Carnegie award when only 29 years old. At 30, he was admitted to the sacrosanct Royal Academy, and thereafter accommodated himself to the decorous ritual of British official art. He makes a business of skillful painting, cast in a mold devoted to episodes remote from the narrative of daily life. Even Philpot's war portraits of naval officers had no bearing on the war; and the war, in turn, had no effect whatsoever on Philpot's paintings.

On the other hand, Nevinson was made by the war. The angles, curves and cubes of the guns, airplanes, searchlights and the parallel rifles of marching troops were remarkably vitalized by Nevinson. His art, conscripted by the magnetic force of war's machinery, has now petered out into mildness. In the current Carnegie exhibition, Nevinson only once suggests his war subjects in a silver and blue scene, "From a Paris Plane" which shows the channel and the patterned harbor-city beneath. Nor are his New York subjects, "The Soul of a Souless City" and "New York City from the Terminal Building," first exhibited in 1920, although natural cubist designs, other than tricky transcriptions. He rose with the war, combining all he knew of Cubism, Futurism and Expressionism, to graph war in a high-wrought moment. With his subject, passed his power.

WILLIAM ROBERTS has never recovered from his habit of adapting his formula for war paintings to paintings of daily routine. The formula has degenerated into affectation. Roberts' figures are robots gesticulating in boisterous oscillations. Like Nevinson and Philpot, this art orphan also is enshrined in the important British art galleries. The hilarious rattle in Roberts' pictures makes a doggerel type of painting with life as a jesting-stock.

In "The Prodigal Sets Out" we are brought back to a story-telling picture similar to the American one by Hovenden, "Breaking Home Ties" despite the difference in treatment. Roberts surrounds his bucolic sheik by family and farm hands who appear to be holding him for the police instead of relinquishing him in farewell. Roberts establishes adept rhymes in form through the pitchforks, sickles and scythes which the figures hold. The flamboyant color emphasizes this leaning geometry, which is without pictorial kith or kin in the entire exhibition.

PAUL NASH is the antithesis of Roberts and of Nevinson, although the war gave Nash his impetus. Nash's war pictures of somber quietude are more expressive than those of his colleagues. In his contribution to the present Carnegie International, as in his war pictures, his elimination of detail imposes a super-reality on the objects he fuses with his ideas.

Nash restores nature to the primitive, which gave rise to the myths whereby the ancients transanimated gods with human attributes. He rejects the appeal of rich color heavy with oil. He favors austere color, not unlike fresco in its effect of unity between pigment and the material upon which the paint is applied. He disconcerts the sentimental who seek exact representation of facts as in "The Sea" where he suggests almost abstractly the ceaseless movement of the waters. In "Tower," the logical sequence of forms showing what appears to be a control tower for sequestered waters, proves Nash the foe of the pretty and the apostle of the dispassionate. Yet he is as thoroughly British as Philpot and immeasurably greater to modern eyes. While Philpot's technic is characteristically English in its sobriety and composure, Nash makes his paintings in themselves consummate examples of the deep-rooted strength of English character.

BOROUGH FIRE CALL PLANNED

A meeting of fire chiefs in boroughs surrounding Pittsburgh, with a view of perfecting a system whereby alarms will be recorded in all districts, will be called in the near future by Fire Chief Richard L. Smith, he said yesterday upon his return from the international convention of fire chiefs in Birmingham, Ala. The plan, as outlined by the Pittsburgh chief, would mean rearrangement of fire alarm systems in all boroughs, and result in closer co-operation during big fires.

The Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Questioning Camera" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

The question: What is your reaction to the contemplated department of public safety action in removing downtown traffic officers from their posts in favor of automatic traffic lights?

BARNEY FRAKES, Fifth avenue, clothing executive: "Automatic traffic lights will alleviate a serious situation with which officers are unable to cope. There will be little chance of a 'jam' if the signals are obeyed. Pedestrians will have ample opportunity to cross intersections because autoists must wait for the 'Go' signal."

Barney Frakes

MISS M. COHN, Fifth avenue, stenographer: "I think the officers should remain. If there are no policemen on duty drivers will 'play when the cat's away' and race through red and caution signals in their haste to get out of traffic. Pedestrians will risk a big chance of getting injured."

Miss M. Cohn

ALEX REICH, 427 Center avenue, clerk: "Give me the cops every time. Traffic lights will never have the effect on drivers that the presence of a burly officer has. It's not right to remove the officers. They earn their money and give pedestrians a chance to cross streets without waking up and finding themselves in a hospital. Furthermore you can't ask a traffic light directions if you get lost or want to find some street you know nothing about."

Alex Reich

L. NORRISON, 39 Niagara street, chauffeur: "Traffic lights are plenty better than policemen. They are systematic. Traffic moves quicker and better without the cops. Lights don't bawl you out for some alleged motoring violation when you know you are right and innocent of the charge. I'm willing to chance the lights till something better turns up."

L. Norrison

ALICE BAKER, 4617 Forbes street, waitress: "When I walk across the street I feel much better to know an officer is there to protect me from some 'crazy driver' who has but the single thought of shooting out of traffic as quickly as possible. The opportunity presents itself to a driver to disregard stop and 'go' signs. I don't think the lights will be successful without policemen to enforce rules."

Alice Baker.

ANN KRISTOFF, Bridgeville, cafeteria hostess: "I don't think traffic lights will ever supplant officers in the efficient direction of traffic. With lights the danger of accidents is greater both to motorists and pedestrians. The present system with officers and signals ought to be continued. I'm sure a great part of the public desires it. This arrangement is best for pedestrians anyhow."

Ann Kristoff

Show Ton of Bad Checks In Drive on Fraud

Two million dollars' worth of bad checks, weighing more than a ton and representing frauds on business establishments throughout the United States, will be on display Wednesday in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium.

The display will be part of a campaign sponsored by credit bureaus of Western Pennsylvania and the National Surety Company, of New York, to educate members against bad check artists. C. Carroll Spear, vice president of the Surety Company, will address the credit men Wednesday night and tell of swindling activities.

Credit men from several cities and towns in the tristate district will attend the meeting and witness the display.

Bankers' checks, postoffice money orders and commercial paper are represented on the large blackboard display. The novel exhibit has been shown in several of the larger cities.

Sir Roger at Sea

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Nov. 4.

Out here somewhere prowling around is the Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Aviation. He was a naval ace of our late war.

Just think of appointing a man that knew something about the business he was appointed to. I think that should call for a senatorial investigation, knocking good politicians out of a job like that.

When he landed out here one hundred and fifteen planes took off from one airplane carrier at intervals of ten seconds each, but mind you, it takes many armed ships to protect this ship while these planes are taking off.

Peace is like a beautiful woman. It's wonderful, but has been known to bear watching. So when we are having tea with Ramsay let's hold out a row boat at least.

Yours, WILL.

CORNERSTONES LAID FOR TWO SOUTH HILLS CHURCHES

CONGREGATIONS HOLD SPECIAL CEREMONIES

Mt. Lebanon, S. Greentree Buildings Dedicated With Leading Ministers Speaking

The Beverly Heights United Presbyterian Church of Mt. Lebanon, and the J. W. Wallace Memorial Presbyterian Church, South Greentree, held cornerstone layings with special ceremonies yesterday.

Three hundred members of the Mt. Lebanon Church witnessed the stone laying, which was in charge of their pastor, the Rev. Robert W. Gibson. The new church is located on Washington road at Rockwood avenue, Mt. Lebanon. At present the congregation hold services in the Edwin Markham Public School auditorium, Crescent drive, Mt. Lebanon.

GIVEN GREETINGS

Greetings were brought from the mother church, the Herron Hill United Presbyterian, by Dr. W. H. Ewing, for many years an elder of this church congregation, and by the Rev. John E. Simpson, executive secretary of Home Missions Committee. The Rev. George A. Long, pastor of the Homewood United Presbyterian Church and moderator of the Monongahela Presbytery, was the principal speaker. The invocation was offered by the Rev. J. A. Alexander, synodical superintendent of missions. The Rev. E. C. McCown, pastor of the Mt. Lebanon United Presbyterian Church, gave the benediction. A male quartet led in the singing.

UNDER MISSIONS

The Rev. Mr. Alexander later addressed the congregation at the laying of the cornerstone of the South Greentree Church. This church is under the direction of the Home Missions Committee of the Allegheny and Monongahela Presbytery.

PASTOR URGES BALLOT PURGE

A plea for citizens to vote tomorrow "free from selfish interests or the dictates of party interests and for the best candidates," was made last night in a sermon by the Rev. J. A. McInturff, of Calvary Methodist Episcopal Church, Beech and Allegheny avenues, North Side. He said in part:

"The church stands for redemption, and just now the ballot needs to be redeemed. Machine politics has mastered the weak and ignorant people who vote. They have even bought the votes of wicked people. Men have sold their votes, which is treason. The power of organized parties has limited the voting power of the people until individual voting has lost its meaning.

"Redeem the ballot. Make it free for each man to vote as he desires. Free the place of voting from censure, for often the vultures of corruption intimidate the freedom of the ballot.

"Make character the test for candidates and not party. Vote for the best men—for the good men and against the men who are tools of selfish interests.

"Compel all to vote. The very reason we have what we do here in Pittsburgh is because many good people stay at home and the crowd that can get the weak and the wicked to vote cast their ballot."

Pastor Discusses 'The Ideal Layman'

"The Ideal Layman" was described by the Rev. O. B. Emerson, of the West View Methodist Episcopal Church, in his sermon last night. "He should have spiritual experience and he should be willing at all times to cooperate with others, even with those he may not like, in the interests of the church," the speaker said.

Deaf Mutes Charged With Home Robbery

Police of Center Avenue Station today were holding German Jackson, 31, a Negro, of 2005 Rose street, caught, they said, while he was pilfering the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Best, of 1709 Colwell street, last night. Jackson, a deaf mute, was trapped by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gulser, of 1721 Colwell street, and G. A. Vercella, of 1719 Colwell street.

SHOOTS FLEEING HOLDUP MAN

Police today were seeking a Negro believed wounded late Saturday night escaping capture after an attempted holdup on Stanton Drive in Highland Park.

Park Watchman Frank Ruscella, of 227 Omega street, reported to police that he came upon the Negro attempting to hold up an autoist at the point of two revolvers. Ruscella fired three shots as the robber fled down a steep hillside to Washington boulevard.

The Negro first attracted attention peeping into parked cars. J. A. Walters, of 5130 Penn avenue, reported to Ruscella that the man had peered into his machine. One holdup was reported staged in the park, but no notice was given the police.

Hays Man Fined $25 On Theft Charge

Joseph Delanto, of 305 Baldwin street, was fined $25 by Magistrate John J. Sweeney in South Side Police Court yesterday, when accused of stealing an automobile. Patrolman J. Mathias was the arresting officer.

DUNCAN ASSAILS KLINE FROM PULPIT

Mayor Distinctly Minority Candidate, Pastor Tells Emory M. E. Congregation

The Rev. W. Wofford T. Duncan, pastor of the Emery Methodist Episcopal Church, will vote tomorrow for Thomas A. Dunn, Democratic candidate for mayor as a protest against the Republican ring and municipal corruption, he declared in a sermon last night.

The Rev. Mr. Duncan declared that politicians are trying to persuade the Republican voters that they are obligated to vote for Mayor Charles H. Kline because they voted at the Republican primaries. He said in part:

"The primary vote showed clearly that Mayor Kline is a minority candidate. The vast majority of the Republican voters repudiated him at the polls.

"100,000 AGAINST KLINE"

"Because his opponents were divided, he secured the nomination, but upwards of 100,000 Republicans voted against him. He has tried to explain this away, according to his reported speeches, by saying that the voters were only showing their respect for Mr. Malone and Judge Martin, and not opposing him as such.

"This is absurd.

"Unless Mayor Kline failed to hear or read what these voters said through their spokesmen, it is hard to see how he could think they were not utterly antagonistic toward him.

"WILL VOTE FOR DUNN"

"After four years the 'harmony candidate' has so antagonized the decent element of his party that 100,000 voters rejected him in the primary and can, if not bewitched by wily politicians or held by partisians obscurantism, defeat him at the polls next Tuesday.

"So if we feel that Mr. Dunn is better qualified, the question is settled. I so feel and will so vote. Politics should not be considered. Of course, the partisan leaders want a Republican mayor for the sake of patronage and prestige; but this is one of the fruitful sources of corruption. Such a course would ruin any great business corporation and is ruining many of our city governments."

ATTRACTED BY DRY RAID ON CLUB

Men Quarrel; One Shot, Other Held

Frank Everett, 35, a Negro, of 5733 Holden street, was being held by police today in connection with the fatal shooting last night of John Finley, 40, another Negro, of Holden street, according to a police report. The two, police said, had been drinking and quarreled in a lot in Ellsworth avenue, near Summerlea street. The argument terminated when Everett pulled out a revolver and shot Finley in the head, police alleged.

Fourteen Motorists Fined at Dormont

Fourteen motorists were brought before Burgess W. S. Haddock, of Dormont, for violation of the traffic regulations of that district. Of the motorists, 10 were fined $1 each for parking their cars on borough streets for an entire night; two were fined $5 each for driving past a red light and one was assessed $10 for speeding. Another was fined $25 for acting in a disorderly manner.

Police Arrest Man As Holdup Suspect

Rudy Milkovitch, 30, of 2520 Sarah street, was arrested at South Twenty-seventh and Carson streets yesterday by Patrolman James Challis and Precinct Detective John Harkins. It was alleged that he held up and robbed William Yukelich, of 2723 McCord street, at midnight Saturday.

Ventilating Experts Investigate Research

Ventilating engineers from many cities were in Pittsburgh today to inspect the work of F. C. Houghten, who for a year has been carrying on research at the United States Bureau of Mines with a view of improving ventilating systems for homes and public buildings.

The visitors, members of the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers, will be guests of Lee Moore, president of the Pittsburgh chapter of the organization, and Mr. Houghten.

It is there, undoubtedly... a "sparkle" of spicier aroma, an extra touch of flavor, a certain added "character," unmistakably Chesterfield's own.

No one word describes it—but only the most inexperienced smoker could fail to mark it. Between other cigarettes and Chesterfield, there is the clear-cut difference between just something to smoke and the cigarette that puts—

Workers to Train For Sunday Schools

An inter-denominational Sunday school teachers' training class opens a 12-week course tonight at 7:30 in the Bethany Lutheran Church, Camp avenue and Fifth street, Braddock. The classes will be held at night, and are designed to train those interested in Sunday school teaching, and to further promote the religious education of those who are already engaged in that work. H. E. Carmack, dean of the interurban training schools of Allegheny County, will give a short address.

BANDITS HOLD UP TWO TAXI DRIVERS, PEDESTRIAN

2 ARMED MEN ROB TRIO ON NORTH SIDE

Thieves Force Front Door of Grant Street Store, Taking Tobacco; Auto Looted

Search was being made by police today for two bandits who held up two taxicab drivers and a pedestrian in the North Side within two hours early yesterday.

Joseph Adams, of 1611 Province street, reported to police that two armed men robbed him of a wrist watch valued at $21.50 while he was walking in Reddour street, near Penrod street.

HOLD UP DRIVER

A few minutes later, V. J. Meeley, of 520 Arch street, a cab driver, was confronted by two men while he was sitting in his cab at West Ohio and Arch streets. He was relieved of $19. The description of the pair tallied with that of the two who robbed Adams, according to police.

The same pair, police declared, robbed John Tait, of 5732 Alder street, another cab driver, of $14, at Melrose avenue and Charles street.

TOBACCO TAKEN

Cigars and cigarets valued at $200 were stolen from the store of J. Moses, at 411 Grant street, by thieves who forced open the front door. The theft was discovered yesterday.

Entering the second floor apartment of B. L. Gentile, 411 Larimer avenue, robbers ransacked the place and escaped with jewelry valued at $100.

H. C. Godden, of 458 Melwood street, reported the theft of a bag containing men's wearing apparel worth $300 from his automobile which was parked in front of Webster Hall, yesterday.

ESSAY CONTEST OPENED BY MAYOR

Pupils, Teachers Asked to Co-operate in Reducing Traffic Fatalities Here

A mayor's proclamation opened officially today the third annual traffic essay contest, to be held in the public and parochial schools of the city.

The contest, sponsored by the Better Traffic Committee, will be discussed tonight on the radio by two councilmen, Daniel Winters and W. ". English, the later speaking from Station WJAS at 6:45 o'clock and the former at 7:15 from Station KQV.

Asking that students, teachers, newspapers, parents and others interest themselves in and co-operate with the essay contest so that the children mortality toll of the city be cut down, the Mayor's proclamation emphasized the importance of safety propaganda as an aid to saving lives.

The rate of child fatalities during the first nine months of 1929 is virtually double that of 1928, the proclamation states.

'MUMS MAGNET FOR THRONGS

Pittsburgh's chrysanthemum show opened in Phipps' conservatory yesterday, thousands forming in line to gain entrance to the picturesque exhibit.

Throughout the day an unceasing parade of flower-lovers walked through the miles-long border of flowers, including thousands of different species of chrysanthemums. The crowd broke all records for attendance.

Five of the rooms were set aside for the 'mum show, with flowers ranging from pure white to deepest purple; the various gradations forming the symphony of color.

Shortly after the opening of the exhibit, at 8 a. m., spectators began arriving. Shortly after noon the crowd swelled until a line extended for three blocks in front of the conservatory. The show will continue for several weeks.

Weather Conditions.

High pressure, centered over the panhandle of Texas, highest barometer, 30.62 inches, covers all of the country except the Northeast. There is a low centered over Eastern Ontario, and another center over the Canadian Northwest. These low pressure areas are causing cloudy weather over the border states, and cloudiness and scattered rains still prevail over the Atlantic Coast states. Elsewhere the skies are clear. The temperatures are reasonable over the eastern portion of the country, while over the western and northern plains and the Rocky Mountain states cold weather prevails.

River Conditions.

There was a slight rise in the Allegheny River and a rather marked rise in the Monongahela, due to heavy rains over West Virginia. Stage at Franklin is 2.9 feet; Parkers Landing, 3.2; Lock No. 10, 14.8; Lock No. 7, 21.7; Pittsburgh, 11.9; Dam No. 2, 7.4; Dam No. 6, 8.6; Dam No. 9, 9.2, and Dam No. 12, 7.2. The Ohio will continue to rise; between 15 and 16 feet expected on the Pittsburgh gauge Tuesday morning. The dams will be lowered today.

MARIANNE by GLADYS JOHNSON

Marianne Is Happy Again When Free to Go With Stag

CHAPTER XIX.

THE letter which Marianne had received from Stag only served to aggravate the sense of loss. The thought of him now was a wound which never healed.

Working about the house, or directing old Gabriel Michu's labor in the field, the image of Stag was never far away from her. What was he doing? The question tortured her. She tried to imagine and found herself baffled by her lack of knowledge about the strange new world which had swallowed him.

Standing there alone, under the leaden sky, longing for him would sweep down like a dark sea. She would feel herself go sick and faint, carried away by unbearable desolation.

An ocean . . . half a world between them forever . . . To grow old apart . . . God! It maddened her. Hot wildness running through her blood, exploding in her brain. She lifted her clenched fists and shook them at the lowering sky. She burst into tears and ran blindly away from the sight of the house lest the children might be watching.

She would wake suddenly in the night from vivid dreams when it seemed Stag stood before her. Handsome jaunty face, dancing gray eyes. Sitting upright in the dark, the girl would cry bitterly but silently.

The long Winter passed, but with the coming of Spring the desolation increased.

If she had missed him in the rainy days, how much harder it was to be alone when the twilights turned pink and mauve. When the breath of the fields was sweet and the new moon was curled like a little feather in a sky of depthless silvery green. When all the world called to love.

One other thought struck like a viper in her heart. Not since that night shortly after Stag's departure had Andre spoken of marriage. Marianne knew that he sensed a lack in her. The idea made her miserable, and she made a valiant effort to conquer her own heart.

Some day she must marry Andre—dear, brave Andre, who had given up more than his life. But she fled from the thought. She could not face the reproach in a pair of remembered gray eyes.

Marianne was working beyond her strength about the old farm. Old Gabriel was slow and stupid, and she could afford to hire no better help.

She stood in the barn one afternoon in May, forking down hay for the cow.

The big shadowy place was full of bitter-sweet memories. Among the hammocky brown cobwebs and the fragrant dust ghosts moved. Flippant ghosts wearing over-seas hats — ghosts who grinned and sang—and wrung her heart.

Standing up there on the heap of hay, with a shaft of window behind her, outlining her hair in a bright nimbus, she did not see the two men who came into the barn below.

It was not until they called her that she noticed old Pere Joseph, who had entered gently guiding Andre.

She gave a little startled cry and leaped down beside them. There was relief in her voice.

"Andre! I was so frightened. That bad little Francois came home crying that he had lost you. That he left you at the chapel and wandered away down the stream. I sent him back to search for you."

Andre's thin face wore a gentle smile. "Don't scold the little one, Marianne. A slow blind man is a drag on gay young spirits. Youth was not intended to be so encumbered."

There was a grave note to that which flashed the girl's startled eyes to his face.

The old cure answered that inquiring look. "Andre has something to tell you, Marianne. I will leave you—"

But the younger man caught him by the sleeve as he was turning away. "Stay, father. You love her, too. I am going to join the church, Marianne."

"Andre!" Her voice was an aghast whisper. "Andre . . . Ah!" She dropped her face in her hands and began to cry.

"Why, little Marianne . . ." His groping hands found her. Drew her into his arms. He patted her hair, her wet face. "Why do you cry? There is the place where I belong now. It is my refuge from the world."

Then—as she still did not lift her head: "So brave—so true you are, little Marianne. And all the time grieving in secret for the man you really love. Do you think I would wish such a sacrifice, Marianne?"

"Ah—Andre—I love you. So gentle—so brave—"

"It is the love of pity you have for me. I know your tender heart. I would not have my misfortune be your misfortune, too. I want you to be happy."

She had lifted her face now, her wet eyes piteously searching his sightless eyes. "Andre," she whispered, "you really wish this?"

The note of quiet conviction in his voice told her much.

"I am at peace with my soul for the first time since the light went out, Marianne."

No bitterness in the line of the sensitive mouth. A peace not of earth had touched Andre's face. His love had risen above the earth—it winged its way in a light hidden from the girl.

His voice was soft as a blessing. "You have your release, brave little one. Obey your heart."

Even as she clung to him, weeping while he stroked her bright hair, she heard the old cure speak, a tremble running through his words.

"I congratulate you, my son. It is a glorious victory."

Down by the little pond Marianne went to sit alone and think out the happenings of the past hour. In such a short time her whole life had changed. The ocean had dried—the world had shrunk—Stag, who had been beyond her reach, now was very close to her.

No need now to crush him out of her heart. No need to deny her own love. She dared to think of him now . . . the hot dark light in his eyes . . . his kisses . . .

She flung herself on the bank, pressing her face into the warm sweet grass, clinging to the earth as though she clung to some kind and tender mother.

Thoughts dancing through her mind like the dancing golden light on the water.

"I would not have my misfortune your misfortune too—" Andre had said. Ah, dear brave Andre . . . She was crying again—healing tears. Tears that fell like a cool blessing on her tired young heart.

It had happened—the miracle! She was free to go to her love.

Realization suddenly dawned on her, a sweet wild tingle of joy darting through her, touching her mind to flame.

Now she could write and tell Stag that she would come to him.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Tuesday, November 5

ACCORDING to the position of Saturn, in aspect with "the lights" on this day, it may be difficult to make much headway, although the conditions may be lively and the leaning toward initiative in new lines and fresh projects. With good constructive work and a philosophical adjustment to postponements the future issues are encouraging.

Those whose birthday it is may have a satisfactory year by adjusting themselves to delays and obstacles and working faithfully for future results and rewards, this especially in new ventures.

A child born on this day may be clever and adventurous, but may have to win its way by surmounting obstructions and by faithful endeavor.

Door Curtains

To prevent a door curtain getting underneath the door when opened, put a screw eye in the center of the framework of the door and another just below it on the door. Fasten a piece of cord to the top eye, draw it through the one on the door, and fasten the other end to the center of the curtain. When the door is opened the cord is raised; also the curtain, which hangs in graceful folds instead of wedging itself under the door.

Madge, Despite Dicky's Anger, Insists Upon Explaining

LILLIAN'S prediction of fireworks seemed justified when Dicky careened into the driveway, his car answering her strictures of being on two wheels. His face was set and forbidding, and as he drew his car alongside mine and turned toward us, I saw that his eyes were gleaming with suppressed temper. But his voice was controlled.

"Will you kindly get into this car, Madge?" he said. "I won't keep you long, but there is something I want to say to you."

Lillian forestalled my answer by leaning across me and laughing impudently at my husband.

"What's the big idea, Dicky bird?" she drawled. "You're not going to take your loving wife for a ride a la the Chicago bandits, are you?"

Dicky growled something in his throat which I could not catch but to which Lillian promptly gave her own malicious interpretation.

"What's that? You'd like to? Oh! fie! fie! Dearest! Also tut! tut! and pish! pish! Mamma certainly will have to punish her little boy severely if he speaks so naughtily again."

"Oh! can the comedy, Lil," Dicky said with infinite weariness in his voice. "I'm not in the mood for persiflage, even your artistic variety."

"Thanks for the dumplings, Darling," she told him airily, "but I'm afraid you'll have to this morning, if you hope to have the pleasure of your wife's company for the few minutes you named. Because, my bucko lad, Ruth and Naomi hain't got nothing on Madgie and me this morning. Where she goest, I'm going to go, and all the rest of it. So if you have any great thoughts to emit in her direction, you'll pour out the pancake batter while I'm right at the table."

They stared at each other for a long minute, steady calm eyes meeting tempestuous angry ones unflinchingly. Then Dicky spoke with repressed temper sounding in every inflection.

"I don't think you understand, Lil," he said slowly, and we both realized that only his years of affection for her, and his gratitude to her for the great sacrifice she once had made for him kept his voice from raucous insolence. "I wish to talk to Madge alone for a few minutes."

"What you wish and what you're going to do are two very different things, my lambie bird," she told him mockingly. "And for the love of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, glide down before you go into a tail spin. You don't think it's any secret to either Madge or me what's on your alleged brain, do you? You stumbled upon a tea-drinking unexpectedly, took an entirely wrong slant on it, and are preparing to haul your wife over the coals for something which was not her fault at all."

Dicky choked back an oath.

"You go too far, Lil, even for as old a friend."

"I know that, lad," her voice was suddenly, low, disarming. "But I've got to stop you from making about nineteen Gardarene swine out of yourself. Now you listen to me a minute. You know how important it is not to throw any monkey wrenches into the machinery here until we get this gang moved to the hotel. Well, Phillip Veritzen, who would be about the most upsetting wrench possible, called up this morning, fit to be tied because his darling princess had disappeared, and so forth ad infinitum, ad nauseam. You and Harry couldn't be spared, or I thought you couldn't—you evidently weren't as necessary as I thought—and I am distinctly persona non grata with old Phil just now."

I hoped Dicky did not notice my involuntary little start of surprise. Lillian was embroidering her pattern with a vengeance.

"It wouldn't have done any good for me to talk to him—indeed my presence at the interview would have hindered things—so there was nothing else save for Madge to go, reluctantly, you may stake your life on that."

"Oh! of course," Dicky sneered with such venom that I felt like crying out to him a taunting boast, even though false, that Lillian was mistaken, that I had gone to tea with Philip Veritzen willingly, and that I had enjoyed my jaunt to the utmost.

The Sun-Telegraph Fifteen Cent Pattern

A DISTINCTIVE STYLE FOR YOUTHFUL FIGURES.

Printed velvet was used in this instance. Canton crepe, and satin are also suggested. Lace and chiffon too would be nice for this model. The higher waistline is cleverly expressed in the front, and fulness is created in the flare insert. The sleeve is a fitted model, cut long over the hand.

This pattern is cut in 3 sizes: 16, 18 and 20 years. To make the dress for a 16 year size will require 3¾ yards of 39 inch material. To finish with binding at the insert, upper part of the front, and at the sleeve edges will require 3⅞ yards cut bias and 1½ inch wide. The width of the dress at the lower edge with flare fulness extended is 2 yards.

COUPON.

This pattern will be sent on receipt of 15 cents (silver or 2c and 1c stamps). Make number, name, address, etc., plain. Send to Pattern Department, The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Formal Dance Attire

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:
I am going to a formal affair.

1. If I do not have a wrap, would it be proper for me to wear my spring coat or, would it be better if I went in the machine without a coat?
2. If it is proper to wear my spring coat would short sleeves be proper to wear?
3. Is it proper to carry a beaded bag?
4. Is it proper to carry it while dancing?
5. Does the girl take the man's arm when going in to dance?

READER.

1. If you need a wrap on that evening, don't disregard your health to the extent of not wearing a coat of some kind. It's better to be healthy than to have a foolish pride.
2. Yes.
3. Yes, carry the bag that is nearest to a special evening bag.
4. Usually one's bag is left on the table, since it is most inconvenient to carry it when you are dancing.
5. No. This is no longer done.

Permissible, But Not Usual

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:
Will you please advise me whether it is proper for a young man to attend a "linen shower?"

MALE READER.

I WISH that I could answer your question most directly and definitely. But, as a matter of fact, there are no rules of etiquet that govern showers. Now some hostesses think that the beaux should not be invited to showers, and other hostesses invite them. If they are invited, I see no reason why they should not go, if they wish to. As a matter of fact, however, I should think that a swain would feel very much out of place. However, it is done, and often the men are invited in "after" the regular shower.

Addressing a Widow

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:
Would you kindly inform me which is the proper way to address a widow: Mrs. George Smith or Mrs. Louise Smith. I also wish to know the proper way to address a divorcee.

WANTS TO KNOW.

A WIDOW is addressed by her husband's full name. She always remains Mrs. George Smith and should never be addressed as Mrs. Louise Smith.

A divorcee usually calls herself by the last name of her maiden name and her husband's name, such as Mrs. Robinson Smith, should her name have been Louise Robinson before her marriage.

Returning Borrowed Article.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. Some time ago I was visiting some people whom I had met through the friends I was with. We all stayed overnight, and, as this was unexpected, of course I was unprepared. The following morning one of the girls offered me her rouge and powder. I used it and by mistake put the small case in my handbag, as is my habit at home. I left that afternoon and I didn't discover the box until next day. Well, I have had a very serious nervous attack in the meantime which has held me captive for the last two months. Now I feel more like myself again, and I would like you to advise me as to the correct thing to do. Should I buy Dolly a new compact, and what sort of letter should I send her explaining?
2. Will you please tell me about my penmanship?

L. H.

IN THE same direct way in which you have explained this to me write to Dolly and explain to her just what happened. Of course she will at once understand. First, buy Dolly a new compact, something a bit "special," so that it will register your wish to make it a present, as well as a substitute for the loan that you were not able to return. And inclosed with the compact your letter of friendliness and gratitude and appreciation. Too, ask her if you may have the pleasure of seeing her again soon to thank her for her "long loan."

2—You have the makings of an excellent handwriting. Your writing is that of an especially interesting person, and if you could make it more compact it would be even more interesting. I long to get hold of your pen, as you hold it in your hand, and direct it so that you would form your letters more carefully—especially r, s, e, m, n, u and all the letters at the end of your words. The many curlycues you make and the way you cross your t's do not, to my mind, add strength to your writings. Perhaps you hold your pen too loosely?

The Costume Is Correct

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:
I am going to a dinner and dance, given by a lodge, to be held at a hotel. I intend to wear a sleeveless dress and silver slippers. Is this correct? Is it necessary to wear a hat while dining?

L. J.

THE costume you outline is appropriate and correct. You would not wear a hat with evening clothes of this kind.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Golf Widowlogues

"DON'T have your skirts lengthened," said Mrs. Divot. "The fad won't last. It makes woman look too dowdy."

"I won't!" Mrs. Green reassured her cheerfully. "For two good reasons."

HELEN ROWLAND

"Mine aren't so good," sighed Mrs. Divot, eyeing her silken ankles ruefully, "but they haven't gone 'piano' yet."

"My reasons aren't physical," corrected Mrs. Green, "they're psychological. In the first place, I look 10 years older and feel positively antique in long skirts—and so does any woman. And in the second place, I'm rational and consistent.

"The poor little stuffed goose of the gay Nineties, who wore a pompadour rat and a buckram choker, swept up the streets with her trailing skirts and courted dyspepsia by squeezing in her digestive organs, was excusable because she had never known anything different or better. She thought that was being a 'lady,' even if it did make her look like a cartoon!

"But any enlightened modern woman, who has known the cleanliness and rejuvenating effect of bobbed hair, and who has enjoyed the comfort and freedom of an uncorseted torso and free ankles—WELL! Any woman who has been let out of the coop, and then deliberately permits herself to be forced back into whalebone-and-steel and long, germ-catching skirts, not only isn't fit to be trusted with the VOTE, but she hasn't human intelligence enough to be trusted to play with the scissors!

"She should be given a rattle and a lollipop and sent to bed at half-past eight, with the other children!

* * *

"Heaven knows, women have abused their privileges and their hard-won freedom, by trying to go around semi-nude. Bare knees and bare backs are positively bare-faced! And extremely short skirts are grotesque and vulgar. Women are always extremists. They never know when nor where to STOP anything, from talking to fighting or loving! But, just because some few morons have made a travesty of the new fashions, is no reason why ALL women should meekly subjugate themselves to the horrors and torments of mid-Victorianism and get themselves up like an overstuffed divan or a Thanksgiving turkey! I was a war-bride—and I'm going to stand by my guns and my principles!"

"Well," said Mrs. Divot, "I have no violent principles or anything—but I've got my vanity! A few draperies and clothes DO make a woman look more feminine. Mystery has its charms. But, as long as Bill keeps his top-hair and his golf-figure, I'm not going to get myself up to look like Mrs. Methuselah! No long skirts for ME! I'm no horse-hair sofa!"

Ritzy Rosalie

© 1929, King Features Syndicate, Inc. Great Britain rights reserved.

Rosalie and Penelope feel that fall is really here, and they are glad it is, for the new fur coats look as nice as they feel. Rosalie was quite taken by this beige caracul coat with the wide sleeves and narrow cuffs, and when she holds her hands in the cuffs it gives the appearance of a muff. Lynx is used for the collar and cuffs, and is dyed to match the caracul.

Penelope's muff is not as convenient as Rosalie's in some ways, but it has the advantage of being more useful in others, for it serves as a roomy bag. It is part of a set, and the tie is the other half of the set, and is of the same kind of fur.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Street Din Often a Cause of "Nerves"

YOU need not be told by an eminent scientist that noises are disagreeable. They keep us awake at night and make us nervous in the daytime.

But has it ever occurred to you that noises can actually retard growth? This is a new idea, isn't it?

DR. COPELAND

At a recent meeting in Boston of the National Home Economics Association, a remarkable address was made by Dr. Donald A. Laird, of Colgate University. He is director of the psychological laboratory in that institution and for a long time has been studying the effects of noises on white rats.

Dr. Laird believes that the noises of American cities actually stunt the growth. Let me quote this statement: "For more than a year we have been following through the effects of city noises on white rats, yielding results which it would take about 30 years' observations upon human beings to obtain. Rather startling effects have been recorded.

"For instance, the rats kept in relative quiet eat two or three per cent more food than their brothers and sisters that are kept under the electrically duplicated city noises; but with only this small advantage in appetite, as shown by food consumption, the rats kept under the quiet conditions grew somewhat around 10 per cent more rapidly.

"These scientifically controlled observations on animals are paralleled and confirmed by measurements of city and country children, which reveal almost invariably a greater rate of growth among the country boys and girls."

Of course it will take a lot of confirmatory work to prove that Dr. Laird is right. It would be easy to point out objections to his conclusions. For instance, there may be those who will dispute his final statement that "measurements of city and country children . . . reveal almost invariably a greater rate of growth among the country boys and girls."

But setting aside such objections, there can be no doubt that the noises of a city have created a serious public health problem. This troubled me all the time I was commissioner of health of the City of New York. In that great community of 6,000,000 active persons, to say nothing of the millions of autos and trucks, there is bound to be clatter and din that are almost deafening.

If these noises actually impair the appetite, there can be no doubt that growth would be unfavorably affected. But even though growth is not affected, broken rest and irritated nervous systems are bad for the human race.

Every city should give heed to the problem of noise. There are so many devices for deadening sound that a systematic and earnest campaign would result in great improvement.

SPEAKER HOLDS D.A.R. CHARGES AS ABSURD

Order's 'Blacklist' Hit by Arch Enemy in Address; Defends Carnegie Acts

Branding as ridiculously absurd that Andrew Carnegie had subsidized the Federal Council of Churches, the Rev. Dr. William L. Stidger, of Boston, attacked the Daughters of the American Revolution while here today.

Hitting at the D. A. R. "blacklist" recently issued from Illinois, Dr. Stidger told members of the Hungry Club at the noonday luncheon in the Fort Pitt Hotel that the former Pittsburgher, Bishop Francis J. McConnell, was banned again in this latest publication. The book, entitled, "Pastors, Politicians and Pacifists," makes many attacks and contains a long list of banned speakers.

DENIES CARNEGIE CHARGE

"There is a chapter entitled 'Carnegie Subsidizes the Churches.' It is a direct accusation that, because Mr. Carnegie, who made his millions in Pittsburgh, had a dream of world peace and was willing to give money to that end, that he was trying to subsidize the Churches of Christ in America. This book even goes to the ridiculous extreme is saying: 'There is a conviction among those who have watched the Federal Council's activities that attached to the extreme left is a pot of Soviet gold.'

"There is a chapter entitled, 'Co-operating with the Kaiser', which intimates that the Council was actually doing what this chapter indicated. The book refers to Dr. S. Parkes Cadman as the 'Pope of Protestantism.' The D. A. R., through its national president, denies that the black list exists.

HAS COPY OF LIST

"Our answer to that is that we have in our possession a copy of that list and I have it here with me and will show it to you.

"I wonder how she will answer these facts. Instead of denying it, the D. A. R. should admit it was sent out, that it was a mistake and repudiate it. They can no longer dodge the issue by a ladylike shrug of the shoulders, an upturned nose and a smile of disdain. They like to look upon themselves as the Sacred Cows of America. The D. A. R. is the female Rip Van Winkle organization of America."

Dr. Stidger, who spoke also before the Methodist minister meeting today, was born and raised in Moundsville, W. Va. His father, L. S. Stidger, still resides there and spent the day here with him. Dr. Stidger was educated at Allegheny College, Meadville, where he participated in the school's athletics. He married Miss Ivy Berkey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Berkey, of Ligonier.

DYERS' LOCKOUT COMPLICATED

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—The lockout of 2,500 union men by the Masters Cleaners and Dyers' Association today assumed the serious proportions of a long drawn fight.

Hope for an early settlement became less when the Chicago Federation of Labor last night officially tendered its moral support to the cause of the workers. Meetings have been called today so that each group can arrange for self-protection, leaders state.

Although nearly all the cleaning establishments in the county are closed, the owners plan to reopen their shops this week employing non-union labor, according to Clayton Patterson, secretary of the association.

A YEAR OLD ?

It needs new tubes

Don't blame your radio set for poor reception with worn-out tubes. Once a year, at least, it needs a brand new set of RCA Radiotrons. The set builders advise this.

AN OUTSTANDING EVENT IN THE ANNALS OF TALKING PICTURES

MARION DAVIES IN Marianne

The screen's FIRST comedienne brings to the talking films her superlative talents in song and dance and merriment—

IT is doubly delightful news to those countless admirers of Miss Davies' rare comic genius that her first talking appearance is in a production destined to rank among the greatest of the audible films. Miss Davies appears in a musical comedy romance set in France during the days following the armistice. There's a gayety and infectious merriment about the production that is entirely captivating; and what with screamingly funny situations and a host of winning song hits, merry Marion in marvelous "Marianne" is on its way to a fame accorded few offerings of stage or screen.

PANTHERS LEAD IN EAST

SPORT COMMENT
by JAMES J. LONG

Ohio State Makes Hit.
Later Visits Desired.
Donchess Shines Again.
Rooney's Great Kicking.
Plaid Still Improving.
Day of Many Features.

CITY'S GREATEST GRID SPECTACLE

THE finest football spectacle that Pittsburgh ever saw, only partly spoiled by an all-week rain, which, on the day of the game, became a deluge—that's the record of last Saturday's Pitt-Ohio State affair, won by the Panthers, 18 to 2, that will be remembered, as 51,000 fans look back upon a series of events so impressive that they cannot be washed out even by that day's downpour.

Allen Holman.

Ohio State will be remembered by Pittsburgh, will be welcomed back even more enthusiastically when next her eleven appears here, for Pittsburghers liked the Buckeyes. Their gallant fighting qualities in the face of inevitable defeat, their versatility, their huge crowd of supporters, their magnificent band, all stand out in retrospect and entitle them to a warm reception whenever they come back to The Stadium.

The Scarlet and Gray gridders brought with them the largest crowd of out-of-town fans that ever attended a football game in Pittsburgh. Despite the adverse weather, between 13,000 and 15,000 residents of the neighboring state made their way to The Stadium, there to fill seven sections and make their presence known by vocal support of their fine team and their truly wonderful band.

AND that band! "The best college band that Pittsburgh ever heard or saw" was the universal verdict of local enthusiasts. How it can march! How it is drilled! What snap, precision, perfect timing! It looks great, it plays perfectly, and its evolutions are accomplished with a skill that baffles description.

The Panthers won the football game, but by a lesser margin than the Buckeyes had in the band contest. Other colleges have been seen here with their bands, and they have been good as college bands go, but they can't compare in size or in appearance, and especially, in drill, with the great Mid-Western university's music makers. The effect of military discipline, for Ohio's band is part of their R. O. T. C., was constantly apparent.

AS TO the football game, again, there were two features that will be recalled when specific memories of plays and players are lost in the river of time. First, the exceptional quality of football on display from start to finish, in the face of weather that might daunt the most hardy and determined.

Both teams played heads-up football all the way, and there was an astonishingly small total of fumbles and other misplays which might have been expected to be most numerous on such a day.

Joe Donchess.

SECOND, the high plane of sportsmanship on which the game was conducted. Not a single penalty for anything save offside play—technical penalties for second incompleted forward passes, excepted, of course—not even one setback for holding. That's remarkable for a major contest. And it was no more remarkable than the constant spectacle of Buckeye and Panther expressing goodwill and fine regard for each other in the little ways which mean so much. No diminution of the desperate competition, while play progressed, but not a single indication of anything save friendliness once the play was over. That's college sport at its best.

THE best player on the field was Joe Donchess, Pitt's peerless left end, and to say so is in no way to disparage the efforts of other stars in both lineups. Defensively a marvel, as always, Joe turned in play after play, tackled Ohio's hard-running backs for many a loss, intercepted one pass, knocked down another, recovered an Ohio fumble, covered kicks masterfully, crossed over and stopped plays directed at the far side of his own line.

On the attack, only an extraordinary piece of defensive play by Allen Holman prevented Joe's scoring a touchdown on a forward pass which he covered cleverly, and he stood out more than ever as a leader, inspirer of his fellows and example of good sportsmanship to his opponents. If any chooser of all-star teams this season omits Pitt's gentlemanly Youngstown (O.) boy from his lineup, it can only be concluded that he never saw Donchess in action.

WITH Joe there loomed up Pitt's other line star, Ray Montgomery, whose unfailing brilliancy has come to be taken as a matter of course. "The fastest big man" again and again ruined the visitors' attempts before they could get them started.

He intercepted one of Holman's flings at a critical moment, and at a point where his presence couldn't possibly have been expected, and cleared the way for Pitt's ball carriers as surely and effectively as always.

Sam Selby.

TOBY UANSA, of course, won the lion's share of recognition for his spectacular 73-yard touchdown run on the sixth play after the kickoff; for his really breathtaking catch of a forward pass in the fourth quarter, followed by the shaking off of two Ohio tacklers and a short sprint for Pitt's second touchdown, and for his defensive play, which twice resulted in interception of long forward throws and once in his cutting down an Ohioan who otherwise would have been off with a clear field.

OTHER local luminaries were Charles Tully, showing additional evidence of his constant improvement; big Jim MacMurdo, a coming all-America tackle if sophomore promise counts for anything at all, and Jim Rooney, whose punting of a wet, soggy ball was literally wonderful.

As a ball-carrier, Rooney is so far inferior to Josh Williams that the Pitt attack slowed down the minute the change was made, but Dr. Sutherland's judgment was vindicated by Jim's hair-raising feats of distance and direction when it came to kicking the ball. The North Side lad's second quarter field goal was a gem, as was his 59-yard punt out of bonds at Ohio's one-yard line.

NOT all the honors were won by Blue and Gold representatives. Ohio also had a crackerjack end in the lineup. Wesley Fesler, cast into the shadow of Donchess' superlative brilliancy, is nevertheless good, as good as he was touted to be.

Selby and Barratt showed some fine line play, the latter's passing excelling that of the otherwise excellent Daugherty, and in the third quarter the visitors sent in at right tackle a Negro boy named Bell, who stiffened up the right side of their line notably. Holman and McConnell shone on defense and also so far as Pitt's crack line permitted, in attack.

THE whole Ohio team was full of pep, even in the waning moments of the game, played as though it had no other idea than to win, and won the regard of friend and foe alike by its dash

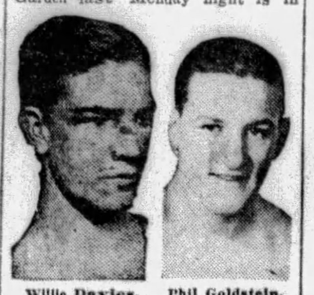
DAVIES MEETS BLACK BILL IN TOURNEY

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Roger Bernard, of Flint, Mich., who drew a gate of more than $12,000 when he defeated Tony Herrera, the Mexican flash, at Flint a few months ago, is in town to make his local debut against Phil Goldstein, of the Hill, in the 10-round windup at Motor Square Garden tonight. With Goldstein having fought two good battles against Herrera at the Meyers Bowl during the outdoor season and held in high regard by the fans for his fighting qualities, another turnout such as the one that saw Buck McTiernan and Georgie Fifield do their stuff in the Garden last Monday night is in prospect. Buck and Georgie played to more than $5,200, the best indoor gate in several seasons here.



Willie Davies. Phil Goldstein.

Both Bernard and Goldstein arrived yesterday, the latter coming from New York, where he makes his training headquarters.

There is much interest in the appearance here of Bernard, who was the first boxer to check the winning streak of Herrera by the decision route. The French-Italian lightweight is hailed as a slick boxer and good puncher. He had Herrera on the floor twice.

BILLICK MEETS CAVELLI

Dan Billick, of Duquesne, and Carl Cavelli, of Canton, O., bantamweights, box the eight-round semi-final tonight. Eddie Brannon and Andy Andrucci, local lightweights, meet for the third time in the second bout. Brannon, a Negro, of the Hill, holds two decisions, the first one undeserved, over the East End Italian. In the opener, Marty Simmons, of Wilkinsburg, tosses leather with Young Joe Walcott, Negro welterweight, of Washington, Pa.

Henry Firpo, of Cleveland, and Johnny Burns, of Chicago, middleweights, box the main bout of a show at the Jolly Bowl, New Castle, tonight and Willie Davies, Charleroi star, battles Black Bill, the Cuban Negro, in one of the four 10-round bouts marking the opening round of the New York State Athletic Commission's flyweight tournament in Madison Square Garden, New York.

LEONARD TO GIVE TALK

Benny Leonard, former lightweight champion, now owner of the Pittsburgh Hockey Club, will not appear in an exhibition bout at the Y. M. H. A. amateur show Thursday night next week. Instead he will give a talk from the ring. Eight bouts are listed. . . . Jack (Kid) Berg, the English lightweight buzzsaw, knocked out Tommy Gerval, of Shenandoah, Pa., in the second round in New York Saturday night. Nel Tarleton, the English featherweight, outpointed Jackie Cohen, of New York, in a preliminary.

Tony Herrera, the Mexican lightweight, who is such a good card around here, was born in El Paso, Tex., which he still considers his home, although he is doing all of his fighting out of Chicago, and was a good basketball player, but considered too small to try for the team at El Paso High School.

Tommy Freeman would like to fight Buck McTiernan here. So would a lot of others, after the big gate Buck drew with Georgie Fifield at the local Garden last Monday night. At that, Tommy, in his recent bout with Georgie Levine in the same ring showed so much stuff that he ought to be brought back in a hurry. He and McTiernan would sell out the Garden, but Buck is not going to be rushed along against seasoned veterans like Freeman just yet, according to his manager, Bunny Buntach.

Bike Racing Set To Open in Chicago

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Six-day bicycle racing will return to Chicago for its twenty-second appearance at the Chicago Stadium Thursday night, when 16 teams entered.

Virtually every outstanding rider in the world will compete in long test, which will be preceded by a card of professional, amateur and motor-paced special races Wednesday night.

Dr. Alekhine Victor Over Bogoljubow

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Dr. Alexander Alekhine, of Paris, last night won in 39 moves the twenty-second game of the match in defense of his chess championship of the world against E. D. Bogoljubow, of Triberg. The opening was a Ruy Lopez, with Bogoljubow playing the whites. Dr. Alekhine now has won 11 games, Bogoljubow five and six have been draws.

AL MARSTERS KEEPS LEAD IN SCORING

Associated Press.

Although he was pretty well bottled up by Yale on Saturday, Al Marsters, great Dartmouth quarterback, scored one touchdown to bring his season's total to 108 points, the highest in the country. His total is 17 points better than that rolled up by Gene McEver, of Tennessee.

The leader in each of the country's eight major groups or conferences follow:

Player and Section.	Pos.	G.	Td.	Pat.	Fg.	Tp.

MORRIS RUNNERUP

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Although Al Marsters added only six points to his record Saturday as Yale turned back the Big Green team, by 16 to 12, the Dartmouth flash remained comfortably ahead of his field in individual scoring. This one touchdown ran Marsters' record to 108 points, 43 more than his nearest competitor.

Morris, of Haverford, scored three touchdowns and an extra point against Johns Hopkins, and assumed second place in the race with 65 points. Hinkle, of Bucknell, contributed two touchdowns to his team's assault upon Temple, moving into third place with 60 points. The 10 leading scorers:

Player and College.	G.	TD.	Pat.	G.	F. Tu. Pts.
Marsters, Dartmouth	6	16	12	0	108

PHARMER'S LEAD INCREASED

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—A touchdown and a successful place kick for the extra point, his contribution to Minnesota's victory over Indiana Saturday, enabled Art Pharmer, Gopher halfback to increase his margin in the Big Ten individual scoring race. His performance lifted his total to 49 points.

Rush Bergherm, Northwestern's workhorse, jumped into second place by scoring the touchdown that subdued Illinois. He brought his total to 32 points, to pass Bill Glassgow, of Iowa, who was idle.

The leaders, including scoring in all games:

FINE PROGRAM FOR BENEFIT

An elaborate program is being arranged for the dance and vaudeville benefit show to be held in the Elks' Club auditorium, Seventh street and Duquesne way, Wednesday evening for the family of the late Johnny Michaels, local featherweight boxer, who recently died from injuries suffered in an automobile accident at Sixth street and Duquesne way.

The masters of ceremonies at the local theaters and cafes will donate their services, as well as acts from the theaters. The master of ceremonies for the evening will be Charles Conroda, assisted by Pat Mulligan. Music will be furnished by Jimmy Comoroda's nine-piece jazz band.

Following is the committee in charge of the affair: George Kelly, treasurer and general chairman; A. R. Millay and Goodie Sulkin, vice chairmen; Max E. Zucker, entertainment; John Deutsch, hall; William Powell, secretary.

Florida Grid Captain Weds In New York

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Rainey Cawthon, captain and fullback of the University of Florida football team, yesterday accomplished what he undoubtedly would describe as the longest run of his career. It consisted of six or seven steps up to the altar in the Little Church Around the Corner, where he married Miss Sarah Lovell Payne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene S. Payne, of Nashville, Tenn.

The entire Florida football squad, which Saturday fulfilled an engagement with Harvard up in Cambridge, attended the wedding, together with John J. Tigert, president of the University of Florida and former National Commissioner of Education, Coach Charles W. Bachman, and Dale Van Sickle, Florida's all-America end of a year ago.

MADDEN, NOTED TURFMAN, DIES

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—John E. Madden, nationally known Kentucky horse breeder, and breeder of six Kentucky Derby winners, died at the Pennsylvania Hotel yesterday after an illness of several days.

Madden, who was 73 years old, had been confined to his suite at the hotel for nearly two months, suffering from heart disease. A week ago his condition was reported much improved, but a relapse caused his death.

The death of Madden was the third among the great leaders of the turf within the past month. Mars Cassidy and Samuel G. Hildreth, widely-known turfmen, died within that period.

Born in Bethlehem, Pa., in 1856, Madden was said never to have known poor health until his fatal illness. In his youth he was noted as a foot racer and also was a widely-known figure in the prize ring.

STARTED AT BOTTOM

With his winnings as a foot racer and his endeavors in the prize ring, he bought an old trotter named Robert McGregor. With that horse Madden won $33,000 and upon that foundation he built a stable of harness horses.

With a vision of greater opportunities in the running game and with comparatively small capital, Madden bought Hamburg Place, a 2,300-acre estate in Kentucky. Here he bred such great horses as Inchcape, Ethelbert, The Finn, Flora Fina, Fayette, Minute Man, Vanilla, White Hackle, Sir Martin and Old Rosebud.

For the last 10 years Madden had lived in New York during the racing season, living at the Hotel Pennsylvania. He retired two years ago, when he was rated as a millionaire and since that time he was reported to have made at least $2,000,000 in Wall Street investments.

Two sons, Joseph and Edward, survive him. None of the members of his family was with him when he died. The body was removed to an undertaking establishment to await the arrival of relatives.

'MASTER OF HAMBURG PLACE'

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—John E. Madden, who died in New York yesterday, was one of the outstanding horse breeders in America. Six Kentucky Derby winners were bred by Madden. These were: Flying Ebony, 1925; Zev, 1923; Paul Jones, 1920; Sir Barton, 1919; Old Rosebur, 1914, and Plaudit, 1898.

Madden was known in Kentucky as the "Master of Hamburg Place," his estate where he bred most of his racers. He wintered his yearlings at Churchill Downs and took

Banquets Too Frequent, Mack Takes to Bed

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Too many banquets have caused Connie Mack, 67-year-old manager of the world champion Athletics, to take to his bed with the advice of his physician that he go slow on social functions for the present. His condition is not serious, it was said, and he expects to be up and about again in a few days.

Since winning the world series, Mack has tended many functions in his honor. He was to have been the guest at the Philopatrians' dinner tomorrow night, but in view of his illness it has been postponed.

RACE IN SOUTH TOPSY TURVY

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Football in the South is in a topsy turvy situation as a result of Saturday's games. The biggest surprise were Vanderbilt's win over the Alabama Crimson Tide, and Kentucky's rout of Clemson.

Tennessee continues to head the pack of five unbeaten teams, but Vanderbilt and Tulane are pressing hard with three victories each. Right behind them are Kentucky and Louisiana State with two apiece.

BEARS CROSS UP DOPE IN FAR WEST

By JESS CARVER

The thunder of Saturday's football pyrotechnics, blasting no fewer than five nationally-recognized elevens from championship ranking, served to clear the collegiate atmosphere in the east and middle west, but put the situation on the west coast into more of a fog than ever.

The outstanding result of the week-end campaigning was the establishing of Pitt as the leader in the East, the Panthers maintaining a perfect undefeated and untied record by brushing aside the challenge of Ohio State. As Yale toppled Dartmouth, Pitt becomes the acknowledged leader of the eastern drive. The pathway of the Panther for the remainder of the season is far from clear, however, for Carnegie Tech and Wash-Jeff, to say nothing of Penn State, are lurking just around the corner, ready to put the slug on the Pitt beast should it let down for a fraction of a wink.

NOTRE DAME ON TOP

In the middle west, Minnesota, Purdue and Notre Dame remain on the top. The Irish, following up their victory here a week ago over Carnegie, mowed down one of the hopes of the southland, Georgia Tech, in decisive fashion. Minnesota gave proof of real strength by crushing Indiana and Purdue continued on its way rejoicing with a victory over Wisconsin. Marquette ended the two-year stampede of Detroit University, checking the Titians by holding them to a 6-6 tie.

On the far coast, California crossed up things and folks by presenting an inspired eleven against Southern California, and walloping the Trojans 15 to 7. The Golden Bears can clinch the coast title by beating Pop Warner's Stanford Cardinals later in the drive, as U. S. C. has already taken the measure of Pop's team. This, however, figures to be a pretty tough job. Pop has a habit of foolin' people in just such a situation as this.

GROVE CITY BEATEN

Locally, in the tri-state district, things happened with devastating effect. The folks in Grove City are still running around in circles following the upset victory scored by Waynesburg over Charlie Berry's Crimson. Following Grove City's 34-0 win over Geneva the week previous, the eleven ruled a strong favorite over the Yellow Jackets, who had been kicked around considerable this year.

Thiel held hefty Allegheny to a scoreless tie at Meadville. The Methodists think they should have won the ball game, which they probably should, claiming that Thiel interferred with an Allegheny pass receiver, but with the power Alle-

FUMBLES MAR PITT'S WIN OVER OHIO STATE

BREAKS HELPED PANTHERS --HARPSTER

By Howard Harpster

All-America Quarterback at Carnegie Tech in 1928, now Shady Side Academy Coach.

(Written Exclusively for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.)

In a hard-fought and hard-played, yet not brilliant, football game, a gallant Ohio State team went down under the powerful onslaught of a good Pittsburgh eleven by the score of 18-2 Saturday in the Stadium.

The game, played in a driving rain and on a water-soaked field, was marred by numerous fumbles on the part of both teams.

That Pitt was the better team cannot be questioned, but neither can it be said that the Panther didn't get every break in the game. Only once did Ohio receive even as much as a smile from "Old Man Luck," and that was on a play in the second quarter when the Pitt center made a bad pass and the ball rolled behind the Panthers' goal line for a safety and the only Ohio score.

Howard Harpster

On the sixth play of the game, little Toby Uansa went around Ohio State's left end, held down by Lawton Fontaine, of Akron, for a run of 73 yards and touchdown. This particular play was by far the most spectacular run of the afternoon, and came before a large part of the spectators had gained their seats.

A little later, Pittsburgh carried the ball to Ohio's 19-yard line, but the Buckeye line braced and on fourth down Baker tried a pass which went directly into the arms of McConnell, who was standing on the goal line.

USES POOR JUDGMENT

Instead of knocking down the pass and giving Ohio the ball on the 19-yard line, McConnell used very poor judgment and intercepted the throw. He was downed on the four-yard line and his boner not only placed Ohio in a dangerous position, but also lost 15 yards. On the following play McConnell fumbled a bad pass from center and was tackled behind the goal line for a safety.

Just before the end of the first half, Ohio opened up with its forward passing attack and made its first offensive threat of the game. This spurt was stopped on the Pitt 20-yard line when Montgomery intercepted one of Holman's passes.

Holman was in the hurling role of the Ohio air attack and is a mighty fine forward passer. That the ball was wet and slippery meant nothing at all to the Ohio State quarterback, for time after time he threw accurate passes to his mates.

Many times the receivers dropped what ordinarily would have been easy catches because of the slippery ball. Coffee, however, was an exception, for this halfback made hard catches all over the field. He played a fine game for Ohio in the backfield.

In the third quarter, Pitt recovered a fumbled punt on the Ohio three-yard line. Here Baker, Pitt's quarterback, used the poorest judgment of the afternoon. Instead of giving the ball to Parkinson, the Pitt battering ram, Baker called for a wide end run. Naturally the Ohio backs came in fast and smeared the play for a loss. Then the fighting Ohio team staved off a score for the next three downs.

OHIO LINE GOOD

On the fourth down, Baker finally called Parkinson's signal and the big Pitt fullback carried the ball to within a foot of the goal. Even with the fine goal-line stand that the Buckeyes made, and without wishing to doubt its ability, I feel that Parkinson could surely have fought his way to a score, had he been trusted with the ball on first or second down.

The Ohio line played good football all afternoon, and did things to the Pitt team that no other line has done this season. Barratt, Bell and Fesler all played well.

Bill Bell, the Giant Negro from Akron, was an exceptionally great player.

For Pitt, Donchess, with his fine end play; Uansa, with his fine running and Rooney, because of his great kicking, were the most brilliant. Rooney gave one of the finest exhibitions of kicking a muddy ball that has ever been given here, and the 51,000 fans marveled at his long high spirals.

He placed one kick outside on the Ohio one-yard line, and sent another punt through the air for 63 yards—not an easy feat on such a miserable day.

The Ohio State band was a treat to all eyes and showed a well-drilled, smart looking array of musicians.

Farmer Joe Cooper, of Terre Haute, Ind., who meets Buck McTiernan in the 10-round windup in Motor Square Garden next Monday night, is a protege of Jack Dillon and Bud Taylor, Hoosier fighters. Cooper, a real rube type, travels about the country in an old flivver and his favorite garb is overalls. He has boxed from coast to coast and his record includes the names of Champion Jackie Fields, whom he fought twice; Lew Tendler, Georgie Levine, Billy Alger, Clyde Hull, Alf Mancini, Jack Britton, Bobby LaSalle, Johnny (K. O.) Roberts, Jackie Carr, Chief Payan, Alex Hart Alex Simms and Johnny Fylnn. He has been stopped only once, by Fields, and holds decisions over most of the stars listed above.

PANKA TO DROP BOXING

George (K. O.) Panka, Homestead heavyweight, will revert to his natural fighting style in his future battles, according to his manager, Bunny Buntach. George tried to box in his return bout with the very tall Long Tom Williams and didn't get anywhere and found that his punch was gone after a few rounds of maneuvering. The next time out, which will be soon, he'll go back to throwing his fists early and often at the spot marked X.

Andy Martin, who recently dropped a 10-round decision to Sailor Fay Kosky, Chicago southpaw, at Providence, gets another crack at Fay in Boston Thursday night. Since upsetting the dope at Providence, Kosky has been knocked out in two rounds by Ray Kiser.

OLYMPICS TIE WEST VIEW

By TOM BIRKS

Hard-fought battles marked the playing of yesterday's titular independent gridiron battles, the scores bringing home the fact that the teams are pretty well matched and the champion much in doubt.

West View, the 1928 champion, and the Olympics battled to a scoreless tie at Rainbow Gardens; Burns nosed out Midland by a 7-to-6 score after a terrific battle, and Greenfield Community and Hope-Harvey played a 0-0 tie at Exposition Park.

At the Quarry grounds, the East Pittsburgh Firemen, showing the strongest offensive they have flashed all season, defeated McChesneytown 7 to 0, a 40-yard forward pass with only three minutes to go turning the trick. East Liverpool defeated New Castle 15 to 0. The New Kensington Olympics stopped the Verona Moose, 7 to 6. Blawnox and Millvale Amici also finished 0-0. Imperial bumped off Allison Park, 13 to 7.

BURNS GETS FRIGHT

Midland gave the Burns supporters quite a fright, the club coached by Doc Benedict scoring in the first half with Sunday carrying over the ball, Burns came back strong in the third period and Sharkey took over the ball, and then plunged for the extra point.

Ten thousand fans stormed their way into Rainbow Gardens to watch the champion tangle with the Olympics. It was a battle between two powerful lines, and both refused to give. The teams played extremely safe Berkman and Schachern were great field generals, neither having the edge in the getting away punts. Newlin got away for a beautiful end run that netted 25 yards, and Mayrille intercepted a pass, running 40 yards. It was a great tackle by Captain Bull Boyer that saved the day for the Olympics.

There is some talk of playing the second game between the clubs at Forbes Field, using the flood lights, but while it was talked over, nothing was officially said.

SWETONIC, LAYDEN ATTEND

A number of luminaries of various sports were at the game, Steve Swetonic, Pirate hurler, was on the West View side, while Elmer Layden, Duke Mentor took in the game from the Olympics' bench.

Fans were surprised at the result of the Majestics-Greenfield game, it was figured Art Rooney's stars would take O'Neil's club. However, the Greenfielders produced a lineup that gave the Majestics plenty to think about, including having the ball on the Majestic one-yard line, although the Big Green line held. Levy starred for the Majestics, while Labelsky, the former Fifth Avenue High School star, played fullback for the Greenfielders. The lineups:

LESSONS IN FOOTBALL

A SUCCESSFULL FAKE CROSSBUCK—INSIDE DEFENSE'S L.TACKLE

A FAKE CROSSBUCK WILL BE MORE EFFECTIVE IF A CROSSBUCK IS GIVING THE DEFENSE PLENTY OF TROUBLE

How and when can a fake crossbuck be used?

Answered by
C. M. PRICE,
Football Coach, University of California.

A system of plays is developed by every coach to take advantage of the the many holes along the line. Also the position of the secondary defense must be considered in the development of a system. The quarterback should know the object of the system. A great deal depends upon his intelligence in calling the right play at the correct time.

A fake play is more successful when it is developed from a strong running play. The running play should be so perfected that it is a constant worry to a defensive team. It should be so strong that it cannot be stopped by the defense without some gain, unless the defensive team has an exceptional man in front of the hole it is supposed to hit. Should the player not be strong enough to take care of the play this would cause a shift in the defense. In shifting a defense to strengthen one spot it naturally would weaken some other hole along the line. The shift may be made by moving men or changing the direction of the defensive charge of the line. When such a condition occurs the quarterback should have at his disposal a fake from the strong running crossbuck in order that he may direct his attack at the defense to stop the cross-buck.

Friedman, Grange Star in Pro Game

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Bennie Friedman and his New York Giants gave the Chicago Bears a lesson in football in their pro game yesterday, and kept their slate clean with a 26-to-14 victory.

Although he did not score, Friedman's play was sensational. Sparkling runs of 38, 66, 33 and 28 yards, and his perfect passes placed the ball in scoring position, from where Tony Plansky went over twice and Flaherty and Snyder counted once each. A fumble by Friedman in the first period gave the Bears a chance to score first, Red Grange taking the ball over.

M'GOORTY, RING VET, DIES

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Many old-time fighters and ring fans from all over the middlewest will go to Oshkosh, Wis., tomorrow to attend the funeral services for Eddie McGoorty, one of the greatest middleweights in the history of boxing.

Eddie M'Goorty

McGoorty died late Saturday night after a long illness. Although never recognized as middleweight champion, McGoorty fought and defeated almost every man in that division, when it was crowded with great fighters. A good boxer and a great slugger, McGoorty defeated Jack Dillon, Jimmy Clabby, Hugo Kelly, Frank Klaus, Gus Christie, Ray Bronson, George Chip and Mike and Jack (Twin) Sullivan. The title was in dispute during McGoorty's time, but his claim to the crown was as imposing as that of any man in the division.

After campaigning in this country he toured the world, winning the middleweight and heavyweight championships of Australia. He later dropped both titles to the late Les Darcy, and returned to the United States. He owned a string of race horses for a time, but went to Chicago about six years ago, where he operated a gymnasium and refereed boxing matches.

McGoorty for several months had been in a Milwaukee hospital seeking relief from a throat ailment which finally caused his death.

Bix Six Conference Race Open Battle

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—With Nebraska idle this week-end and Missouri playing out of the Conference, the two Kansas members of the Big Six, Iowa State and Oklahoma, continue the tituiar conflict, still an open battle.

WAYNESBURG JUBILANT

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Nov. 4.—A stirring midnight demonstration, with several hundred students and townspeople participating, formed the greeting to the Waynesburg College football team upon their return here Saturday night from Grove City, where Saturday afternoon they caused the biggest upset of the season in tri-state football ranks by defeating Grove City, 12-to-7.

General opinion among sports fans here was that Waynesburg had but little chance to win from the Mercer County collegians, and as a result, less than 25 accompanied the team to Grove City. News of the victory, however, stirred Waynesburg students and upon their return the team was met six miles out of town by motor cars and escorted to the college building, where an impromptu midnight rally was staged in the College Chapel.

Speeches were made by Coach Wolf and other members of the team. Yesterday the coveted football used in the Grove City game, with the score written on it's side, was displayed in a store window on the town square here.

Jockey Breaks Neck and Back Before Throng

Long's Sport Comment

and determination. The visitors' goal line defense when, after Collins recovered a kick on their two-yard line, Pitt was stopped inches from the goal, deserves mention, even though it was aided by Baker's execrable judgment in calling a sweeping end run on the first play, when he obviously should have plugged the line or cut off tackle, with a virtual assurance of a score within the four possible plays, possessing such ball carriers as Parkinson and Uansa.

Jim Rooney.

TWO Pitt touchdowns were prevented by the alert defensive tactics of McConnell and Holman, but the Panthers put one over on the first play of the final quarter, when, they had been stopped on three running plays and had no possible alternative from the 23-yard line, but a forward pass, on their sole remaining chance.

For this expected pass Ohio State deployed itself properly, but Uansa made a blood-stirring grab of Rooney's toss and miraculously evaded two diving tackles. In the opinion of many of the onlookers this was the headline play of the game.

WHILE there had never been any doubt that Carnegie Tech would defeat Washington University decisively, the showing of the Skibos was none the less pleasing. Their continued improvement makes their annual battle with Pitt one week from next Saturday all the more attractive.

Incidentally, Murray Armentrout's great work bore out earlier indications that he is going to be the Plaid's greatest ball carrier next season unless Howard Eyth continues to improve. The Skibos will rest next Saturday while Pitt and Wash-Jeff are settling their annual debate.

THE fall of Dartmouth, Southern California and Clemson on Saturday, and the tying of Detroit and Texas, eliminating those five teams from the list of elevens that had not been defeated nor tied, were among the features of Saturday's grid developments. To these may be added the fact that Yale kept up its record of never having lost a game to Dartmouth; that Hoot Ellis, a sub halfback, took the limelight away from Booth and Marsters in the New Haven struggle; that Notre Dame's easy victory over Georgia Tech strengthened the impression that the Irish had not shown their full power against Carnegie Tech here a week earlier; that the tying of Detroit by Marquette interrupted Detroit's string of 19 consecutive victories, won since the defeat at Notre Dame's hands in 1927; that Northwestern defeated Illinois for the first time in 17 years, and that California spilled the coast dope by downing Southern California after the latter had beaten Stanford.

Indian to Give Study Course To Local Boys

With a program chock full of out of door life interests, Chief Joe Friday, full-blooded Objiwa Indian from the Canadian woods, will conduct a course of Indian lore and nature study at the East Liberty Y. M. C. A. for the month of November, Chief Friday is also slated to make several appearances in various East End churches to talk to Sunday school groups and young people's societies.

His first appearance was made yesterday at the Christ Methodist Episcopal Sunday school, where he spoke to junior departments on outdoor life and religion. During the remainder of the week he has plans for several hikes for boys which will include lads of all ages. On Wednesday afternoon after school Chief Friday will take a jaunt with boys between the ages of 12 and 15 years, while the 11-year-olds are scheduled for Friday and the 10-year-olds for Saturday morning.

them East in the spring. His Hamburg Place is one of the show places of Kentucky, and contains the horse cemetary, which has caused National comment.

Several years ago Madden decided to sell his horses, and keep only Sir Martin. The famous trainer at one time took Sir Martin to the Epson Derby, in England, and the great horse fell while in the lead. He said he retained Sir Martin for sentimental reasons. Incidentally, Sir Martin is the sire of Spinach, which William Ziegler, Jr., recently purchased and which was beaten a nose by Flying Heels in the Pimlico Futurity.

Among famous horses, Madden has owned was Imp, Starshoot, which led American sires for the amount of winnings gathered by his get for a number of years.

Routis and Abad Head All-Star Show

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—St. Louis will enter the list of big league boxing centers tomorrow night with a pretentious program marking the opening for fistic shows of the city's new $2,000,000 arena, seating 21,000 persons, which recently housed the National Dairy Show.

Heading the fight club card will be a 10-round bout between Andre Routis, of France, former featherweight titleholder, and Davy Abad, Panama title contender, who will meet at 130 pounds. In the supporting card, Benny Bass, Philadelphia, also former titleholder, meets Augie Pisano, New York City, in 10 rounds, and Eddie Shea, Chicago, swaps blows with Johnny (Pee Wee) Kaiser, St. Louis, in 10 rounds.

NET MOGULS TO MEET

NEW YORK RANGERS BEGIN PRACTICE

HOCKEY STARS PREPARE FOR NEW SEASON

Photo shows New York Rangers hockey club, of the National Professional Hockey League, gathered about Manager Lester Patrick (at left) prior to staging first workout at Springfield, Mass. Season opens November 24. The Pittsburgh club is in training at Fort Erie, Ont. Many new players are in training with the local professionals.

P. T. A. CONFAB SLATED FOR TONIGHT

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN.

Pittsburgh Tennis Association moguls will foregather in semi-annual conclave at the Pittsburgh Athletic Association at 8 o'clock this evening. Representatives of all clubs affiliated with the district net organization will attend, which means that delegates are scheduled to be on hand from the P. A. A., Edgewood, Stanton Heights, Westinghouse, University Club, College Hill, South Hills, College Avenue, Mt. Lebanon, Wilkinsburg, Minnetonka and Duquesne Light.

The chief business of the meeting will be the official report of Chairman J. Phillips Davis upon the forty-first annual Western Pennsylvania championships held at Stanton Heights last June. Following this a general discussion of plans for the 1930 campaign will be in order. P. T. A. officers and committeemen have been seeking for several months to formulate a more pretentious tournament schedule for next year and, while definite conclusions along this line have yet to be reached, it is entirely probable that tonight's session will be productive of action toward extending the card of tri-state competitive play.

Another important point to be passed upon at the Winged Head séance is the matter of Mt. Lebanon's using Alcorn twice in the doubles of the Lebanonites' successful challenge of University Club in the intersectional post-season playoff for the right to place in Section 1 of the interclub loop next summer. Inasmuch as University Club consented to Alcorn's dual appearance, it is unlikely that anything will be done to upset the result of the tussle, although the affair cannot be settled without pronouncement upon it by the association.

TWO SKATERS JOIN BUCS

PORT ERIE, Nov. 4.—The Pirate hockey squad, in training here, was augmented by two new members yesterday with the arrival in camp of Archie Briden, sorrel-topped speed merchant from Calgary, and Owen Ahern, the 20-year-old lad secured from St. Francis Xavier team of Montreal. The additions reported to Manager Frederickson in time to participate in yesterday's workout at the local arena. With Briden and Ahern in the fold the squad is complete, bringing the total of candidates now working out up to 16.

Following the strenuous session on the ice, Manager Frederickson gave his cohorts an hour's blackboard lecture, stressing the changes in the playing code. Future discourses will have to do with trick plays and sundry formations that will be used for the first time this season.

Frederickson is finding it difficult to arrange exhibition games since most of the minor league clubs have already made up their programs and schedules.

The Bucs will continue their daily sessions here until the opening of the season. The Pittsburghers are scheduled to inaugurate the new campaign on their own ice November 16 against the Montreal Maroons.

Tex White, who was severely cut over the left eye in the initial practice last Friday, is back on the job and is none the worse for his experience. The wound is not entirely closed, but sufficient enough to permit the elongated wingman to take part in the workouts.

BRUINS MEET ARROWS

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—Philadelphia fans will see another world champion team in action this week with the official opening of the ice hockey season here on Saturday night when the champion Boston Bruins clash with the Philadelphia Arrows in an exhibition game. The game will serve as a practice session for the two teams for the American and National Hockey League games starting next week.

Physicians Abandon Hope for McGinnity

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—Joe McGinnity, noted former Giant pitcher, who is suffering from a tumor was "holding his own" today at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Marguerite Lappen, in Brooklyn.

Physicians have given up hope for McGinnity's recovery, saying his death is merely a matter of days.

Panthers Take National Grid Leadership

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—With the downfall of Dartmouth and Clemson and the scoreless tie Texas University waged with Southern Methodist, Pittsburgh has taken the lead among the nation's score or so of undefeated football teams. Pittsburgh has rolled up 202 points in six consecutive victories.

There were only 14 unbeaten and untied teams today, with another dozen or so unbeaten but tied. Only Texas and St. Mary's, California, could boast an uncrossed goal line.

PANTHERS LEAD IN EAST

gheny has, it should not have needed to depend on one touchdown.

TITANS ADVANCE

Westminster marched up a peg in the Tri-State Class B Conference standing by beating Bethany. Beating Bethany is getting to be a weekly occurrence.

Pitt exhibited all the power necessary to beat Ohio State. The Buckeyes while they presented a strong defense, failed to show any offensive power to brag of and except for a brief time in the final period, when they completed a 32-yard pass, did not threaten to score.

Wesley Fesler, the highly touted end, played well enough but did not give an outstanding exhibition. He was greatly outplayed in the game by Joe Donchess, Pitt's fine end, but rallied strongly later on and was a potent factor in the Ohio State defense later in the game.

All in all, there have been more impressive demonstrations of end play seen hereabouts before.

UANSA IMPRESSIVE

Toby Uansa, who has the happy faculty of arising to the occasion just when the occasion needs risen to, stole the show with his thrilling 73-yard dash for a touchdown and continued to keep his figure in the center of things by a consistent display of good football. He scored the second touchdown later in the day and on a dry turf, would have been away time and again on the Pitt reserve plays.

Jimmy Rooney gave one of the finest rainy day kicking performances that has ever been seen in Pittsburgh. He got his boots off fast, and sent two of 'em sailing over the head of Holman, Ohio's safety man, who was playing plenty deep. Once he kicked better than 56 yards, out of bounds on the Ohio State two yard line. That, you know, is kicking as is kicking.

TECH EASY VICTOR

Carnegie Tech won handily over Al Sharpe's Washington University team at St. Louis. The Missouri Valley Conference entry was no match for the Skibo attack, which, incidentally, functioned very satisfactorily with several of its important cogs missing.

The Plaid has a full two weeks of rest ahead, which will be used to get the team in condition for the all-important fracas with Pitt.

By serving Lafayette so decisive a lacing, Wash-Jeff established itself as a very snaggy barrier in the path of Pitt. She Presidents will be here this week for the annual meeting with the Panthers. The game will be the second in a row in which Pitt will test its mettle against an undefeated team. Two ties mar the otherwise perfect slate of the Presidents, one with Temple and one with Tech.

STATE COMES THROUGH

Penn State nosed out Syracuse, 6 to 4, scoring early and making the lead stand up. The Lions move into Philadelphia this week for a session with Old Penn.

Lou Little made in two in a row over New York University and Chick Meehan, his Georgetown eleven beating the Violets, 13 to 0. This has been a dreary fall for friend Meehan. Fordham started things with a decisive 27-0 licking and with Carnegie Tech Rutgers, Missouri and Georgia yet to be played, the New Yorkers are still far from being out of the woods.

Bo McMillan, who broke the ice a week ago by winning his first major game with his Kansas Aggies, made it two in a row and upset the Missouri Tiger 7 to 6. Nebraska trumed back Kansas in a second Conference tussle.

Chicago upheld the honor of the Big Ten against Princeton as Ohio State failed against Pitt, beating the Tigers by 15 to 7. Harvard came back nobly after being crushed by Dartmouth and defeated Florida.

Bucknell succeeded where Wash-Jeff failed and beat Temple. The chances are that the sensational Presidents softened up the Philadelphians considerable.

Vanderbilt remained in the running in the South by beating Alabama. Clemson bowed to Kentucky, 44-6, and Tennessee copped another, downing Auburn (Alabama Poly).

M'KECHNIE TO KEEP RABBIT

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Walter Maranville is a top-heavy favorite for the shortstop job on the revamped Braves, so far as one Willie McKechnie is concerned, and that's the only fellow Rabbit will have to please next season.

"Yes, sir, Rabbit is going to stay right where he is," said Manager McKechnie today in discussing his lowly, but deserving ball team.

McKechnie is one pilot who realizes Maranville's worth. Bill probably appreciates the fact that the veteran was one of the important factors in the winning of the 1928 flag in St. Louis, and Rabbit followed up this season with another banner year in campaign just closed. In two years he has showed he can be a winner with a winner or a loser.

FOND OF RABBIT

"I certainly am fond of Maranville," continued McKechnie. "He's a great little ball-player and he is a popular one. I cannot tell much about the other infield positions. Second base is a big problem with Jimmy James and Freddie Maguire available for the spot.

"We have drafted Johnny Neun who is supposed to be a high-class first baseman. If he can live up to his boosts he stands well to supplant George Sisler, who is still quite a player.

"The best bet we have for third base is Recruit Rollings whom we secured from the Hollywood club of the Pacific Coast League. But we have all kinds of work ahead of us and before the spring training season starts, we may be able to put over a deal or two. I expect to attend the minor league meeting in Chattanooga and will be ready to pick any of the promising minor league boys.

HERE THIS WEEK

McKechnie will remain in Wilkinsburg part of this week. After discharging his vote on Tuesday he will make preparations for a jaunt to Boston. Skipper Bill expects to go into conference with other Brave officials with a view of strengthening his team.

The Wilkinsburg citizen is back from his first hunting expedition of the season. The quest for game was a right smart successful one, but the weather was unusually hot for the period of the year.

"It was too hot for a double-header," said McKechnie in describing the first official day the nimrods took to the woods.

Chillysauce

"Pennsylvania, there she stands!" to borrow from Daniel Webster's proud declaration on Massachusetts.

Over in the Eastern end of the state Professor Cornelius McGillicuddy has the biggest baseball title of all sewed up, while here in the Western end, Dr. Jock Sutherland is just about ready to tuck away the grid championship.

Have to watch for a few bricks from the South Bend sector after that last crack about the football championship.

VERY LIKE WINE

Dex Very is like wine—he improves with age. Dexter was quite dexterous as he hurled about in the raindrops Saturday.

If you think those senators have put President Hoover in a tough spot, just imagine what the Reds are liable to do to Dan Howley.

Murphy Duplicates Famous Grid Feat

STORRS, Conn, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Murphy, Connecticut Aggies' halfback, duplicated one of the feats made famous by the Carlisle Indians when he ran back a punt in the game with Vermont here Saturday, the ball hidden under his arm at the time. The ball became defiated as he caught the punt and officials and players alike did not know who had the ball. The Aggies won the game, 34 to 0.

Gridder, Injured In Last Seconds Of Game, Dies

CASPER, Wyo., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Benjamin Gallus, fullback on the Midwest Wyoming High School football team, died Saturday of concussion of the brain, suffered in a game Friday night with Casper. The injury resulted from a hard tackle by Gallus of a Casper player 20 seconds before the end of the contest.

HAZLETON, Pa., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Injuries sustained in a recent football game caused the death of Andrew D. Felsner, 17, of Freeland, at the State Hospital here yesterday.

NEWBY, W. & J. STAR, INJURED

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 4.—Irvin L. Newby, of Pittsburgh, substitute lineman on the Washington and Jefferson football team, lies in Washington Hospital today with a fractured vertebrae, as a result of an injury sustained in Saturday's game with Lafayette. Newby, a junior, who had gone into the game in the first period at right tackle to replace Capt. Jap Douds, was hurts in the first play.

He had scarcely entered the fray when the Presidents kicked and Newby tackled Left End McKean, of Lafayette, who caught the ball. The two players came together with terrific force, McKean being saved by ducking his head as Newby launched his 190 pounds at him. The W. & J. player's head was almost literally driven back between his shoulders, The impact being sufficient to crack a vertebrae.

He was carried off the field unconscious and rushed to the hospital, where X-Ray pictures disclosed the fracture. While he is suffering intense pain, and will be forced to carry a plaster cast for sometimes, his condition is not regarded as critical. Newby occupies the same room at the hospital as Schnebly, a freshman star, who was injured in the Carnegie Tech freshman game of several weeks ago, but who is recovering.

Owning a certain confidence produced by the fact that they gave their best and defeated a good team by playing the best football they knew, Washington and Jefferson gridders this afternoon will start their five-day period of preparation for Pitt in a frame of mind that is expected to bring them to the peak of their form at the end of the week.

Several one-sided scores marked yesterday's district soccer battles. Thoms Run set down Cecil, 2 to 1, in a fast game at the former's field, with Baufoldi playing the star role and tallying the winning goal.

Gallatin humiliated Harwick under a smarting 4-goals-to-0 victory, with Broggi registering three of the four points. The Heidelberg Eagles walloped the Beadling eleven 7 to 0, while Kramer received a sound whipping at the hands of the Cuddy Eagles, 5 to 1.

Beaver Falls was blanked by Crucible, 3 goals to 0, and Sunnyside toppled Vestaburg, 6 to 0. In the latter tilt, Davis scored three goals.

Other contests saw Jessop setting down Cokeburg, 2 to 1, Mather trimming Donora, 4 to 1, Horning tripping Bridgmont, 2 to 1; Canonsburg bowing to Avella, 1 to 0, and Fitzhenry and Dunlevy battling to a 1-all deadlock.

PROMOTER DIES

SCRANTON, Pa., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Charles Burke, well-known fight promoter and manager of boxers, died of a heart ailment in the Mercy hospital here yesterday morning. He had been in poor health since he suffered a stroke at a local boxing match about four months ago. He is survived by a sister and a brother, of Quebec, and New York City, respectively.

$182,809,372 INCOME TAX IN STATE

New York and Illinois Only States to Top Pennsylvania In Corporation Returns

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Individuals and corporations of the state of Pennsylvania last year paid the Federal government $182,809,373 in income taxes, representing levies on incomes for the calendar year 1927, according to a report of the Treasury Department.

The report revealed that the total income for the corporations and individuals in the state was $2,898,319,265 during the year, of which $806,494,084 was credited to corporations and $8,091,825,217 to individuals.

Pennsylvania was only led by New York and Illinois in the amount of corporation tax paid.

New York paid a total corporation tax of $324,572,832 and Illinois $107,498,653, almost $4,000,000 more than Pennsylvania.

$2,000,000 INCREASE

The figures for Pennsylvania represent an increase of approximately $2,000,000 on individual returns over the year previous, with an average individual tax payment per return of $206.29 for 1927, as compared with $193 the year before. At the same time, the average net income reported per individual, increased from $5,378 in 1926, to $5,484 in 1927. Even so there was a slight reduction in total net income from $2,138,168,594 in the first year named, to $2,091,825,217 in the latter period.

By far the largest class of individual returns—93,801—in the state came from those having net incomes ranging from $1,000 to $2,000, with a total net income of $154,232,535. The next largest group included those with incomes from $3,000 to $4,000, of which there were 84,486. The class between $5,000 and 56,000 numbered 16,562, while those in the category of $10,000 to $11,000 were 3,921.

20 MILLIONAIRES

In the higher brackets of incomes the largest amount paid by any one class of returns came from those reporting $30,000 to $40,000, there being 2,317 such returns, on which a total tax of $4,542,888 was paid. The net income of this group amounted to $79,804,209 alone.

Two persons in Pennsylvania paid tax on incomes of between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000 while one person reported an income in excess of $5,000,000.

There were two with incomes between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000 and six paid tax on the equivalent of about $2,000,000. Three others were classed in the $1,500,000 and $2,000,000 bracket, with 20 Pennsylvanians rated from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000.

Persons with incomes of $100,000 and $150,000 paid by far the highest tax of any others in the state. There were 565 of these with net incomes aggregating $68,301,841 on which a tax of $9,272,181 sur-taxes amounted to $6,545,610.

The report indicated that there are more than 3,000 persons in Pennsylvania who may be rated as millionaires. That is, there were 3,299 who filed returns on incomes of $50,000 or over. If those are added who had incomes ranging from $40,000 to $50,000 the number is increased by 1,301.

A picture of the state's industrial establishment is contained in a section of the report showing that the gross income of Pennsylvania corporations reached the huge total of $9,986,471,911 in 1927 with more than 53 per cent reporting net incomes.

While Philadelphia County led the state in the number of individual tax returns with 95,717, Allegheny was a close second, 91,223 having been filed from there. Pittsburgh furnished 58,228.

Pennsylvania's metal and metal products manufacture showed a gross income of $2,329,252,666 for the year and a net of $155,441,912, the gross being more than one-third of the total for the entire country in 1921.

Two double brick houses at the southwest corner of Belonda and Halpin streets, Mt. Washington, have been sold by Frank H. Clark to Thomas H. Reid for $25,850. The lot is 100x104 feet.

John A. Kapp, Jr., builder, has sold to Ernest N. Calhoun a new brick house on 83x105 feet in Lingrove place, Fourteenth Ward. This house is a part of the development on the former Ohringer property in Juniata place.

The Peoples Pittsburgh Trust Company sold for the Armstrong estate to Sam Yarov 40x120 feet with a house at 5602 Baum boulevard for $18,000.

A property in Forbes street near Beechwood boulevard, Fourteenth Ward, has been sold by Jane M. Smith to A. Wilson McCandless.

The Columbia Steel and Shafting Company has purchased from Richard Powell 70x160 feet adjoining their property in Weirton street, Twenty-eighth Ward, near the Carnegie Borough line.

A property in Bunker Hill street, Eleventh Ward, has been sold by Thomas J. Ward to Edgar C. Hibbets. The lot is 42x192 feet.

In Crafton, Herbert W. Graffius has sold to Edmund J. Jublou 50x100 feet with a brick and shingle dwelling in Mueller avenue.

In Dormont, the Dormont Park Land Company has sold 50x120 feet in Grasmere avenue, Dormont Park plan, to A. W. Peterson.

Hair Bobbing Held 'Form of Lunacy' By Clergyman

PORTSMOUTH, England.—(AP.)—Women who bob their hair are committing "sexual suicide," believes the Rev. C. F. Aspinwall, vicar of St. Bartholomew's Church.

"They are suffering from a mental disease akin to lunacy," he wrote in the current issue of the parish magazine. "It is the greatest sin committed by women since Eve took the apple in Eden.

"Can anyone imagine a woman less like what God intended her to appear than with a short-cropped head, horn-rimmed spectacles, a man's waistcoat, arms burned a nasty copper color like a red Indian, socks like a comic child in a pantomime, or stockings like a draught-board or a bookie's waistcoat?"

NORMANS WAIT VIKING SHIP

PARIS.—(INS.)—No prayers for delivery from the fury of the Northmen will herald the arrival here of the Norwegian drake Roald Amundsen, exact replica of a Viking warship of old.

The Roald Amundsen is just paying a friendly call, however. The vessel is en route to South America on a good will voyage, and will cruise the Mediterranean before crossing the South Atlantic.

BRITAIN CHECKS STOCK SLUMP

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The London markets this week resembled a small boy with an armful of apples struggling defiantly as myriad playmates tried to snatch them away from him. At the end of the week Mother Britannia came to the lad's assistance and put the michief-makers to rout—temporarily at least.

In the beginning of the week the Wall Street slump caused a fractional downmarking of prices in London, but there was little other immediate reaction. On Tuesday the Amsterdam raids, caused by the New York slump, resulted in a feeling of worry in the London financial district, which was increased by the weakness of the Swedish markets.

The recurrence of the New York slump on Tuesday and Wednesday brought a feeling of slight alarm and an acute reaction, when the Paris Bourse slumped resulting from the dumping of English stocks by Continental buyers.

Just when the situation was beginning to assume serious proportions Wall Street recovered and the Bank of England reduced the discount rate from 6½ per cent to 6 per cent.

3 Killed as Auto Crashes Into Deer

BERLIN.—(INS.)—Two men were killed and a third mortally injured when an auto ran into a deer crossing the road near Kassel. The auto turned over and buried its three passengers.

BERLIN MARKET STRONGER

BERLIN, Nov. 4.—The Berlin Bourse, after a nervous reaction to the Wall Street slump, showed a slight improvement toward th close of the week.

Optimism developed as a result of the first benefit reaped by the German market, From New York stock flurry—The reduction of the discount rate following similar reductions in New York, London and Amsterdam, and the promise of easier money.

Some look toward the return of English, French and German money to European bourses as a result of the New York slump. Furthermore, the increasing interest of American speculators not only in German bonds, but also in German industrial shares, is expected. The latter at the present prices and present rate of dividend are considered highly desirable.

There certainly will be increased loans to Germany. On the other hand some are inclined to believe that the flow of European money, even American money, toward Europe will not come as quickly and in such volumes as might be expected.

Dared she open her eyes? Was it only a dream?

BANKERS HALT BIG RAID ON STOCKS

Seeking to Place Blame For Recent Debacle Held To Be Childish Efforts

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—An aftermath of the speculative debacle in Wall Street, from which there has been a sharp rebound, is the pursuit of goats.

The search for guilty personalities has become an especially popular pastime on Capitol Hill, but has been limited to political quarters. The Democratic senators blame the Republican administration, and the Republican solons seek to fix the responsibility on Democrats, especially on John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic National Committee. These efforts are singularly childish and naive.

FALSE SENSE OF VALUES

The causes lie deeper in human nature. At various interludes in all ecuntries and in all periods of history, the public becomes strangely deluded with a false sense of values. Intemperateness led to th building of an inflated price structure, whose correction was only a matter of time.

There has also been criticism of the big six bankers, but it is part of the record that once they get started they worked with rare ingenuity to turn back the destructive forces. The criticism has been made, however, that they started too late. One leading independent financier insist that the banking consortium, which put in bids to support pivotal stocks around midday on Black Thursday, after the beginning of the collapse, should have had supporting bids in on previous days before the great setback which temporarily destroyed confidence, got under way.

DO GOOD WORK

But once the bankers got organized, they did magnificent work in mobilizing the integrating forces of the country. They doubtless felt that to place supporting bids too high would be to invite additional liquidation. Accordingly, they placed bids below the market. Naturally, the shorn lambs are irritated at the thought that the rescuing bankers' consortium picked up shares at bargain prices. They would not expect those who do relief work at an earthquake to make handsome profits. Yet this fact is perhaps inherent in the nature of the profits system. The economic system rewards service and it is a service to take stocks from the market when the frenzied crowd is seeking to get rid of them irrespective of price.

Of course, the difficulties of the New York bankers, who labored valiantly to bring financial order out of chaos—and succeeded—were enormously intensified by the rush to safety of competing suppliers of loans to brokers. Last week's experience proved what the really experienced Wall Street financiers always knew, namely, that the great New York banks were virtually the only responsible makers of loans to brokers, who felt a continuing responsibility toward the stock exchange and the local money market.

BOOTLEG LENDERS

Even out of town and foreign banks have looked upon the Wall Street money market as something for exploitation at their convenience. The bootleg lenders—the corporations, wealthy capitalists, investment trusts and foreign agencies—proved themselves distinctly irresponsible lenders who looked no further than their own profits and convenience. Accordingly, as long had been feared, these huge bootleg loans, though perhaps capital, rather than credit, constituted a potential call on bank reserves in times of emergency.

In spite of a record-breaking reduction of brokers' loans to the extent of $1,096,000,000 last week, New York banks in the emergency had to add $992,000,000 to the pool of loanable funds to make up for the spectacular and excited withdrawals by out-of-town banks and bootleg lenders. In a single week the bootleg lenders ruthlessly called in $1,380,000,000 in loans, or more than one-third of their total advances to brokers. In addition, out-of-town banks pulled $707,000,000 of loans out of the street.

FRAUGHT WITH HAZARDS

If the New York banks had sought to join the emotional procession of the irresponsible lenders, the effect would have been ugly to contemplate. The lesson of the week is that the growth of an invisible, outlaw banking system is fraught with great hazards. As long as it continues, the responsible New York banks must hold back a reserve lending power, as they did this time, in order to step in during an emergency. What the New York banks did as lenders was at least as important as what the banking consortium did in the matter of bidding for stocks. Of course, the gesture in reducing marginal requirements on Tuesday at 25 per cent was an effective stroke in taking pressure off the situation, and that paved the way for the resultant rally.

Fortunately, the business situation, in respect to credit, balanced inventories, the lack of inflation in commodity prices, is strongly intrenched and in a good position to withstand the shocks to which it has been subjected. Doubtless there will be some temporary curtailment of purchasing power for luxuries—partly on account of American practice to confuse capital gains with income.

BUREAU RESPONSIBLE

The Internal Revenue Bureau is largely responsible for this confusion, for it treats speculative profits as income for tax purposes. Warning against this practice in his last annual report, A. W. Wiggin, chairman of the Chase National Bank, said:

"To an undue extent in recent years the American people have been selling capital assets at a profit and necessarily treating the profit as income. Fortunately they have recapitalized by investment part of the profit, but not all has been recapitalized. A substantial part has been spent in current consumption, partly luxury consumption, and the volume of consumer demand has undoubtedly been increased thereby."

In the coming weeks, the prudent investor will seek to distinguish between temporary lulls and long-term outlook in business.

Luxury Lines May Feel Effect of Break

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

IN THE discussions among traders and investors of the merits of individual stocks one viewpoint stands out above all of the conflicting opinions: "If the break in the market does hurt business, the luxury lines will the first to be affected."

No one knows just how much money has been taken out of the market during the past two years to buy socalled luxuries. There is room for much debate as to whether the articles placed in this class actually are luxuries but it is undoubtedly true that some stock market profits have been used for the purchase of new motor cars, new furniture and other things which might not have been bought at all or the purchase of which might have been deferred.

It is also true that much of these profits was reinvested by the purchase of stocks on an outright basis or of less speculative securities. In many cases these investments have taken the form of new homes or the reduction of indebtedness against properties bought in the past.

Purchasing Power

WHILE the drop in purchasing power resulting from the elimination of stock market profits is hard to gauge, there has also been a further curtailment resulting from bank balances being reduced by margin calls. It is much more likely that future purchases will be hurt by the drawing in of surplus cash by the market in this way than by the wiping out of profits.

It would be a mistake, however, to over-emphasize the effect of the break on general business. Probably the biggest part of the losses were paper profits. Eventually these profits might have added to the general purchasing power but they had not yet reached this stage. By far the biggest part of the losses will have no effect on commercial activity.

In commenting on this problem the Alexander Hamilton Institute says: "It cannot be assumed that anything like the total of values erased represents a deduction from the purchasing power over goods."

Fundamental Industries

MANY of those who have been commenting on what the break may do to the automobile industry and to other lines exposed to the same conditions forget that any pronounced slump will affect practically all lines of activity. The directly affected industries would feel such a blow more keenly but eventually it would be passed on down the line.

The automobile industry is one of the biggest customers of the steel makers. It is the biggest buyer of glass. Both of these groups of manufacturers are numbered among our fundamental industries but any depression in the production of motor cars would result in at least a moderate slump in their activity.

Record Year

THE present year will see the establishment of a large number of new records in industrial activity. Factory employment in September reached the highest level of any month since March, 1927. But there have been rather definite signs of a tendency towards a tapering off in business activity within the past few weeks. Part of this has been seasonal but such things as weakness in steel prices indicate a change of more lasting character.

While business in the early months of 1930 may not be at the high levels of the corresponding period of this year, there is no reason to believe that any serious depression can occur. There are no big inventories in manufacturers' and distributors' hands which must be moved. The change to a hand to mouth buying policy, which industry was lamenting two years ago, has turned out to be the best form of insurance. When the country has no vast accumulation of undistributed products its industries cannot work at a low rate for very long.

I. C. C. Wins Review In St. Paul Case

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—The Interstate Commerce Commission was granted a review by the U. S. Supreme Court of the lower court decision enjoining enforcement of the commission's order authorizing the new Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific R. R. to issue certain certificates in connection with reorganization of the old St. Paul. The company sought to be relieved of conditions under which the issue was authorized.

Well Completions Down in October

OIL CITY, Pa., Nov. 4.—The Derrick says that completions in the oil fields east of the Rocky Mountains during October totaled 2,415, an increase of 171. Initial production was 412,793 barrels, a decrease of 105,854. Dry holes aggregated 673, an increase of 31, and gas wells totaled 262, a gain of 22. At the close of October there were 4,913 rigs and drilling wells, a decrease of 183.

American Can Co. Loses Tax Appeal

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals today upheld judgment of the Federal District Court in refusing the American Can Company and three of its subsidiaries the right to recover $3,902,936 income and excess profits taxes paid under protest on inventory depreciation in the year 1917.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Strong support came into the bond market today and prices in all divisions of the general list moved sharply higher in response to the brisk investment demand. Gains in the early trading ranged between 1 and 2 points among the more active issues, with railroad bonds, industrials and utilities of good grade sharing the rise. United States government securities displayed the greatest activity in months and made some wide advances. The upturn, following the weakness of bonds last week as holdings were liquidated to provide funds for stock market purposes, erased those losses. Trading was on a large scale in scores of gild-edge obligations. Convertibles were lower in sympathy with the declining share prices.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows; 000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Turn Down | Lone Star Gas Rallies

MARKET TURNS DOWN AFTER ADVANCE

Rally From Opening Dip Checked By Secondary Selling Wave, Profit Sales

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—The stock market, which rallied sharply in the closing sessions of last week, ran into a secondary storm of selling today as Wall Street continued to clean out its impaired marginal accounts and large traders took profits on stocks bought in the breaks of last Monday and Tuesday.

An opening decline, which ran from 1 to nearly 12 points in many of the leaders, was followed by a brisk rally but fresh offerings appeared, and scores of issues were selling 2 to nearly 20 points lower in the early afternoon trading.

Trading started at a terrific pace as blocks of 10,000 to 50,600 shares were thrown into the market, but it slowed up late, and the ticker kept within a half hour of the market.

RATE REDUCED

Since the closing of the market last Thursday, Wall Street received the announcement of a decrease from 6 to 5 per cent in the New York Federal Reserve rediscount rate, the drope of more than one billion dollars in Federal Reserve loans last week and the record-breaking decline of more than two billion dollars in stock exchange member loans last month. Offsetting this was the Foshay failure in the Northwest, and the discovery of hundreds of additional weakened marginal accounts, as a result of the close checking up of records over the week-end.

Call money renewed unchanged today at 6 per cent. Time money and bankers acceptances continued relatively easy. This was reflected in the generally stronger bond market, which attracted a strong investment demand.

STEEL SEE-SAWS

U. S. Steel common, which has been one of the bell-wethers of the recent market, opened 8¼ points lower at 185¼ rallied to 191 and then dropped back to around the opening price. American Telephone converted an early gain of 1¼ into a loss of 11½ points. General Electric extended its opening loss of 3 points to 16¾.

American Tobacco issues, Eastman Kodak, Westinghouse Electric, North American Company, Western Union, Air Reduction, Johns Manville and Otis Elevator sold 10 to 15 points lower. Among the dozens of others to lose 5 points or more were New York Central, Allied Chemical, Stone and Webster, Standard Gas and Electric, International Telephone, Sears Roebuck and Consolidated Gas.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—Wheat underwent a decided fall in prices early today, largely as a result of stock market weakness. There were reports of little chance of moving out any of Chicago's stock of wheat before the close of great lakes navigation. Opening at ⅜ to 2¼ drop, wheat values later showed but little power to rally. Corn, oats and provisions also were weaker, with corn starting ⅜ to ⅞ off and continuing to sag.

Wheat traders took their cue to a great extent today from downturns of values in the stock market. Apparently dearth of new export business in North American wheat counted also as a weight on the wheat market. It was pointed out that in view of the limited time left before the end of the season for navigation on the Great Lakes, and with seaboard wheat now 15½ cents a bushel less than Chicago parity, scanty likelihood existed for near at hand removal of stocks of wheat in Chicago elevators.

Pronounced falling off in the amount of wheat on ocean passage failed to have any stimulating effect today on wheat prices, notwithstanding that the total afloat was much lower than either a week or a year ago. On the other hand, Argentine wheat crop prospects were reported improved owing to favorable weather.

LOCAL MARKET LIST HOLDS STEADY

Lone Star Gas Moves Up In Early Trading; Few Wide Changes Recorded

Trading was active and prices were steady at the opening of business on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today following the suspension of business since last Thursday.

Such changes as were noted in the early dealings were generally of fractional proportion with only a few stocks showing fluctuations of as much as a full point from Thursday's final prices. Lone Star Gas was among the stronger stocks, starting with a substantial gain at 42 but forfeiting some of the improvement as the better price attracted a moderate volume of profit-taking.

In the industrial section the steady tone of prices was taken to indicate that most of the forced selling which caused the sharp drops in prices last week had been completed and that quotations were more nearly reflecting normal market conditions as affecting the various stocks.

The lower opening in New York had practically no influence on the list here as it was attributed partly to technical conditions arising out of margin adjustments and the subsequent rally of the "big board" stocks confirmed this impression to a large extent.

Quick Recovery Should Benefit General Trade

—By B. C. FORBES—

IF you followed the advice urgently given in this column to buy stocks when the panic was at its worst, you obtained bargains such as become available only a few times in a generation. Assuming that you bought good stocks, hold on to them no matter what happens.

It is extremely important that the security markets act satisfactorily because, after all, the stock market's behavior does have a potent influence upon industry and employment—don't forget the employment part. Repeatedly it was emphasized in this column this year that the best thing which could happen would be a gradual calming down of the speculative fever and the return of stock quotations to sensible levels.

The best thing which could happen now would be for stocks unduly depressed to move up unspectacularly to rational price levels. Any sustained recurrence of sensational fluctuations would have not a helpful, but a harmful effect upon prosperity.

The sooner the stock market gets off the front page the more beneficial will it be for the nation.

EXTREMES rarely are healthy. It was entirely natural that the market should rebound impressively from its panic depths. But do not overlook the possibility that what Wall Street calls "a secondary reaction" may set in following the overwhelming avalanche of bargain-buying.

Should such weakness develop, don't be stampeded into parting with sound investments. General business should not be hurt much if the quick recovery in the stock market be maintained. Of course, hundreds of thousands of small speculators, as well as many not so small, who were carried away by all the bullish "blah" sent out during the boom have lost virtually their entire savings.

A list of all those whose stock market accounts were sold out and closed out during the last 10 days would make pathetic reading.

The purchasing power of all such has been distinctly weakened. Consequently, especially in luxury lines, there inevitably will be more or less curtailment of spending.

THE gratifying fact remains, however, that conditions, on the whole, are thoroughly sound and there is no reason why better than normal prosperity should not continue to be enjoyed.

Manufacturers are not loaded up with unwieldy inventories. Merchants have kept themselves in a liquid state by buying "from hand to mouth." Our railroads are prosperous and have been placing unusually generous orders for rails and other equipment. Utility corporations are carrying on construction work on an impressive scale. Agriculture will not be permanently hurt by Wall Street events. The oil leaders, I hear, are making real progress toward an understanding calculated to curtail the too-long maintained disgraceful overproduction.

The return of normal money rates will make it feasible for foreign borrowers to obtain loans here, and this should have a stimulating effect upon our already-heavy foreign trade. The financial powers-that-be doubtless will cooperate in making money readily available to both foreign and domestic borrowers of capital for constructive purposes.

The prompt reduction of one per cent in the New York rediscount rate may do something to mollify critics of the Federal Reserve Board. Their action was wise and opportune. Their tightening of the money screws having—all too tardily—put a stop to the long-continued expansion in brokers' loans, there is no reason why the reserve authorities should not do everything within their power to restore confidence in financial and business circles.

It may be that another cut in the rate will become feasible.

THE danger that, when a crisis arose, "bootleg" money would be hastily withdrawn from Wall Street, was repeatedly sounded in this column. The withdrawal of $1,380,000,000 by corporations and other outside lenders last week emphasized the desirability of changing this system of financing stock operations, a system which did not attain alarming proportions until the deceased boom waxed. As one of the big six remarked to me while wrestling with the problem of averting a supreme crisis: "We have no control over these outside lenders and they do not feel the responsibility we feel of doing everything feasible to keep the boat from sinking."

Not only was there no undue pressure by New York bankers upon brokers to sacrifice customers, but rather, they relaxed customary collateral requirements. That Wall Street was not strewn with brokerage failures says much for the conservatism exercised alike by the banks and the brokers themselves while the speculative orgy raged.

THERE have been so many important constructive developments since the stock exchange closed on Thursday that a lively pace is predicted at the opening day.

Butler Brothers Arrange Merger

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—F. S. Cunningham, president of Butler Brothers, announced that a merger of his firm with the American Wholesale Corporation of Baltimore, Md., would be consummated at the close of this year. Butler Brothers is a national distributor of general merchandise. The Baltimore house will be operated as a separate unit with virtually the entire personnel remaining, but with L. C. Burr, manager of the Minneapolis office, becoming general manager, Mr. Cunningham announced.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—After absorption of an early wave of profit taking at the opening, activity on the Curb Market slackened up considerably today and trading came near to normal proportions for the first time in more than a week.

The list was under considerable pressure, however. Losses of 2 to more than 10 points at the opening were substantially reduced during the morning, but renewed selling broke out in the early afternoon, notably in the utilities.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Crub Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

Best Market Position at Present Said to Be On 'Sidelines.'

THE average commission house boasts as among its customers some of those who were lucky enough to have abided by the advice of their brokers and realized on profits before the big smash came along. Naturally these customers are in liquid position and in most instances straining at the leash, eager to re-enter the market in the belief that many stocks are on the bargain counter. Brokers momentarily are not inclined to suggest any rush to the buying side, urging to the contrary, that nothing be done until some degree of order is restored. A substantial customer of one broker called in this morning seeking suggestions, and the broker after much argument finally convinced him that the best buy at the moment was "sidelines" in other words that a position on the sidelines was most to be desired right now.

Some idea of the tremendous task thrust upon Wall street and its facilities by the upheaval of last month which culminated in the unprecedented dealings of the last two weeks, is coming to light as figures bearing on this and that angle of the situation filter through. One of the street's largest houses, for example, in the record-breaking trading of last Tuesday, dealt in no less than 1,300,000 shares of stocks. When it is realized that the time is not long past when such a turnover would have been considered a large one in the market as a whole, it is not difficult to visualize the extent of the confusion that prevails in the street just now.

CONDITIONS which marked the resumption of speculative activities today after the protracted recess, were not quite in keeping with what had been generally expected. The rank and file had been led, by stories of huge volume of buying orders pouring into commission houses in the interval, to look for a spectacularly higher opening. But as events proved, the actual trend of things was quite the reverse. Apparently few reckoned on the likelihood that specialists' books held quite as large if not a larger volume of orders on the selling side. Moreover, it would be only reasonable to assume that some part of the stock bought for support purposes within the past fortnight was in the market in anticipation of just such a demand as had been looked for. At all events the opening was lower and sharply so, with initial declines ranging from 3 to 10 points in the active shares, as large blocks of stocks came on the market.

It was widely contended that the decision of the stock exchange to terminate trading at 1 o'clock on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, and to recess on Saturday was a development which tended to sober market conditions materially. With a holiday tomorrow, it meant only one full session this week. Many argued that this decision caused the countermanding of a goodly volume of buying orders which had been entered earlier and to that extent was effective in slowing down the pace of things. Trading in the afternoon was on the most orderly basis witnessed since the panicky conditions ruling this time last week subsided, the tape which had been almost half an hour late at noon time, subsequently coming almost abreast of the actual market.

FURTHER heavy selling came into Radio Corporation stock on the announcement of substantial price cuts on receiving sets, which will reduce the margin of profit during the Christmas selling season, when the corporation usually makes the major part of the year's earnings. However, the stock was well bought by interests believing that unfavorable trade developments had been overdiscounted by the prolonged decline from the 1929 high of 114¾. On last week's drastic break, Radio dropped to 26, where it was at a new low for the year and 10 per cent below actual book value. Long-pull accumulation has been preceding recently in Radio in the belief that the stock has exceptionally inviting potentialities over the next few years. Some investors refrained from purchasing the stock owing to the fact that it was not on a dividend basis.

It is contended that the manner in which the money situation was handled by the New York banks speaks volumes for the foresight of those directing the affairs of these institutions. There is no doubt that the banks came to the rescue during a period of extreme distress and the fact that they were able to take control of conditions is evidence of the soundness of our banking system despite its very many ramifications.

130 More Germans Made Millionaires

BERLIN, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—The number of millionaires (in marks) in Germany increased by 130 during 1927, according to taxation figures just published. NEW YORK, Nov. 4.

Interlude

SWINGING down the streets they go,
People with their cheeks aglow;
Laughing, chatting, making plans—
Drama hounds and football fans.

Oh, how dare you be so gay—
Don't you know that she's away!

Shuffling down the streets they go,
Faces haggard, movements slow;
Sneering, snarling, sullen-eyed,
Looking pale and sorry tried.

Why so drawn, so lustre-lack—
Don't you know that she is back!

—Don Wahn.

THINKING FAST

It is no simple stunt to think of a retort snappy or snippy when you are on a stage in a Metropolitan playhouse and a guy who is drunkee starts to heckle your act. The nimble-witted Fred Allen, however, crushed a bothersome stew during the "Little Show" performance the other night. After Allen had left the auditors limp with laughter over a joke, the inebriated one waited until the hilarity died down and then yelled: "Aw, I heard that gag ten years ago!"

The interruption staggered the comedian no little, but when he revived his composure he dryly remarked: "People who keep their mouths shut never show their ignorance—or their false teeth."

NIFTY

THEN there's the one about the well-known theatrical company whose stock fell from 62 to 22 last week and when they heard of a guy who was buying some of their stock they immediately sent him tickets to all their theaters.

IMAGINE

There have been numerous tales unfolded since the Wall street pillars crumbled, but this one, we think, sums up matters.

A man, who also had to give up his place because he couldn't pay the Park avenue rental, drove his car down to a fashionable speakeasy-restaurant in Greenwich Village and summoned his friend, the proprietor. "Joe," he faltered, "name your price. I can't even pay the garage bills for it. Anything you say goes, kid; anything."

"But," said Joe, "I couldn't even buy it, old man; I couldn't give you a dime for it!"

"Well, then, the hell with it!" said the man as he threw the keys at his pal and raced away.

MERCILESS TRUTH

And Izzy Elinson avers that many a man who once clipped coupons is now cutting paper dolls.

VIA ENOUGH ROPE

BY the time you swear you're his,
Shivering and sighing,
And he vows his passion is Infinite, undying—
Lady, make a note of this:
One of you is lying.

—Dorothy Parker.

THINGS THAT BURN ME UP AND KNOCK ME COLD

Far be it from us to aggravate the highly strung Harold Ross, who edits the New Yorker, but a drawing submitted to him lay on his dusty desk for several months because he did not think it was especially comical. The drawing is the excruciatingly amusing one which was recently published, and which enticed great comment from the literary reviewers. The caption is: "I say it's spinach, and I say the hell with it!" Gilbert Seldes, who gives away compliments as often as Venus de Milo gives away hugs, got ecstatic over the infinite sagacity of this wording, and everybody got credit for the swell thing but the caption maker, and the executive who ordered it printed.

So that the records will be accurate, the picture was penned by Carl Rose, but the wording was by the adroit E. B. White of the mag's staff. It remained, however, for Mrs. Katherine Angell, who recognized its humor all the time that Mr. Ross yipped at it, to steal it from his desk while he was holidaying and she sent it to the composing room. By the time Ross returned, the picture was a sensation.

THE MORNING MAIL

"DEAR WALTER," affectionately writes Nils T. Granlund, "I was wondering when you were at the Hollywood Restaurant the other night if you noticed it. I mean the mob of cowboys and cowgirls from the Rodeo whose enthusiasm over our show made it a merry evening and who cried: 'Whee!' or 'Yowwwwww!' of 'Yi-yi-yi!' They never once hollered 'Whoopee!' which the controversialists always contended Broadway thefted from the West. It just struck me funny, considering all the comment the 'Makin' Whoopee' expression aroused."

Tut-tut, Nils. Didn't so profound a lexicographer as Mr. Vizetelly of the Literary Digest once tell the Associated Press that "Whoopee' was stolen from Shakespeare's "Upe?"

Get the connection?

PUN MY SOUL

To read the two-column headline and fable in the Denver Post and other newspapers of October 13: "Gilbert Miller has suggested to Walter Winchell, critic and storyteller of the New York Mirror, that he remain away from the Miller plays and theaters for a while. Mr. Winchell already is exiled from several other New York playhouses. It is his sense of humor, always acute, that gets him in trouble with producers and managers, and Walter very likely soon will find himself a critic always dressed up with no plays to go."

Mr. Miller, who called our attention to the spurious report, added that if it were true, it would indeed be the Millernium.

LILLIAN, LOOKA!

THE dispatches from London reporting the scene put on in the Savoy dining room by Lillian Foster, the American actress, who slapped Hannen Swaffer's face because the critic panned her, reminds us of our favorate anecdote about the big I-brow. Swaffer, it is known, intensely dislikes a manicure and he is better described as a big bundle of dirty linen, if Heywood Broun won't mind being robbed of the distinction.

At any rate, during Britain's general strike when noblemen drove trucks and otherwise volunteered their services, a lord and duke ankled into the Savoy in their greasy overalls. After waiting for service half an hour they sent for the captain. "See here," said one, "we've been here half an hour (drop the aitches yourself) and we haven't had a waiter come near us!"

"I'm very sorry," cooed the lackey, "but do you realize where you are?"

"Certainly," was the reply, "we are in the Savoy dining room."

"But," butted the captain, "you are both so dirty!"

"What of it?" was the retort swelegant. "Isn't this where Hannen Swaffer eats?"

UNSCRAMBLE THESE ANAGRAMBLES

DAILY ANAGRAM PUZZLES

TRY your hand at this fascinating game of Anagrambles—the game that is taking the town like the crossword puzzle craze took the whole nation for a ride through the dictionary.

The game is quite simple. Merely change the following words by the addition of the single letter indicated. Do not omit any letter of the original word. The letter may be inserted at the beginning of the word, anywhere within the word, or at the end. Thus, the word "pate," by the addition of the letter "l" becomes either "pleat" or "plate." The word "drag" may be changed to either "grade" or "raged" by the addition of the letter "e."

The original word must be changed in meaning by the commentary letter. To change "mine" by adding "d," to form "mined," would be incorrect. Rearrange the letters of your word to change its meaning, not its tense or number. Take a pencil now and write in your newly formed word in the spaces provided.

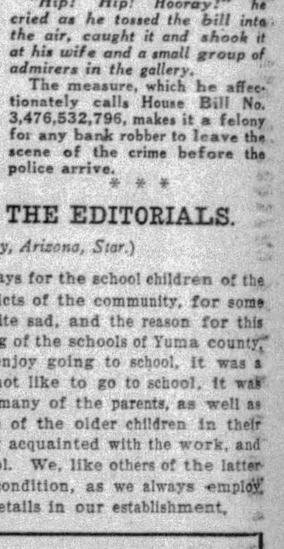
Frisby Has Plan to Sweep Back Wave of Crime Without Force



Gay scene at capital, showing reception to celebrate victory in Crime War.

WASHINGTON — Congressman Frisby today marched up the aisle in the House of Representatives followed by the U. S. Marine Band and introduced his epoch-making bill, which he says will sweep back the wave of crime which has been beating on America's rock-ribbed shores.

"Hip! Hip! Hooray!" he cried as he tossed the bill into the air, caught it and shook it at his wife and a small group of admirers in the gallery.

The measure, which he affectionately calls House Bill No. 3,476,532,796, makes it a felony for any bank robber to leave the scene of the crime before the police arrive.

SUCH AS WRITING THE EDITORIALS.

(From Yuma County, Arizona, Star.)

LAST Monday was one of those days for the school children of the district, as well as other districts of the community, for some it was a pleasure, and others, quite sad, and the reason for this assertion, is that it was the opening of the schools of Yuma county.

Some of the children, who enjoy going to school, it was a pleasure, and for those who do not like to go to school, it was really sad. This also speaks for many of the parents, as well as concerns who had employed some of the older children in their places of business and was getting acquainted with the work, and were snatched away to go to school. We, like others of the latter class, was shortened up by this condition, as we always employ some boy to care for the minor details in our establishment.

Lobby Curse Will Continue Until Law Is Passed Making Attempt to Influence Legislation Except by Public Appeal a Criminal Offense

Apparently no part of the United States is free from the curse of the lobby evil.

Revelations before the Caraway committee show that the trail of this insidious enemy of popular government extends to every corner of the country.

And until any attempt to influence legislation except by public appeal is made by law a criminal offense the lobbyist will continue to ply his nefarious trade by direct and indirect methods.

Some of the indirect methods of lobbying were brought to light by the Caraway committee in the examination of John H. Kirby, of Texas, and his "volunteer assistant," J. A. Arnold.

As president of the Southern Tariff Association and of the National Council of State Legislatures, Mr. Kirby heads a lobby that operates in every state of the union. And the activities of Mr. Arnold as manager of the American Taxpayers' League are no less national in their scope.

On cross-examination Lobbyist Kirby admitted to the Caraway committee that his organizations have paid the expenses of state and municipal officials to meetings called for the purpose of influencing tariff and tax legislation.

Six such meetings already have been financed from this source this year. In some cases even the expenses of state commissioners of agriculture who attended these subsidized meetings were paid by the Kirby organizations.

And in one case an attempt was made to assist the Republican National Committee to defeat the Democratic leader of the House — Representative Garner of Texas—for re-election because his tariff views did not coincide with those of the Southern Tariff Association.

Just how much money is spent every year in indirect lobbying of this secret kind by the Kirby, Arnold and kindred organizations, with innocent sounding names, the Caraway committee has not yet found out.

But Mr. Kirby admitted that the annual income of two of his organizations interested in legislation totalled between $200,000 and $300,000.

Until Congress faces the lobby evil squarely and deals with it fearlessly, lobbyists will continue to lead sapping expeditions to undermine the government of the people.

The way to rid this country of the curse of the lobby evil is for the Congress to pass a law making it a criminal offense to attempt to influence any public official in the performance of his public duty except through a public appeal. When Congress takes the lead in this vital matter the states will soon follow its example.

Such a law would put it in the power of a public official to expose the crime of lobbying and in the power of the courts to send the convicted lobbyist to jail.

THAT IS WHERE THE LAW SENDS THE MAN WHO ATTEMPTS TO "INFLUENCE" A JUDGE OR TO TAMPER WITH A JURY.

And tampering with the legislators or the administrators of the people is of a piece with seducing a judge or tampering with a jury of the people.

Survey Wanted to Show Injustice of Bus Fares

The Allied Boards of Trade are engaged in solicitation of funds from member boards for the purpose of paying the expense of a transit survey of the Pittsburgh district by persons recognized as qualified to do such work. It is said the survey has been required by the Public Service Commission so that it can study operating costs and thus determine whether fare charged by the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company is excessive, as claimed in a protest to the commission.

The commission is following its usual procedure.

But under the rules applying in such cases it is incumbent upon the company whose rates are protested to furnish proof of their justice. Instead of which the survey exacted, being put to the expense of the protestants, virtually compels them to furnish proof of the unfairness of the rate. But since the commission has required it, the Allied Boards of Trade, it is assumed, must comply with the order.

To the average citizen all this survey work seems rather silly. The street car company owns the buses and exacts 25 cents from bus passengers for the same service given by independent bus companies in other cities for 10 cents.

The records of the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company are available to the commission. So are those of the Oriole Motor Coach Company which, for a 15-cent fare, duplicates the service for which the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company charges a quarter. To the ordinary citizen it seems that would be all the "survey" necessary if there is any real desire to see that the people get a square deal.

But if an elaborate survey is really necessary, surely the company, where the burden of proof rests, should bear the expense of having it made.

The whole thing seems to have the appearance of a time-killing device to keep the 25-cent fare out of the area of official decision as long as possible.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

THE chief antagonists of the bacteria themselves are the white blood corpuscles. These actually fight the bacteria. It is only when the white blood corpuscles are losing ground that congestions and inflammations make Mr. Everyman aware of the mischief afoot. The chemical poisons which the invaders pour into the plasma are neutralized by specially manufactured antidotes.

The composition of blood is further complicated by a second kind of protective arrangement — the provision for forming clots.

H. G. Wells

Some unfortunate people have blood that does not clot. In the hereditary condition known as haemophilia, in which the blood is incapable of clotting, patients lose large quantities of blood from trivial cuts and have been known to bleed to death in the dentist's chair.

Normal clotting, which fills the wound and so checks the escape of blood, involves as an essential feature the conversion of a certain substance dissolved in the plasma, fibrinogen, into fibrin, which is insoluble and which precipitates, therefore, to form the fibrous clot.

Twenty or thirty years ago it was thought that the co-operation of part with part was insured through the nervous system, above either consciously through the brain or unconsciously through the spinal cord and inferior centers.

But nowadays we are beginning to realize that a very large part of the harmonizing task in responsive growth, for instance, or sympathetic secretion, is done through substances emitted by one organ and reaching another by way of the blood. The canal system is more important relatively to the telegraphic system than was once suspected.

Such is the nature and composition of the blood. About one-twentieth of the weight of a normal man is blood, and in the meshes of a network of bloodstreams, so to speak, all the life in our bodies goes on.

We will next take a glance at these streams and note how they are driven round the body.

4. THE COURSE OF THE BLOOD.

IT is not difficult to see the blood actually at work among the tissue-cells. The delicate web of a frog's foot, for example, can be examined under a microscope, without being severed from the rest of the frog or indeed causing it any pain, and we can observe the whole business in progress.

Riddling the sheet of tissue under examination, and apparently dividing it into lobes, is a network of canals, the bloodvessels. In these vessels the course of the blood may be watched by following the red corpuscles as they float along.

The blood can be seen hurrying apparently at headlong speed (velocities always look deceptively high through the microscope, because the instrument magnifies distance without magnifying time) along certain larger vessels—highways—which are minute arteries.

The arteries branch and divide and their branches divide again, so that the blood passes into smaller and smaller canals. At each division the cross area of the two branches taken together, somewhat exceeds that of the original trunk, so that the blood travels more and more slowly as it finds its way into narrower and narrower passages.

The final, minutest blood-vessels are the capillaries; their diameter is only very slightly greater than that of the red blood-cells themselves, and in these ultimate canals the cells no longer bustle—they crawl.

It is through the invisibly thin walls of the capillaries that there takes place the interchange of substances between blood and flesh the purpose for which the blood has come.

But the blood does not stay long in the capillaries. As it loiters, its dissolved food and oxygen are diffusing into the cells, and the unwanted residue of their activity is passing back in exchange. Diffusion, over distances measured in thousandths of millimeter, is a process of lightning speed, and the blood must not hang about after its function is performed. Hence, after a brief passage through one of the myriad capillaries, the blood reaches a point where the vessels, instead of subdividing, come together again. The capillaries join and the resulting trunks join each other, and so veins are formed.

Freedom of the Knees! -:- -:- By T. E. Powers

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Sing and Grow Thin

WE always like to interview Mary Garden when she returns after a silent summer in Europe.

"Bugs" Baer

Mary only weighs 116 pounds now and attributes her successful malnutrition to abstinence and thinking.

That's a terrible diet for an opera singer. The last time we saw Mme. Teresa Static she looked as if she had just returned from a long tour on a hay scale.

After listening to the backfield of an opera company chanting its adenoidial gymnastics we know of no reason why an opera singer should either abstain or think.

Every time Signore Blutting missed a meal he wanted to go out and sing for the chain stores.

But all the ladies will be interested in Mary's diet. Possibly, she only thought she was abstaining.

Most perfumes are named after Mme. Garden. She is not responsible for the others.

We would like to know how thinking will remove fat from the ankles.

When they told Ooscare Von Blurp that he had to go on a grapefruit diet, Ooscare told them that he didn't like to do things by halves.

We have always thought that an opera announcer has to weigh 300 pounds in her silver slippers. Every good one we ever heard looked like a busted sofa.

Most of them were so fat that they had to wear their pearl necklaces between their chins.

Now, Mme. Garden goes on a diet and skims herself down to bones and trills.

Garden came over on the Majestic. She enlisted for the duration of the cruise which lasted six days. So she still has almost two weeks to go on her 18-day diet.

In spite of a long musical career we know that Mary eats Melba toast with that usual, crunchy sound.

We will be at her opening at the Chicago Civic next month and will hand her a magnificent bouquet of perennial, overblooming broccoli.

If she eats it during the famous homicidial scene in La Cafeteria we will know that she is singing in earnest.

Mary is a splendid opera singer. But if she is going to stick to abstinence and thinking we would like to hear her voice again before it changes.

Isn't It So?

It is a sober truth that intemperance is a vice.

TOO MUCH TO THINK ABOUT

By Herbert Kaufman

GREYFRIAR'S CHRONICLE, which reported English happenings a thousand years ago, discovered, during the entire reign of Richard the Lion-Hearted, less than an inch of news which, in the opinion of its scribes, seemed worthy of mention.

Imagination delights to picture a journalist of that school suddenly replevined from the Dark Ages and installed as editor of a Twentieth Century daily.

The chameleon which landed on a Scotch plaid could ALONE understand such a resurrected wight's bewilderment.

There are more remarkable occurrences in a modern hour than an ancient decade. Compulsion has stepped our thinking machinery to a speed that would have wrecked the works and induced epidemics of brain fever a hundred years back.

DELIBERATE, leisurely minds are unfit instruments for stages of action, where the most startling performances and personalities can only be allowed momentary spot-lighting: as witness, the celebrities, celebrations, catastrophes and scandals which the past month has paraded through the headlines, and already dumped into the "hell-box."

Seven-day marvels soon become seven-line memos in America.

Ramsay MacDonald's visit was practically forgotten before he could recross the ocean.

Print, film and radio shattered the welkin with Edison's glorification and, a fortnight later there isn't an echo of Light's Golden Jubilee left in printer's ink, celluloid or "mike."

The naval treaties, the Shearer investigation and the oil scandal have also joined the minor notices.

PANTAGES, a multi-millionaire, with a daughter recently married into the nobility and a dying wife under sentence for manslaughter, is convicted of attempted rape and condemned to prison—thereby furnishing editorial and feature writers with material for weeks of deductive comment—and the spectacular episode merely evokes a stick or so of follow-up.

Speculation's jerry structure logically cracks and tumbles, burying millions in the ruin, and, for a while, dwarfs the significance of national routine, Congressional issues, the latest dumfoundments of science and the problem of Mrs. Gann's proper seat.

This morning, everybody's thoughts are centered on Wall Street. By Tuesday, ninety per cent of us will be watching election bulletins, instead of brokers' quotation boards.

NO wonder the ordinary man can't evaluate the acts of public servants, form an adequate verdict on Administration efficiency, or intelligently debate the intricacies of the Hawley Bill.

It's as much as he can do to keep posted in his particular job or business. That's why so many families are puzzling how they'll retain Phyllis at finishing school, Jack at college and meet the next insurance premium.

You can't successfully gamble in Wall Street with your wits off the ticker for a SINGLE instant, any more than you may hope to win at bridge or at casino without glueing your eyes to the cards.

The average citizen is thinking of too many OTHER things to beat the specializing student of finance in his highly technical domain.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up sitting at my window, low spirited over losing 200 pounds in a silly investment, and so with H. T. Webster, the limner, to breakfast at The Players. Rode home on a bus top next to a lady who was sniffling over a book of poems.

So to reading my mail and came a happy cable from Gene Tunney that his wife was able to leave a hospital in Berlin. Also came a kodak of my dog when he was a puppy in Stoughton, Mass., and the name he bore then was, by sheer coincidence, the one I gave him.

Worked until late and to hear some Vincent Lopez tunes at the St. Regis and took my wife to a theater, leaving her there to window shop along Broadway and so sleepy I dozed standing up waiting later in the lobby. Home and fell to reading Fred McLaughlin's "The Blade of Picardy," a brave tale.

Broadway hears that a young man who was tossing away $100 bills in joy joints three years ago has entered a monastery—an unusual finish to a White Way romp. But encouraging.

Jaded celebrities have been diverting the night places by arriving in masquerade costumes—the gentlemen with whiskers, mustaches and odd dress and the ladies in wigs and gay '90 costume. If recognized, tabloid photographers are tipped off and come on the gallop. And they all get their pictures in the paper, which is the intention.

There are stories that many people in the limelight frequently use superficial disguises when walking crowded streets. If so, it is farthest north in self-consciousness. So hurried and unobserving is New York that a fellow, led by a block-long band, standing up in an open carriage, does not receive more than a glance.

And here is a hand grenade of poohs for a movie actor arriving a week ago at Grand Central. He slipped on a mask and suffered himself to be carried along by friends in a football rush to a waiting automobile.

Twice recently I lunched at cafes with ladies—one a writer and another a business executive—who firmly insisted upon having the check totaled so they could pay their halves. Nothing makes a fellow feel so contemptible as to have a lady hand him money across a table. It is so easy to slip it underneath.

Along John street on the lower end of the island is a daily curb market for uncut diamonds. This is the usual first step of diamond workers—cutters, polishers, etc.—in branching out to become merchants on their own. They carry supplies in tissue-paper packets and sales are chiefly to clerks in small shops who have had requests for certain sized cuts. Many important wholesale dealers started on John street.

Being nosey in New York carries its penalties. While standing with a group watching the activities of the diamond curb market somebody gave me a swift kick—by accident or design I do not know. Maybe it was for wearing spats.

Advertising pyrotechnics of the little haberdasheries and such around town are a study in sales psychology. One week their fronts will be emblazoned with banners announcing a grand opening sale. Perhaps a week later a "Fire Sale" is screeched and then comes one of those "Must Vacate—Lost Our Lease" ballyhoos and finally a few days shut down to "Open Soon Under New Management." Without a single change of proprietors and in the same buildings this goes on for many years and all survive. A shop in the Herald Square section has been featuring a fire sale for more than two years.

One of the old rounders who seemed to think he needed a young Broadway wilding to whip up stale blood was jockeyed by her into the commodious calm of an avenue jewelry establishment. She came away with a strand of pearls.

"Now what shall we do?" she exclaimed, brightly.

"I'll trust you to think up something," he replied—not so brightly.

"We supposed as a country boy," writes Pat D., "you would be interested in an old-fashioned rag carpet exhibit. But several invitations have been ignored. Does it interfere with your tea drinking? Or something else?"

That and the grouse shooting in Scotland. And the back of my hand to you, sir!

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

TWO MILLION SCHOOL CHILDREN DOOMED TO ENTER INSANE ASYLUMS!

TWO MILLION LITTLE CHILDREN WHO ARE SO ABNORMAL THAT THEY WILL BE FORCED, SOME DAY, TO JOIN THE RANKS OF THE MENTALLY INCOMPETENT!

AND TEN MILLION OTHER CHILDREN WHO ARE SO "QUEER" THAT THEY WILL BECOME SOCIAL MISFITS, DELINQUENTS AND DEPENDENTS!

Terrible statements . . . but they're based on careful, national surveys made by the Department of Social Welfare. And the startling and pitiful fact is that most of these tragedies could be averted by proper treatment, while the children are still young.

INSANITY ISN'T INEVITABLE. DELINQUENCY ISN'T INEVITABLE.

Once we thought they were. Most of us still think they are. Most of us still think that people are "born crazy" or "born bad." They're NOT. But they ARE born physically deficient . . . faulty machines. Sometimes the machine is so faulty that it is beyond our human skill to repair it. But often a condition which was once thought hopeless can be remedied, if taken in time.

BRAINS CAN BE STARVED AS WELL AS BODIES. And a starving brain makes a wavering, distorted mind.

Bad teeth, bad tonsils, inadequate gland action do more than poison little bodies . . . they poison little CHARACTERS. Idiots don't always happen because "Aunt Lizzie was funny and Uncle Bert had fits." They're much more apt to happen because the thyroid gland isn't doing its job.

SIMPLE MINDED CHILDREN CAN BE MADE RIGHT . . . not all of them, of course, but many . . . HYSTERICAL, IMMODEST, "BOY CRAZY" GIRLS CAN BE MADE GENTLE, QUIET AND DIGNIFIED—

LAZY, RECKLESS, "BAD" BOYS CAN BE MADE INDUSTRIOUS AND LAW ABIDING—

All this can be done by giving faulty bodies the materials they need to build healthy minds.

But mama can't do it by going out and buying little Willie a bottle of patent medicine.

ONLY EXPERTS, VERSED IN THE MYSTERIES OF THE BODY CAN DO IT . . . EXPERTS WHO KNOW THE PROPER FOOD FOR BRAINS AND NERVES AS WELL AS THE PROPER FOOD FOR TUMMIES.

We need those experts. We need them in our schools. We should have FREE MENTAL CLINICS in every school district in America. Some day we will have them. UNTIL WE DO, THOSE TWELVE MILLION LITTLE CHILDREN MUST STAND DOOMED TO THE ASYLUM, THE BREAD LINE, REFORMATORIES AND PRISON.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

IT'S still good joking stuff to tell about the troubles of married people. Anybody thinks it's funny if a man and his wife fights, and kinda sad if they don't.

Well, there was an old guy being interviewed for the papers on his golden wedding. The old lady was present, but the old gent was being asked most of the questions, because he could hear better. He was a little guy, about five feet tall, and she weighed close on to two hundred.

The reporter says, "Of course, I reckon you and the Missus have disagreed sometime?"

"Huh?"

"You've had disagreements with your wife, ain't you?"

"Good groceries, no! If I didn't have better sense than to disagree with her, I'd-a never got this far along in life!"
